WARD'S MISPLAYS COSTLY

THOUSANDS TURNED AWAY

Pitchers' Battle Has Few Thrills for Crowd That Fills Stadium—Hoyt and Nehf for Today.

From the haze and uncertainty which have hovered over the world's series since its beginning more than a week ago the hand of fate may now be discerned, with its long forefinger pointing toward the banner of the Giants. At the Polo Grounds yesterday, in the presence of a crowd which jammed the big amphitheatre, the National League representatives won the seventh game of the protracted struggle with the Yankees, and McGraw's men now hold the advantage with four victories against three. The score was 2 to 1, the closest yet recorded in its intracity strife.

The Giants now are within one victory of the title, which has not come to this city since another McGraw machine, with Christy Mathewson as its main cog, won a world's series from the Mackmen back in 1905. Yesterday's triumph shifted for the first time to the Yankees the task of doing more than their rivals in order to win. For the first six games of the set the American Leaguers always held the advantage or were on even terms with the Giants, never trailing. Today the Hugmen face the necessity of taking two successive games if they are to be crowned champions, while McGraw's men have only to break even in the two remaining contests.

Pitchers' Battle Lacks Thrills.

For a game that meant so much to the winning team the affair lacked the succession of thrills, the highly tense situations and the outstanding hero that might be expected in a low score battle of its kind. It was for the most part drab, due to the mastery which two pitchers held from start to finish over the opposing batsmen. The two boxmen, whose physical powers and courage have been severely tested without reaching the breaking point in three games against each other, earned whatever laurels there were to bestow, but the super-effective pitcher never fits into the hero's niche in quite the manner that the slugger fills the place. Great pitching, such as that flashed yesterday by Carl Mays and Phil Douglas, pleases rather than thrills.

The attendance falled by exactly six persons of reaching the record for the series set on Friday last, when 36,509 persons paid to see the third game of the set. This was due to the fact that the sale of tickets was checked that much earlier. Thousands of fans, anxious to take advantage of the holiday, made the journey to the Brush Stadium but found their way to the battleground blocked. From the heights of Coogan's Bluff hundreds looked down for fleeting glimpses of outfielders, or glued their eyes on the big scoreboard, which enabled them to follow the play without being able to see the players who were earning the plaudits or disappointing the big gathering, which had few neutrals. It was, like the crowds of other days, strong in partisanship for Giants or Yankees.

Errors Cause Yankee Defeat.

When it was all over the two armies of faithful followers wended their way out in the gathering dusk, one group cursing the fate that causes players to make misplays at critical times, the other elated over victory, but at the same time convinced that fortune had smiled its way. For in the triumph of the Giants stood out two flaws at which followers of the American League will point as the breaks which settled the game for the Giants. Two harmless little grounders which were mishandled by Aaron Ward, Yankee second baseman, developed, after two were out in each case, into the runs that upset the Yankees and rendered useless the better of two superfine exhibitions of pitching.

It was the same Ward whose fielding had been so brilliant and so valuable in the early contests of the series; who had blocked off prospective base hits in uncanny fashion through the first five games without the semblance of a misplay; who had thrown himself time and again into the path of a torrid drive when it seemed beyond his reach, and who had begun to loom up as the defensive star of the series. He made his first misplay in the sixth game on Tuesday, but it had cost nothing. In the seventh game he had other fancy plays to bring cheers from the Yankee partisans, but it was his misfortune to slip twice, and through the mistakes went a game that on perfect play would have gone to his team and to Carl Mays by the score of 1 to 0.

In the official tabulation of the contest one will search in vain for two misplays opposite the name of the Yankee second baseman, but the absence is answered by that tendency to leniency that is part of human nature. Ross Young, with one out in the Giants' half of the fourth inning, slapped a grounder that moved along at fair speed to the left of Carl Mays. A few steps carried Ward to the point where his path and that of the ball must cross. He stopped to make a play that would seem but ordinary after the many brilliant performances which he had been flashing, but the ball got away from him, rolled along his arm and permitted Young to

Cool, Bright Weather Today, Friday Warmer, Says Bureau

Snappy Autumn weather, the kind that is better for football than baseball, was the prediction handed out last night by the Weather Bureau for the eighth game today of the world's series between the Giants and the Yankees. Should there be a ninth game on Friday the fans might, the bureau goes on to say, find it a little warmer in the stands. But they must prepare today for another spell of cool weather. The best part of the prediction is that the sun is likely to shine throughout this afternoon's battle.

$3,500 ENGINEER JOB FOR HYLAN DRUGGIST

SAYS MAYOR IS DICTATOR

Garbage Disposal in Brooklyn Doubled Cost in Manhattan—Meyer Inquiry to Await Election.

At the end of an investigation into the administration of the Street Cleaning Department at the public hearing of the Meyer legislative committee in City Hall yesterday ex-Senator Elon R. Brown, its counsel, said that the testimony had disclosed so much waste and inefficiency, coupled with favoritism to certain contractors, that the committee should consider the recommendation of legislation to give the Street Cleaning Commissioner full authority over his department.

Senator Brown said that the increase of the department's expenditures from $7,629,000 in 1917 to $16,790,000 in 1921 showed the grave need of economy. He excepted the present Commissioner, John P. Leo, from his criticism, but said that Mayor Hylan's dominance over the department, as indicated by the testimony of Arnold B. MacStay, the preceding Commissioner, was inconsistent with efficiency.

Senator Brown said that Commissioners Leo's scheme to build incinerators to dispose of garbage was a good one, but doubted that he would be able to carry it out. "Unless radical steps are taken," he said, "the favored contractors will continue to enjoy the plums, which they have enjoyed heretofore, to a very large extent."

Commissioner Leo admitted that certain matters connected with the department were not to his liking, and said that he was doing his best to up-build the morale of the department. He admitted that he had written a letter saying that the department was in a "state of decadence" soon after he had taken office, and explained that he had referred to the labor troubles which had resulted in a large number of the employes quitting work. He said that he had discharged three hundred of these employes and had refrained from discharging six hundred more, whom he had placed on probation, at the request of the Mayor. Commissioner Leo added that he had asked for something more than $15,000,000 in next year's budget, $1,000,000 less than this year.

Says Mayor Dictated Appointments

Former Street Cleaning Commissioner MacStay, now Second Deputy Commissioner of Public Welfare, admitted that Mayor Hylan had dictated all appointments in the department while he was Commissioner, and that he had appointed Dr. Henry J. Kempf, a Brooklyn druggist and friend of the Mayor, a consulting engineer at $3,500 a year, without knowing whether he was qualified for the place.

He also admitted that he had requested the resignation of H. Warren Hubbard, a Tammany Assembly district leader, at the Mayor's direction, because the Mayor said that he would not have commissioners or deputies "using their offices for political purposes." Senator Brown brought out that Mr. Hubbard, now Deputy Commissioner of Public Welfare at $1,000 a year more salary, had approved the hiring from Paul Vacarelli at $35 a day of motor trucks for which Vacarelli paid only $25. Mr. MacStay said that the unsolicited criticism of Mr. Hubbard for this to be unjustified but that he had requested Mr. Hubbard's resignation without knowing the reason.

Other testimony related to the cost of garbage disposal, which seemed to have been much greater in Brooklyn than in Manhattan and the Bronx, the cost and method of snow removal, and the hiring of scows by the city after the bankruptcy of Daly & Ivins, who held the "ultimate disposal" contract, and an apparent waste of the city's money in rent and repairs for the bankrupt firm's Riker's Island unloading plant.

"If I understand the situation," said Senator Brown, "there is grave need of economy. The continuance of the practice of years of disposing of the ashes, rubbish and garbage of the city by daily contracts has resulted in piling up expenses most unreasonably.

"That is simply symptomatic of the

EXPECTS ONLY A BEGINNING

CABLES ADDED TO TOPICS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The first meeting of the American delegation to the Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armaments and Pacific problems was held today in the office of Secretary of State Hughes. A letter from President Harding was made public in which he warned that the conference could hope for nothing more than a beginning of armament limitation.

For more than three hours the delegates went over a wide range of subjects connected with the conference. Tonight they dined with the President at the White House.

The delegates assembled in Secretary Hughes's office at 10 o'clock in the morning. Senators Lodge and Underwood left the conference at 1:30 o'clock and went to the Senate, while Secretary Hughes and former Secretary Root remained together until 2:30 o'clock. There will be another meeting of the delegation early next week, after which the members will meet more frequently.

It became known authoritatively after the meeting that soon after the submission by the United States Government of the tentative agenda to the powers the State Department recommended to them the addition to it of the subject of electrical communications in the Pacific in order that, although it was believed that the agenda was broad enough to cover that subject, there might be no doubt about its inclusion.

The agenda has not been formally adopted by the powers, but there has been no criticism of it by them, and it does not have to be formally adopted. The powers are at liberty to make suggestions by way of modification or additions, but there has been no agreement for modification and the agenda is assumed to be generally acceptable to the participating powers.

Aim to Solve Publicity Problem.

The Administration feels that there will be no difficulty about meeting demands for publicity concerning the activities of the conference. It is the idea that this must not interfere with the delegations doing their work, but that the public must at all times be advised as to what is going on in the gathering. The official view is that the sessions should be as open as is possible, but that this is a question which the conference itself rather than the American delegation must decide.

The expectation here is that the needs will be adequately met respecting publicity and assurances are being given that the American delegation will cause no difficulty in this regard.

The first meeting resulted in the selection of Basil Miles, who has been closely associated with Under Secretary of State Fletcher in preparations for the conference, as Secretary of the American delegation. It was also decided that each of the four delegates shall have a personal secretary. This was held to be necessary on account of the large amount of work involved.

There will be a Secretary General for the conference, but it will be for that body to name him. Each foreign delegation will have its own secretary.

Mr. Miles was born in Philadelphia in 1877, and was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania and Oxford University before coming private secretary to the American Ambassador to Russia in 1905. Three years later he was appointed Third Secretary to the embassy there. He left the diplomatic service in 1908, but re-entered it in 1916, when he was appointed special assistant to the Ambassador to Russia, and in 1917 he received the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary. He was Secretary to the Root mission to Russia and afterward, until lately, was Chief of the Russian Division of the State Department.

After choosing Mr. Miles as secretary the delegation took up for examination the work accomplished by the Government's experts for the conference, the physical arrangements for the gathering, and questions of policy. Arrangements concerning the selection of the

Lloyd George Likely to Attend Arms Parley; May Sail for This Country on Nov. 5

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The Cabinet meeting yesterday discussed the Washington conference, but there is still no official announcement that the British representatives have been finally chosen. The Daily Telegraph's Parliamentary correspondent says.

"It is now almost certain that the Prime Minister will go to Washington for the opening of the forthcoming conference. Unless at the last moment something unexpected arises to prevent it, Lloyd George will probably leave England on Nov. 5. He expects to be away for about six weeks.

"This decision has been reached at the express wish of his colleagues in the abinet, who have shown a strong feeling that the Prime Minister himself should attend at any rate the earlier meetings of the conference in order to give the most authoritative expression possible to the considered views of Great Britain. They feel that the conference will have such a decisive influence for good or ill on the world's immediate future that the Prime Minister's attendance is most desirable and, indeed, necessary.

"Another reason which has weighed very heavily with Lloyd George and his colleagues is their desire to show President Harding and the whole American people that they are most anxious to leave nothing undone on the part of Great Britain which shall conduce to the dignity, authority and influence of the conference which the American President has called."

150,000 TEXTILE MEN PLAN ONE BIG UNION

'RADICAL AND PROGRESSIVE'

Independent Groups Outside Federation of Labor Hope to Draw In All Workers in Trade.

Plans for the amalgamation of all the independent textile unions of the country into one great "defensive and offensive" alliance to be known as the Federated Textile Unions of America were announced last night at the headquarters of the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America, 113 East Twenty-sixth Street.

The new federation, it was said, would be formed along the lines of the "one big union" idea and represent approximately 150,000 textile wage-earners. The eight major associations of textile workers not affiliated with the United Textile Workers—the American Federation of Labor union—and a number of smaller organizations, are expected to be federated under the plan.

The Amalgamated Textile Workers, which has taken the lead, has been in existence since the Spring of 1919 and was formed, according to its officers, as a result of the collapse of the Industrial Workers of the World organization in the Paterson and Lawrence textile districts. Its organizers have declared for a radical and progressive program of industrial unionism based on unity.

Representatives of the interested labor organizations recently held a conference in this city and approved the new cooperative action plan, which was initiated by the Amalgamated Textile Workers. A constitution was drafted and is now being submitted to the membership of the unions for their approval by referendum vote.

20,000 Have Approved Plan.

The American Federation of Textile Operatives, the second largest independent union of textile workers in the country, with a membership of more than 20,000, already has approved the organization of the new alliance, as well as the Tapestry Carpet Workers. The membership of the Amalgamated Textile Workers, the largest independent organization, representing about 60,000 workers, was the first to give approval to the constitution.

Other textile unions balloting on the amalgamation plan are the Amalgamated Lace Operatives of America, Body Brussel (Carpet) Weavers, American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers, Associated Silk Workers of Paterson, N. J., International Spinners' Union, the National Association of Loomfixers and the Mechanical Workers' Union of Amsterdam, N. Y.; the Amalgamated Knit Goods Workers of Cohoes, N. Y., and the Amulet Association of Jack Spinners of Cohoes and vicinity.

The referendum vote is expected to be completed within a few weeks and a committee, consisting of one representative of each union, will hold a conference in New York on Dec. 3 to formally organize the federation.

"We have proposed the new amalgamated in order to put a solid front to the employers," said Russell Palmer, acting general secretary of the Amalgamated Textile Workers. "We believe in radical or progressive unionism and hope by the formation of one big union organization to be in a better position to combat the open shop, fight wage reductions and better the conditions of the workers in the textile industry.

Hope to Enlist All Workers.

"We shall levy assessments and make ourselves financially strong in order to meet strikes. We shall also be in a position to engage collectively in strikes and make our economic strength more generally felt in the industry.

"The federation, however, will in no way interfere with the autonomy of the affiliated groups.

"Our aim is to amalgamate together all textile workers, and also bring into our ranks the United Textile Workers of America."

The purpose of the Federated Union, according to its constitution, is to "enable the textile workers of America continually to improve their conditions and discharge their responsibilities to their fellow-workers by providing an agency which shall carry on propaganda and education work particularly as to the aims and methods of effective labor organization for the information and benefit of all textile workers."

The union, it was said, also would "advise affiliated bodies in case of need; shall rally affiliated bodies to render moral and financial assistance to each other in times of conflict, and shall help in organizing unorganized textile workers as need and opportunity may arise."

The alliance will be financed by levy-

WIZARD IN VIGOROUS DEFENSE OF KU KLUX

If Charges Were True He Would Disband It, W. J. Simmons Tells House Committee.

INSISTS IT IS LAW-ABIDING

Cites Its Growth in North and Asserts Racial and Religious Intolerance Is Not Its Role.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Sweeping denial of charges that the Ku Klux Klan contained within its ranks a lawless band of hooded hoodlums was made before a House committee today by William J. Simmons of Atlanta, its founder and Imperial Wizard.

Turning squarely upon members who had listened intently for nearly two hours to a dramatic defense of the organization, Mr. Simmons declared that "standing here in the presence of God," he wanted the world to know that if one-thousandth part of the charges were true he would forthwith call together the Grand Concilium of the Klan for the purpose of forever disbanding it in every section of the United States.

Called late in the day after a number of negro witnesses from Boston and Chicago had urged a Congressional inquiry of the Klan, the Imperial Wizard, first asking to be sworn, told the committee the Klan welcomed the investigation, but protested against attacks in some of the pending House resolutions.

The Wizard was permitted to read his statement without interruption, although at the session tomorrow he will be questioned by committeemen, especially with reference to published reports of various acts of vandalism charged to the Klan.

"There is no room in our organization for those who take the law into their own hands," he declared, banging the table. "We have been charged with everything from the wave of high prices to the sweeping march of the boll weevil. It has been charged that our primary aim was intimidation of the negro in the South. But it might surprise this committee to know that the growth of the Ku Klux Klan has been greater in the North and the East than in the South."

Denies Teaching Lawlessness.

Asserting that the Klan could not do "anything outside of its lodgeroom" except by specific orders of its Imperial Wizard, so as to hold its membership in line, Mr. Simmons added:

"Before God, I have never signed any instructions that could be construed or carried as a violation of law. The Klan does not tolerate or teach lawlessness; instead, we preach respect for the law."

At times there was intense quiet in the room, and at one of these moments the witness, rapping the table, declared that no man could charge disorder in any city where the Klan was well organized.

The Klan, the witness testified, is conducting an investigation of its own into charges against Edward Young Clarke, Imperial Kleagle, and head of the Propaganda Bureau, and Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, his assistant, and will issue an official statement when it comes into possession of all the facts. Mr. Simmons also stated that when the charges were first made Clarke and Mrs. Tyler presented their resignations, to be acted upon after full opportunity had been given for a thorough sifting.

The revocation of charters at Pensacola, Fla., and Mobile, Ala., was ordered by the Klan, Mr. Simmons testified, after it had been found that somebody purporting to be members had violated its best traditions. At Pensacola three men wearing robes ordered a Greek to leave the city, but it never was established, he said, that they were Klansmen and the charter was restored on assurance by the local officers that that they would keep up a relentless fight to find the offenders.

The Mobile incident, Mr. Simmons continued, was due "to the silly act" of a member, who, "imagining he had the power of Napoleon," posted Klan warnings "to bootleggers and others" that the organization was preparing to clean up the town. The notice was signed, he said, "by a man who had no sense."

Says Law Breakers Are Dropped.

Discussing charges of violence on the part of alleged klansmen, Mr. Simmons declared that when a member took the law into his own hands he automatically was dropped from the organization.

"And I have never yet failed," he added, "to turn over to the local authorities, if I had it, any evidence needed to bring about a conviction. I have been doing everything in that direction, and no man living can say that I, personally or as head of the Klan, ever attempted to shield a criminal. A member's oath requires him to uphold and respect the law. Our ritual, about which so many slanderous things have been said, is copyrighted and filed these five years in the Library of Congress. Surely, it would not have been put

SILESIAN DECISION WORRIES BRITAIN, ANGERS GERMANY

Berlin Cabinet Denounces Reported Division by League Council as Unjust.

BUT ISHII PRAISES ACTION

Chairman Says He Believes Solution Reached Will Advance World Peace.

LONDON IS APPREHENSIVE

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Questions as to what will be the outcome of the League of Nations Council decision in regard to upper Silesia are being asked here with many forebodings. In Germany the Wirth Government threatens resignation if the decision is enforced. In Great Britain future developments are regarded with apprehension, but it is held that no course but the one of acceptance of the League fiat is open. The British Government will therefore bow reluctant acquiescence.

Unsatisfactory as the outlook is, some of the fervent supporters of the League of Nations see a ray of light.

The Upper Silesian difficulties may, it is thought, rebound ultimately to the greater glory of the League, as the Supreme Council may be forced by circumstances to abdicate in favor of the League Council some of the prerogatives which have hitherto been jealously retained by the Supreme Council. There are hopes in some quarters of the League being empowered by the Supreme Council of the Allies to carry out its own award.

Paris Reports of British Intrigue.

Meanwhile, much irritation has been caused here by Paris reports that the British Government has been using underhand intrigues to obtain modification of the award. A strongly worded statement is likely to be issued in Paris tomorrow pointing out the manifest absurdity of many of the articles in the French press.

H. A. L. Fisher, for example, it has been alleged, was called to London from Geneva to receive the instructions of his colleagues in the Cabinet. Mr. Fisher, it will be pointed out, is a member of the Assembly of the League and has therefore nothing to do with the Silesian question, which is a matter for the Council alone.

It will also be denied that Mr. Balfour, who does represent Great Britain on the Council, has had any communications with the Cabinet about it. He is free to take whatever action on the League's subcommittee report he may think fit as a member of the Council.

Moreover, it is denied here that the Government has any information as to what the report will contain, and it has seen nothing but such precasts as have appeared in the foreign press. These reports, it is true, have created an unpleasant impression here, but it today became apparent that they failed to convey some of the essential features of the League subcommittee's decision.

The committee, it is now learned, accompanied its findings with suggestions as to the methods whereby the economic aspects of the award may be reconciled with the political features.

Commenting on the version of the League decision as received from Geneva The Westminster Gazette says:

"Upper Silesia having been divided in a manner which the Council of the League plainly thinks to be fatal to its industrial life, the utmost efforts are to be made to bind it up again, the two parties having been given the sentimental satisfaction of declaring this or that part to be their very own are then to be induced, so far as they can be, not to ruin each other by acting on the principle of exclusive ownership."

According to the view taken in responsible quarters here, whether the award will stand depends wholly upon whether reality can be given to the proposed supervision by the League of Nations. If the League can insure that the intricate provisions it recommends for the joint working of divided areas are carried out, if it can prevent Germans and Poles from renewing their conflict and

Agrees on a Commission For Funding Allied Debts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—A commission of which the Secretary of the Treasury would be chairman would have full authority to fix terms for funding and refunding of the foreign debt under provisions of a bill tentatively agreed to today by the House Ways and Means Committee. The measure, Chairman Fordney said, will be favorably reported, probably tomorrow, as a substitute for the Administration's bill which would have given the Treasury Secretary authority to arrange for funding and refunding of the debt.

Exclusive of the Secretary of the Treasury, the commission would not have more than four members, to be appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate. The commission would continue in existence for three years.

One provision of the substitute bill would prohibit acceptance of the bonds of one debtor nation in settlement of obligations of another Government without the consent of Congress.

HOLIDAY AND COLD CUT REGISTRATION

Total Now 440,746, or 50,000 Behind Last Year—Tammany Getting Out Downtown Vote.

A light registration compared to Monday's record-breaking figures marked yesterday's enrolment in the city, the third day this year. The combination of Columbus Day and Yom Kippur with cool weather was seen by political leaders as the cause for yesterday's slump. The decrease was general throughout the city, compared to Monday's total. Manhattan alone showed an improvement over Tuesday's registration. It went 3,000 higher than on Tuesday, but was 12,000 behind the third day figures for last year.

The total registration for all boroughs yesterday was 138,761 and the total for the three days 440,746. For the first day it was 161,353 and for the second 139,592. For the first three days last year, a Presidential year, it was 492,362. In 1919 it was 401,832 and in 1917, the last Mayoralty year, the first three-day total was 282,187. Women did not vote that year.

Yesterday's registration in the Bronx was 21,321, a gain of 2,000 over the day before, but 2,000 behind Monday's figures. Brooklyn yesterday showed a registration of 47,527, a falling off of 2,000 from Tuesday and 10,000 from Monday's figures. Queens yesterday registered 12,611 voters compared to 15,603 on Tuesday and 14,858 on Monday. Richmond's registration yesterday was 3,208. On Tuesday it was 4,081 and on Monday 3,852.

Downtown Tammany district did well yesterday, many districts surpassing Tuesday's figures and almost equalling those of Monday. Uptown Republican districts did not do so well. Most of them fell behind both Monday's and Tuesday's totals. Republican districts in Brooklyn also slumped considerably from the previous two-day totals.

Women registrants made a comparatively poor showing yesterday, but political leaders laid this to the holiday. The Republican-Coalition managers will make efforts during the rest of the week to get out a full registration and they predicted that the women would come back strong.

For the first time yesterday women registrants fell behind the men in all boroughs, the holiday apparently keeping them at home. This gave the men a chance to catch up, for on the two previous days the women greatly outnumbered them. Throughout the lower east side the ratio of men registrants to women was three to one.

A better showing was made on the upper east side, from Forty-second to Ninety-sixth Street, where increased interest and larger registration of men was reported. On the east side of Harlem, comprising the Twentieth Assembly District, registration was light.

On the west side of Harlem registration was markedly low, especially during the early hours following the opening of the polls at 5 o'clock. The small

SENATOR P. C. KNOX DIES OF APOPLEXY IN WASHINGTON

Collapses in His Library in Presence of His Wife and His Secretary.

JUST FROM SENATE SESSION

TWICE IN CABINET POSTS

Unyielding Opponent of Versailles Treaty and Author of Peace Resolution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Senator Philander Chase Knox of Pennsylvania died suddenly this evening at his residence at 1,527 K Street. He suffered a stroke of apoplexy at about 6:25 o'clock, and passed away at 7 o'clock. The attack was unexpected, as the Senator had been in unusually good health and spirits all day and intended to go to the theatre tonight.

Senator Knox, who, with Mrs. Knox, arrived in New York on Monday from Europe and came to Washington that evening, went to the Senate this morning and spent the day in the room of the Committee on Rules, of which he was Chairman, and in the Senate Chamber. At 5:15 o'clock he left the Capitol in his car, accompanied by his secretary, Warren F. Martin, and at Senator Knox's suggestion they took a ride around the speedway in Potomac Park.

On their way from the speedway Senator Knox and Mr. Martin stopped at a theatre to buy tickets for tonight's performance. They reached the Knox home about 6 o'clock. Mr. Knox went to his library, and at about 6:35 Mrs. Knox and Mr. Martin went to join him and tell him that it was time to dress for dinner. After a few minutes' conversation Mrs. Knox and Mr. Martin started to leave the library, and as they did so Mr. Knox collapsed.

Dead Before Physician Arrived.

After Mrs. Knox and Mr. Martin had made an effort to revive him, Mr. Martin left the house to find Dr. Samuel S. Adams, the family physician. When Dr. Adams and Mr. Martin reached the Knox residence soon after 7 o'clock the Senator was dead.

Word that the Senator was dead was telephoned to the White House and the President received the news just as he was about to sit down to dinner with Secretary Hughes, Elihu Root, Senator Lodge and Senator Underwood, members of the delegation in the conference on the limitation of armaments and Pacific and Far Eastern questions.

One of the first friends of the Senator to reach his residence after his death was Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, whose home is in Pittsburgh, where Mr. Knox also had his legal residence. Senator Penrose, Mr. Knox's colleague in the Senate, and David S. Barry, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, were early notified of Mr. Knox's death.

When Mr. Knox reached New York on Monday from Europe, Mr. Martin met him and his wife. Senator Knox complained that he was not feeling well, but there was nothing to indicate that he was more than slightly indisposed. On Tuesday morning Mr. Knox felt so much better that he went to the Senate, where he was welcomed by his associates. He remained in the Senate all day.

About a year ago Senator Knox contracted a severe cold, which he found it hard to shake off. He was absent from the Senate much of the last session of Congress, most of the time at his country place in Valley Forge. President Harding visited him there during the Summer. Mr. Knox recovered from his cold and had recently been in the best of health.

The recent return of Mr. Knox to Washington was regarded as opportune, as the Senate had agreed to take a vote on the German peace treaty on Friday. Senator Knox had shown a deep interest in the arrangement of peace with Germany. He was the author of the resolution which provided for a separate peace, and it was on the basis of this that the pending treaty was negotiated with the German Government. Mr. Knox was one of the "irreconcilables," opposing the Versailles Treaty vigorously because of its inclusion of the League of Nations covenant.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—The caucus of the Republican members of the House tonight adopted a resolution expressing regret at the death of Senator Knox.

The Senate will meet tomorrow and adjourn out of respect to the late Senator and with the House will name a committee to attend the funeral.

Long Conspicuous in the Law.

Philander Chase Knox was born at Brownsville, Pa., on May 6, 1853. His father was David S. Knox and his mother Rebekah Page Knox. His father was a country banker at Brownsville and possessed a comfortable fortune. His son was named after a noted Episcopal Bishop, Philander Chase. Young Knox was sent to the neighborhood schools and later to Union College at Alliance, Ohio, from which institution he was graduated in 1872.

He entered the law office of H. B. Swope of Pittsburgh, where he read law until 1875, when he was admitted to the bar. Just one year later he was appointed Assistant United States Attorney for the Western District of Pennsylvania.

In building up his law practice he was spared the hardships that attend the early efforts of many lawyers. He secured a good practice from the start, which grew with the passing of years, until the firm of Knox & Reed was known as the most prosperous of the

French to Cross Sahara in New Type of Auto And Establish a Trade and Military Route

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The French are planning to establish an automobile connection across the Sahara desert. Experiments are now being carried out under the control of army authorities with automobiles especially constructed to cross the sand and climb up and down the sharp declines.

The plan has been elaborated by an engineer, M. Kegresse, to cross the African desert from Touggourt, the southern terminus of the Algerian Railroad, to Burem on the Niger, 250 kilometers east of Timbuctoo via Ain-Sala, Tanesruft, Tinzouten and Kidul. The total distance is 3,000 kilometers.

M. Kegresse intends to make the trip with six automobiles, of which three will conduct the rest half way. He expects each car to make about two hundred kilometers daily, so that the complete journey will take fifteen days. Each car will carry 600 liters of gas.

Experiments carried out under conditions far more difficult than those existing in the desert have given entire satisfaction. The cars are of the caterpillar type with a rubber band, invented by the engineer Hinsten.

If successful, the trip will mean the establishment of road communication throughout the whole of the French African empire, which will be enormously important for the future development of that area. The strategic importance is also considerable, which explains why the military are closely watching the experiment.

Wallis Becomes a Hylan Campaigner; To Head New Independent Committee of 1,000

Frederick A. Wallis, who soon will relinquish his position as United States Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, announced last night that he had accepted the appointment as Chairman of the Hylan Campaign Committee of One Thousand, now in process of formation. Mr. Wallis added that he would devote all his time until election to the work of the Hylan campaign.

Mr. Wallis is regarded as an "independent" Democrat. He has numerous connections in the business world. He is an elder of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church and he ranks high in the Christian Endeavor movement. He said last night:

"After several talks with Mayor Hylan, under whom I served as a Deputy Police Commissioner, and with many prominent citizens of both parties, I deem it my civic duty to devote all my time between now and Nov. 8 to the reelection of the Hylan administration. Having been closely associated with the Mayor in an official capacity, I have had opportunities to study him closely. His honesty made a deep impression upon me. He is one of the most faithful public officials I have ever met.

"There are a great many organizations and agencies working for the return to office of the Hylan administration. It will be my function to coordinate their various endeavors and allocate, so far as I am able, the multiple duties of the campaign so that the greatest possible effort will be obtained with the least possible waste. I believe the term 'Campaign Co-ordinator' might be a fit title for this new job.

"The Hylan campaign has already far outdistanced the opposing forces and will continue to outdistance them in direct ratio to the time elapsing between now and Nov. 8. The five-cent fare issue alone will be enough to re-elect Mayor Hylan and his whole administration. It is their issue because they made it. It will carry them to triumph because it is a vital and imperative issue, and the men who made it are protecting the rights of the people. The public knows it.

"The Coalition forces' attempted combination apology, advice and straddle does not fool the intelligent electorate. They realize the tragedy of their position and the comedy of their explanation. Mayor Hylan's magnificent school program, which surpasses anything ever attempted by the greatest city in the world, will be another means of swelling his tremendous plurality.

"The Mayor's unquestioned honesty, his fight for moral cleanliness, his battle for municipal economy, the absence of scandals during his administration, all mount up to make him the most promising and the most imposing candidate ever put forward by the Democrats of the City of New York for the great office of Mayor.

"His administration has been honest and the 'Gates of Hell' cannot prevail against it."

Allegheny County bar. While Mr. Knox had been attorney for men of large means, his corporation practice was limited. He had known H. C. Frick in boyhood and through him became attorney for the Carnegie Steel Company, Ltd. However, he had no part in the formation of the United States Steel Corporation.

Senator Knox first came into national prominence when in 1901 President McKinley appointed him Attorney General of the United States. He retained that office under President Roosevelt until 1904, when he resigned to accept an appointment as United States Senator from Pennsylvania to succeed the late Senator Quay. As Attorney General he established a record for prosecutions of trusts and combinations and in actions against railroads to prevent rebates and discrimination in rates.

Perhaps the most important accomplishment of Mr. Knox's administration of the Department of Justice, in the opinion of commenators of that day, was his victory in the Northern Securities case. The Northern Securities Company was a corporation with an authorized capital of $400,000,000 organized for the purpose of taking over the capital stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railroads, two competing lines, and in effect merging them. The promoters believed that by means of this holding company they could accomplish what the law forbade, a combination of two competing interstate railroads in restraint of trade.

Attorney General Knox caused a suit to be filed against the Northern Securities Company, the two railway companies and their controlling stockholders for the purpose of dissolving the merger. The Government won its case in the United States Circuit Court, but under the old order of things the defendants could have appealed and postponed a final hearing indefinitely. Mr. Knox had prepared for this contingency, however. He had secured the passage through Congress of an act allowing but sixty days in which to take an appeal to the United States Supreme Court and also providing that in cases of this character, where public interest was great, hearings should be expedited and a final decision speedily reached.

The case was appealed and it was argued before the Supreme Court for the Government by Mr. Knox personally. On March 14, 1904 the court handed down its opinion sustaining in every particular the contentions of the Government.

A letter written by Attorney General Knox to the Chairmen of the House and Senate Committees on the Judiciary dated Jan. 3, 1903, friendly biographers assert, can fairly be taken as the basis for the most effective legislation regarding the regulation of trusts and railway corporations. It led to the passage of the bill to expedite the hearing and determination of suits under the Anti-Trust and Interstate Commerce acts, which, when it became a law, led to the almost immediate decision by the Supreme Court in the Northern Securties case.

The letter was the basis for the act creating the Department of Commerce and Labor, with its Bureau of Corporations, whose head is vested with the power to investigate the organization, conduct and management of all corporations engaged in interstate and foreign commerce. Mr. Knox wrote the part of the act creating the Bureau of Corporations.

Mr. Knox also waged a notable fight against the combination of seven beef corporations against whom he brought action in 1902, charging them with being in conspiracy in restraint of trade. He obtained injunctions against the defendants which were made permanent on appeal to the United States Supreme Court, and the combination was ordered dissolved.

Soon after Mr. Knox instituted proceedings against fourteen railroad corporations, charging them with being in combination in restraint of trade and won all the suits.

It was upon his recommendation that Congress amended the laws against railroads so as to punish them for granting rebates, extend the authority of the courts to enjoin the carriers against making discriminatory rates and permit the Federal courts to give precedence to cases of great importance to the public.

Mr. Knox was credited by some with having "actually carried through" the purchase of the Panama Canal for $40,000,000, which was an achievement of the Roosevelt Administration. As Attorney General Mr. Knox went to Paris and ascertained that the new Panama Canal Company held a clear title to convey the canal. This enabled the United States to proceed with the purchase.

Mr. Knox was appointed United States Senator in 1904.

As Secretary of State in President Taft's Cabinet, he initiated an active policy of aiding the extension of American trade with foreign countries, which was characterized as "dollar diplomacy," a designation intended in derision, but of which Senator Knox afterwards declared he was proud.

He negotiated arbitration treaties with France and Great Britain and made a notable trip to Central American countries, Colombia and Venezuela.

In 1912 he was assigned to attend the funeral of Emperor Mutsuhito of Japan as representativo of the United States Government.

Senator Knox was an active figure in the fight in the Senate in 1919 and 1920 against the ratification of the treaty of Versailles. Even when the treaty was being drawn up he delivered speches in the Senate and out of it in which he demanded that the League of Nations covenant should be separated from the other part of the treaty. He introduced a resolution to that effect which was adopted by the Senate and also presented a resolution against the appointment of American representatives on the Reparations Commission. He also drafted one of the various resolutions submitted to the Senate for adopting the treaty with reservations.

Subsequently Senator Knox was the author of a resolution, adopted by the Senate in May, 1920, declaring peace with Germany. This was also vetoed by President Wilson.

In 1920 Mr. Knox was mentioned as a likely compromise candidate for President on the Republican ticket. In spite of the fact that he was a pronounced conservative and Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California a decided radical, they were close friends, and it was the understanding that Senator Knox was the only member of the Senate to whom Senator Johnson would throw his strength when it became certain that Mr. Johnson could not get the Republican nomination.

When an apparent deadlock came over the selection of a candidate efforts were made to induce Senator Johnson to come out for Senator Knox, but he did not do so, although it was evident that Senator Johnson would not be the convention's choice. Many at the convention believed that had Senator Johnson taken this course the nomination would have gone to Senator Knox and he would have been elected President of the United States.

Senator Knox's home was in Pittsburgh. In 1876 he was married to Lillie, daughter of Andrew D. Smith of that city, by whom he had one daughter, Eleanor, wife of J. R. Tindle, and three sons, Reed Knox, Hugh S. Knox and Philander C. Knox Jr.

SPROUL EXPRESSES GRIEF.

Calls Knox One of the Outstanding Figures in Official Life.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 12.—Governor Sproul tonight issued the following statement:

"I was terribly shocked to hear of the death of Senator Knox. I did not anticipate anything like this, although I knew that he was under high pressure and not in the best of health.

"He was one of the outstanding figures in the official life of the country, and his present loss will be greatly felt on account of his great experience as a member of the Cabinet and as a Senator and on account of his unusual knowledge affecting our foreign policies and domestic problems."

Battleship for New York Militia.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Navy Department will turn over to the Naval Militia of New York the battleship Illinois which has been out of commission for some time, to take the place of the old Granite State, which was burned some months ago. The Illinois was a second line battleship of 13,000 tons and mounts twenty-six guns. She was launched in 1898.

CRAIG SAYS TRANSIT PLAN IS PLAIN FRAUD

ASSERTS IT MEANS 8c FARE

Chairman McAneny and the Transit Board to Issue Replies to All Criticisms.

Controller Charles L. Craig made yesterday what is considered the city administration's answer to the plan of the Transit Commission for solving New York City's transit situation. The Controller's statement is a detailed analysis of the plan, supplementing a summary which he issued last Saturday. He condemns the plan as a scheme on the part of the commission to treat the city's contracts with the Interborough and Brooklyn Rapid Transit companies as a "scrap of paper," and characterizes the scheme to provide for a change of ownership as "a plain fraud upon the public."

The Controller declares that it is untrue that the Board of Estimate could have cleared up the traction situation, and that it has no constructive plan of its own. The Legislature, he says, has stripped the board of any power "except to consent to the exactions of the transit companies" and has scattered such power in other boards. He says that instead of the Transit Commission's plan being able to squeeze all the water out of the present traction securities, it is contrary to fact, as the water is already out, and that the plan "will let it in again."

The cost of providing decent and adequate transit service under private operation, Mr. Craig says, will increase the annual deficit of the companies at least $65,000,000 a year and probably will be nearer $75,000,000 than the figures furnished by the Transit Commission.

Sees 8-Cent Fare Requirement.

To take care of additional obligations which the Transit Commission's plan contemplates, says the Controller, will require an 8-cent fare. The Controller asserts that the hope that the lines can be operated at a 5-cent fare under the Transit Commission's plan will not be realized for half a century, if ever.

"How great will be the increase," he says, "cannot be determined until after the fatal step is taken."

The Controller, in his statement, attacks Chairman McAneny's figures regarding the city's debt limit. He says that Mr. McAneny's recent statement that the city's debt margin of $137,000,000 should have huge reductions made from it is entirely in error, as the present debt margin "is absolutely puncture-proof."

Chairman McAneny said last night that he would issue a statement in a short time answering the Controller's debt margin figures.

"It is all a matter of how columns are added up," he said.

The Transit Commission will also issue a statement in a few days answering all the critics of its plan.

The Controller's Statement.

Here is the Controller's statement:

"Discussion of the Transit Commission's 'plan of readjustment' and the statement of Mr. McAneny and his associates in regard to it requires at the outset that attention be called to the irresponsible character of the public utterances of the Transit Commission. On Oct. 4 Mr. McAneny in a public statement asserted that the city's debt margin of $137,000,000 should have huge deductions made from it, among which he specified $57,000,000 for a school program and $30,000,000 for departmental improvements. By this process he announced the conclusion that the debt margin is really only about $10,000,000, which was characterized as dangerous.

"Mr. McAneny's assertion in regard to the public school requirements overlooks that $41,128,000 has already been charged off against the debt limit in arriving at the net amount of $137,000,000. His assertion in regard to $30,000,000 expenditures for departmental improvements is in flat disregard of the pay-as-you-go act, which prohibits the use of the city's debt margin for any such purpose.

"The stamp of irresponsibility that attaches to such public utterances of Mr. McAneny must necessarily also attach to any assertions that he or his associates may make in regard to the transit situation, for a statement calculated to deceive the public to the extent of $71,128,000 is in the highest degree misleading and irresponsible.

City's Debt Margin.

"The constant effort on the part of the traction interests and their friends to attack the debt margin of the City of New York is intended to create the public impression that there is an imperative necessity for private operation of the city's transit facilities, because it is alleged that the city has insufficient credit to get along without the private operators. This explains the violent and unfounded attack of ex-Senator Elon R. Brown, counsel to the Meyer committee, upon the city's debt margin and his attempt to impair the city's credit. Mr. Brown, Mr. McAneny and others who attack the city's debt margin and credit in this manner merely express the sentiment of the traction interests and aid the propaganda for private domination of the city's transit facilities.

"The city's debt margin of $137,000,000 is absolutely puncture proof.

"The primary and ill-concealed purpose of the Transit Commission's plan is to release the Interborough and the B. R. T. from their contract obligations to operate the dual subway system for forty-nine years at a five-cent fare. This is the first and essential step in order to open the way for the 'service at cost' or 'cost plus' fare; for the companies must be released from their present contracts before they can charge more than a five-cent fare.

"The 'cost plus' fare is to be provided under new contracts, according to which the Interborough and the B. R. T., each under a new or reorganized name, would operate the identical properties covered by their present contracts, respectively.

Companies "Now in Default."

"No public purpose can be served by a new contract with these interests. Both the Interborough and the B. R. T. are now in default in rendering the character of service to which the city is entitled under the dual subway contracts. 'The companies are not giving the character of service their franchises and contracts with the city require them to give.' (Transit Commission report, page 4.) The Greater New York charter prohibits the City of New York from entering into a contract with a defaulter. The reason for this is that default is conclusive evidence of irresponsibility, and it is contrary to public policy for the City of New York to make contracts with irresponsible parties. For the city to do so would be 'Heads I win, tails you lose' for the contractors.

"The existing contracts with the Interborough and the B. R. T. contain provisions intended to insure to the city the full performance of their obligations by the Interborough and the B. R. T. The city holds a continuing bond from the Interborough for $500,000 for the faithful performance of Contract 1. It holds a further bond for $1,000,000 for the Interborough's faithful performance of Contract 2, and an additional bond for Contract 3. It holds a continuing bond for $1,000,000 for the faithful performance by the B. R. T. of Contract 4.

"In addition to this the city, under Contract 1, has a lien in the nature of a mortgage upon all of the equipment furnished by the Interborough for that contract. The contract contains provisions authorizing the city to foreclose the lien whenever the Interborough is in default, and the city is further authorized, upon the default of the Interborough, to take over the operation of the lines at the Interborough's expense and for its account, or to employ another operator, or to recapture under Contract 3 the recent additions to the Interborough system, while under Contract 1 all of the lines of the old Interborough system may be taken by dispossessing the Interborough upon its default. Somewhat similar provisions are contained in the B. R. T. contract.

For the City's Protection.

"These provisions are for the protection of the city, and the very suggestion that the companies should be released from them is almost criminal. None but an irresponsible commission created by the Legislature in defiance of the city's rights would have the temerity to suggest that obligations of $2,500,000 and a mortgage lien of upward of $25,000,000 should be canceled and thrown away by the City of New York. It is to be noted, moreover, that the Transit Commission proposes to disregard the provision contained in Contracts 3 and 4 that they cannot be changed except with the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

"It is obvious that if the city were to make new contacts with the Interborough, the B. R. T. and the surface lines, they would afford no protection whatever to the public, for by the precedent now proposed to be established they could be disregarded at the pleasure of the companies without any redress to the city.

"By the device of vesting in the City of New York the title to the surface and elevated lines now privately owned, the properties become tax exempt. This is the object sought by the proposal for the city to acquire these lines. The companies are not to be deprived of the benefits of operating the lines by change of ownership, for they are to receive a new lease or agreement for private operation by them for two generations to come.

Calls It Fraud on the Public.

"This is plain fraud upon the public. The effect of it may be illustrated by a simple transaction. Any house owner could profitably give the title to his property to a stranger, provided the stranger would give him a lease to occupy for his life at a nominal rental, with authority to will it as he pleases upon his death. All of the burdens of ownership, such as the payment of taxes and assessments and repairs, are thus cast upon the new owner, while the benefits of use and occupation remain with the tenant.

"Under the new agreements proposed by the Transit Commission the fare is to be fixed on a 'cost plus' basis by a 'Board of Control' consisting of seven members, one appointed by the Interborough, one by the B. R. T., and one by the surface lines; three by the Mayor hereafter to be elected, and the seventh with the consent of the traction members, or by the Transit Commission. The Board of Control is packed with traction men from the start. It appears not to be responsible or accountable to any public authority. In connection with the scheme for a cost plus fare is a device for market manipulation unsurpassed by any other used for plundering a confiding public.

"Under the innocent and euphonious description of an incentive for efficient service,' the Board of Control is authorized, when the earnings produce more than is necessary for current expenses and to pay the 5 per cent. guaranteed upon the bonds to be issued in exchange for the now outstanding traction securities, to divide as part of the surplus revenues so as to allow the bondholders an additional 1½ per cent. per year on their bonds, or 6½ per cent. instead of 5 per cent.

What Insiders Could Do.

"In plain English, this means that the Inside Board of Control can always determine in advance whether the bonds are to receive only 5 per cent. or the increased return. When they conclude among themselves that for the next year's operation the cars shall be jammed with straphangers and all kinds of economies practised in the service, they know in advance that they will accumulate a surplus out of which to pay 1½ per cent. additional on the bonds.

"This is the period when the insiders go into the stock market and purchase bonds from the uninformed holders. When the year's developments have disclosed that the bonds are to receive a return 30 per cent. greater than the guarantee, it is quite manifest that the market price will advance. On such an advance the insiders are in a position to sell the bonds purchased at materially lower figures and reap a handsome profit.

"They can do more than this. They can go 'short' of the market of as many bonds as the public will absorb. They can then experience an entire change of heart toward the traveling public and, instead of packing the cars with extra trains at infrequent service in non-rush hours, they will afford as nearly as possible a seat for every fare, with the necessary result that the year's operations will show a serious impairment in the net earnings. When the results of the operation become known in the stock market the insiders who were short of the bonds at the higher prices determined upon a 6½ per cent. return will unquestionably be able to repurchase them at substantial declines to conform to the 5 per cent. guaranteed return.

"The only limit to the milking of the market by this device is the memory of the investing public. The operation can be repeated on as large a scale and as often as a confiding public will permit.

"Stock market exploitation is the only and continuing reason for private operation of transportation facilities in New York City. The record of the past has been a record of market rigging, and the 'Incentive for Efficient Operation' guarantees it for the future. To say that stock speculation is brought to an end because the new form of security is to be bonds merely adds a tinge of respectability to the plundering of the public. Reference need but be made to the orgy of speculation in the Interborough-Metropolitan 4½s to see what can happen in bond gambling as distinguished from stock speculation.

Opportunities for "Graft"

"Under the cost plus operation the private operating companies will have control of the purchase of all material and supplies, the fixing of all salaries, fees and commissions and other compensation, and the rent of any private property required. This opens a vista for private graft upon a huge scale. There is nothing to prevent the insiders and the operating companies from organizing equipment and supply companies from which they shall make all their purchases of fuel, supplies and materials of all kinds.

"The revenues received from the city-owned properties amounting to from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 per year will be collected, handled and disbursed by the traction-packed Board of Control. This irresponsible control of public money invites financial scandals of the first magnitude.

"The Transit Commission's scheme, if adopted, would be the death knell of municipal operation for at least two generations to come.

"The last vestige of justification for private operation disappears with the default and breakdown of the Interborough, the B. R. T. and the New York Railways and surface companies. When transportation lines are owned by the City of New York, and there is no contract obligation for a fixed rate of fare, there is no justification whatever for granting the concession of operation to private interests. The Rapid Transit act provides for operation on a cost basis. But this is a provision for municipal operation and not private operation. The fares are to be fixed with the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. (Section 30.)

Says It Is Indefensible.

"The public has been sufficiently exploited by private operators. The proposal to continue private operation of municipally owned lines is indefensible. It is a license for the brutal and public-be-damned service that has characterized the operation of traction lines in New York City during sixty years of jobbery and exploitation by crooked financiers. Moreover, the Transit Commission's scheme reveals that the buses that the Legislature has so persistently refused to permit the City of New York to operate because of the opposition of the traction interests, are to be turned over to the newly constituted surface lines for private operaion and exploitation.

"The surface and elevated lines that have failed in private ownership are to be uploaded on the City of New York at a valuation acceptable to the holders of their securities, who are to receive bonds guaranteed to return 5 per cent., and which may be increased to 6½ per cent.

"The Transit Commission proposes to fix a valuation on the properties so to be acquired that 'will represent the real values in the transportation properties.' But in practice the value of the properties will be fixed by the security holders.

"While the Legislature attempted to give the Transit Commission authority to compel the City of New York to comply with its determinations, no such attempt was made in the case of the traction corporations. Any corporation can accept or reject the valuation or plan of the Transit Commission, and the commission cannot exercise any compulsion in the matter.

Fixing of Valuation.

"The effect of this is, that while the valuation will be proposed by the Transit Commission, it will be fixed by the holders of securities well organized in groups and committees of skillful financiers. For the sum thus fixed as the 'real values,' guaranteed 5 per cent. bonds secured by a purchase money mortgage and backed by the city's subway investment are to be delivered to the holders of traction securities. The purchase money mortgage provision is a confession that no confidence can be placed in private operation and that default in the obligation on the bonds will necessitate the foreclosure of the purchase money mortgage and the return of the properties to their present owners.

"The moneys required to pay the interest on these guaranteed bonds and to make up for the loss of taxes by exempting the traction property from taxation will be taken from the farepayers in the form of an increased fare. The assertion of the Transit Commission that for the first year the fare 'shall remain at 5 cents' is intended to chloroform the public while the contract obligation of the Interborough and the B. R. T. to operate at a 5-cent fare for forty-nine years is canceled. Deferring the increased fare for one year merely enlarges the increase when it takes effect.

"The hope held out that the lines can be operated at a 5-cent fare under the Transit Commission's scheme will not be realized for half a century, if ever. How great will be the increase cannot be determined until after the fatal step is taken.

Views on Fare.

"In public discussion of this subject, Mr. Quackenbush, the spokesman for the Interborough, has asserted that the rate of fare must be doubled. In other words, he is for a 10-cent fare.

"Mr. McAneny, just prior to his appointment as Chairman of the Transit Commission, at a public discussion before the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, expressed faintly the hope that the increased fare would not exceed 7 cents.

"These two figures may be taken to represent the extremes of the insiders' view. If they are averaged at 8 cents it will not be much out of the way.

"Moreover, the calculation of an 8-cent fare is confirmed by the figures of the Transit Commission in connection with the valuation that must be placed upon the privately owned property proposed to be acquired by the City. It has already been pointed out that the figures and the assertion of the Transit Commission, and of Chairman McAneny ni particular, must be taken with considerable discount and allowance. It may be assumed that in its report the Transit Commission has presented the figures in the most alluring manner possible and that in actual practice its assumptions and calculations will turn out to be as far from the facts as were the calculations made at the time the dual subway contracts were entered into by the city.

"According to the Transit Commission's report—'without allowance for profits on any natural'—the present annual deficit of the traction companies amounts to $41,000,000. (Page 18.) These figures probably do not include additions that will have to be made to provide for any refunding of the large note issues of the Interborough and the B. R. T. now outstanding.

"The Transit Commission's report states that: 'The companies are not giving the character of service their franchises and contracts with the city require them to give.' (Page 4.)

Annual Deficit.

"The cost of providing decent and adequate service under private operation, to say nothing of profits, will surely increase the annual deficit at least $14,000,000, or make it a total of $55,000,000. When provision is made for interest and amortization upon the new issues of guaranteed bonds required to be issued to extinguish private operation, an addition of at least $10,000,000 a year will have to be made to the annual charges. This makes the total amount that will have to be provided by an increased fare at least $65,000,000 per year.

"It is a safe assumption that allowing for errors and omissions in the Transit Commission's calculations the annual increase that will be placed upon the farepayers will be nearer $75,000,000 than any figure furnished by the Transit Commission. The calculations of the Transit Commission are based upon a wild guess as to the amount of bonds that will have to be issued to acquire the lines now privately owned. An increase in the fare of one cent will at most produce $25,000,000 per year.

"To take care of the additional obligations which the Transit Commission's plan contemplates will require nearly, if not quite, three times this sum; or, in other words, an 8-cent fare. This is corroborated by the Interborough's contention, by Mr. Quackenbush, for a 10-cent fare and Mr. McAneny's declaration before the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce that he hoped to see the fare kept as low as 7 cents.

"The assertion of the Transit Commission that in 'readjusting securities on the basis of honest value' all the water will be squeezed out is contrary to the fact. The water is now out. The Transit Commission's plan will let it in again.

Present Stock and Bond Prices.

"Interborough Consolidated, common, is quoted at 1¾, while the preferred is quoted at 5½ cents on the dollar; Interborough-Metropolitan 4½s are quoted at 13 cents on the dollar; B. R. T. stock is quoted at 7 cents on the dollar, while the 7 per cent. bonds are quoted at 57 cents on the dollar; Third Avenue stock is quoted at 15 cents on the dollar, and its 5 per cent. bonds at 38 cents on the dollar and Second Avenue is not quoted and is unsalable. The Transit Commission's plan will let the water flow back into these securities from which it has been squeezed, and a speculative value will result from their inflation for which the public will have to pay.

"It appears from the report of the Transit Commission that the Interborough, in the operation of the city's subways by it for the year ending June 30, 1920, showed an operating profit of $2,630,953, which was utilized by it to pay its guarantee under the Manhattan Elevated lease of 7 per cent. dividends on Manhattan Elevated stock and the interest on outstanding bonds.

"Critics and uninformed writers are constantly asserting that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment could have cleared up the traction situation and that it has no constructive plan. This has no foundation in fact. The Legislature has stripped the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of any power except to consent to the exactions of the traction companies. The authority that belongs properly in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has been taken from it by the Legislature and scattered in other boards and bodies, such as the Transit Commission.

Contracts.

"As to a constructive plan, it is sufficient to say that the City of New York, after extended public discussion and mature deliberation, has entered into elaborate contracts with the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit for the construction and operation of municipally owned rapid-transit lines. These contracts contain provisions designed to protect the city against the default and non-performance of their obligations by the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit.

"To say that such contracts should be treated as a scrap of paper or be cast aside is an affront to an honest public opinion. To assume that any kind of a contract can be made with the Interborough or the B. R. T., or the surface railways, that they will respect or live up to any better than they have with present contracts and franchises, is absurd. In fact, to let these companies go scot free of any obligations under their present contracts under which they are clearly in default and to make new contracts with them, puts a premium upon bad faith and dishonesty in the performance of public contracts.

"If the Interborough and the B. R. T. are unwilling to perform their contract obligations, they should abandon their contracts before they subject their security holders to a greater loss than now confronts them. If the surface railways are unwilling to conform to their franchise obligations they should surrender their franchises as a matter of ordinary decency and in good faith. Until these things are done it is idle to talk about a constructive plan, meaning thereby one dictated by the traction interests and acquiesced in by supine public authority.

"The flagrant disregard of their contract and franchise obligations by the rapid transit and surface railway companies and their indecent defiance of public opinion afford no basis for new contracts to be made with them by the City of New York."

POPE SEES AMERICANS.

Praises Fund to Supply Milk to Italian Children.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 12.—The Pope today received in special private audience in his library Mrs. John Adams Drake of New York and her sister, Mrs. Arthur Rand of Minneapolis.

The interview was marked by the greatest cordiality, the Pontiff praising Mrs. Drake's efforts in collecting funds from Americans to supply milk to poor Italian children under 18 months old or sick children.

Mrs. Drake told him that so far she had collected $30,000 and bought 300,000 quarts of milk. The Pope asked her to have milk sent direct to the Vatican for distribution to children in the Santa Marta quarters near the apostolic palace, irrespective of their religion.

At the conclusion of the audience the Pope bestowed his benediction upon Mrs. Drake and Mrs. Rand all those who had contributed funds, and also gave signed photographs to Mrs. Rand, Richard P. Ledon, Joseph Paterno, Pasquale and Adele Margarella, John Calhoun, Mrs. Margaret Larson and Miss Mary Wheelen, all of New York; Mrs. Catherine M. Brown of El Paso and Miss O'Donnell of Minneapolis.

gross mismanagement of the department. I am not going through it all—Nearly two and a half times the cost of such service in Brooklyn over what it is in Manhattan and the Bronx. I have not had time to inquire why.

"There seem to be favored contractors, carried on the books for years, receiving these ridiculously high prices in Manhattan and the Bronx. There has been an unsteadiness, an uncertainty, a vacillation and a waste of money that is consequent upon it. It is very serious indeed.

Wants Bureau Head to Run It.

"When Commissioner MacStay was upon the stand it appeared that he was not to make an appointment until the Mayor told him he could, in any class, under any circumstances. He did not have any reasonable opportunity to do business. It is not consistent with the transaction of the business of an itemized municipality like this that a man should be put in charge of it, or of a department, and should be told that he cannot appoint any one without the Mayor's direction, then ordered to appoint a druggist as an engineer—it is not reasonable.

If there is any way or any plan by which, through the statutes, authority can be conferred upon the head of this department, so that it may be permitted to participate in the discharge of the business of the department, in building garages for the disposal of rubbish, I hope the committee will find a way of doing it."

Former Commissioner MacStay testified that on July 28, 1918, he was directed to leave all applications for the expenditure of money submitted to Deputy Commissioner Eschmann for investigation. "I wish you would consider seriously having all men in our employ in the Street Cleaning Department look after and keep the streets clean and give their attention to that kind of work and not to the purchasing of supplies and so forth," the witness said the Mayor wrote.

Mr. MacStay said that when Daly & Ivins went into bankruptcy in 1918 the city was left without machinery of any kind for the final disposal of ashes and that 200 loaded scows were scattered around the waterfront.

Mr. MacStay said that the city rented the Riker's Island unloading plant from the trustees of Daly & Ivins for fifty-one days at $1,000 a day and spent $56,000 in repairs. Testimony was offered later to show that Rodgers & Hagerty, contractors, purchased this plant for $91,000 a short time later.

The witness admitted that seven scows were sunk and that he was notified to remove them as a menace to navigation.

One Scow Load Cost $1,871.

Senator Brown then read a letter from the Mayor, in which it was said that one scow was hired for two months at $15 a day, and that only one load was carried at a cost of $900. The Mayor also wrote that a bill for damages, caused by failure of a previous survey of the scow, cost the city $971 more, a total of $1,871 for one load.

"Was that an incorrect statement of fact," asked Senator Brown.

"I would not swear to it," Mr. MacStay replied.

Commissioner Leo told of his efforts to restore discipline in the department, the subject having been introduced by Senator Brown, who read a letter to the Secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Council from Commissioner Leo, who said "if the alleged years of faithful service was of the same quality as the service rendered on Feb. 20 it would account for the decadence of the department."

"By the decadence of the department I meant the lack of discipline," said Mr. Leo. "The department was controlled by certain delegates associated with these people, and the result was that on Feb. 20, 900 drivers deserted—laid down. I threw out 300 of these men, and would have thrown out the 900 if it had not been for the Mayor."

"I saw the Mayor's letter asking you to be good to the boys," said Senator Brown.

"Senator, the Mayor's heart is bigger than his body," replied Commissioner Leo. "He felt for the women and children, and that bothered him. He said the men deserved what they got, but the very fellows who deserted sent their wives and children to his office and filled his outside room. He would say to me, 'Have a heart.' When I told him it meant the death of discipline in the department he said, 'All right, don't do it.'"

It was learned definitely yesterday that the committee expects to end its public hearings until after election on Saturday. It was said to be Senator Brown's wish that the remaining work of the committee should be conducted under circumstances that would not leave the committee open to the charge of partisanship.

The hearings after election probably will be mostly of a constructive nature designed to furnish additional material for suggestion to the Charter Revision Commission, which, under the bill creating it, will take office on Nov. 1.

HUNGARIAN ACCORD WITH THE AUSTRIANS

Protocol Relating to the Burgenland Dispute Will Be Signed at Once.

APPREHENSION IN VIENNA

People in Fear of Hungarian Bands and Authorities Afraid of the Monarchists.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Late advices from Venice say that the Austrian and Hungarian delegations have reached an agreement on the question of Burgenland, and that a protocol will be signed immediately.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Oct. 11.—Excitement in Vienna is growing. Although on the surface the quiet business life of the city is undisturbed, rumors of impending serious events are gaining in intensity. The people are in fear of an invasion by Hungarian bands and the authorities have been informed of movements of Austrian monarchists in close touch with the irregulars in West Hungary.

To add to the unrest the communist paper the Red Flag today published a proclamation by the Moscow Internationale calling for the arming and equipping of Austrian laborers in expectation of a Hungarian offensive.

RISES HALF-MILE A MINUTE.

Airplane With New Type of Wing Has a Test.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—A demonstration was given today at the Northholt aerodrome of an airplane fitted with wings of a new design that in the inventor's opinion is likely to revolutionize air flight.

The "Alulu" wing is the invention of a Dutchman, Mr. Holle, who hopes soon to attain a speed of between 200 and 300 miles per hour with it. In construction the wing is unlike anything ever seen in this country. It has a single fame built of mahogany planking.

When the pilot came down after a long series of manoeuvres today he said he had been traveling at 184 miles an hour, and that his rate of climbing was as high as 2,500 feet a minute. The angle of some of his ascents was sixty degrees.

BRISTOL, Tenn., Oct. 12.—Mystery still surrounds the disappearance of Blaise L. Harsell of Bedford, N. Y., who has been missing since he started on a hike across the Virginia Mountains last February. The body of a man found yesterday in the Clinch Mountains, near Russell County, Va., was not that of Harsell. Detectives and officers employed by a brother, Norman Harsell, a former newspaper man of Allendale, N. Y., are continuing their search in the mountains near Marion, Va.

German Treaty Advocates Have the Votes And Predict Ratification Within a Few Days

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Ratification of the German peace treaty within the next few days was forecast tonight by leaders of both sides after a canvass of the Senate had been completed. A vote had been expected by Friday or Saturday at the latest, but in view of the death of Senator Knox some delay is expected.

A safe margin above the necessary two-thirds majority for ratification was claimed by the treaty's advocates. Fourteen Democratic votes, it was said, would be cast for ratification.

Senator Lodge, after discussion with Senator Underwood, announced that the treaty would have exclusive right of way beginning not later than Friday, when the unanimous consent agreement limiting each Senator's time to one hour would become effective.

Comparatively few Senators, it was said, were planning to speak. Little time, it was said, would be required to act on the Austrian and Hungarian treaties, with immediate votes after disposal of the German treaty.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, spoke at length today against ratification. He declared the treaty "useless as well as vicious," and argued that it reserved privileges without assuming legal obligations, and entailed unescapable moral duties. His principal objection was that it provided for the disarmament of Germany without pledging the United States to protect Germany against aggression as other nations were pledged in the Versailles Treaty.

The report was circulated in the Senate that prominent Democrats out of public life were appealing to Democratic Senators to "stand by the Versailles Treaty. Named in the reports as especially active were William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, and Bernard M. Baruch, former Chairman of the War Industries Board.

PERSHING ACCEPTANCE RECEIVED IN LONDON

Whether Battalion Will Attend Abbey Rites Is Unsettled—Britain Plans Medal for Us.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—All the misunderstanding caused by the delay in fixing the date for the ceremonial of the laying of the Congressional medal on the grave of the unknown British warrior in Westminster Abbey was removed today by the receipt of General Pershing's acceptance of the British invitation. He will arrive here on Sunday to take the chief part in the ceremony on Monday.

It is not yet known here whether he will bring with him the battalion or guard of honor of American troops from Coblenz, but whether he does or does not the service in the Abbey will be a notable one. Plans for it are now being drawn up.

The King may be present and it is understood that it will be attended by members of the Cabinet, high officers of the army, navy and air force, and many of the principal Bishops and heads of religious bodies, as well as by Ambassador Harvey, the Embassy staff and other well-known Americans. The service itself and the music will be arranged by the Dean of Westminster and Dr. Nicholson, organist of the Abbey, and will, it is expected, be as simple and as beautiful as the burial of the unknown warrior on Armistice Day last year.

Another matter that is still under consideration is what honor should be awarded to America's unknown warrior in reciprocation of the tribute Congress has paid to Britain's dead. The Victoria Cross has been suggested, but it is not quite clear whether it is appropriate for such an occasion. It is associated so intimately with specific individual acts of great bravery and has been so carefully kept apart from any other kind of service, however valuable, that it may be held as not quite suitable for presentation at Arlington.

England possesses no other decoration of the highest military standing and it is possible that a special medal may be instituted for use when it is designed to pay the most distinguished honor to soldiers in mass. It would be carefully guarded and would be esteemed to rank as high as the Victoria Cross.

WANTS PRESS "DISARMED."

Head of World Press Congress Says It Would Mean Peace.

HONOLULU, Oct. 12.—The formal opening of the Press Congress of the World annual convention here yesterday was marked by the reading of a message from President Harding by W. R. Farrington, Governor of Hawaii.

President Walter Williams of Columbia, Mo., in his annual address called upon the journalists to "disarm the typewriters of the jingo press of the world," and said through such an accomplishment limitation of armaments would become a reality. He also broached the plan of "a league of journalists" dedicated to the ending of secret diplomacy and imperialism and which would devote itself to justice and fair play, sponsoring harmony and friendliness.

The speaker declared the congress was the outgrowth of an increasing professional spirit among journalists and said the membership now numbers 2,300 in more than fifty countries.

SILESIA A VITAL FACTOR.

Decision Against Germany Will Affect Europe, Marcosson Says.

The economic stability of Europe will be upset if the decision of the Council of the League of Nations is as much against Germany as reports seemed to indicate, said Isaac F. Marcosson last night. Mr. Marcosson, a journalist who has recently returned from an extensive tour, said that the Wirth Cabinet would fall if Germany had to give up claim to the Silesian mines and other interests.

This country, he said, will be greatly affected by the Silesian dispute, since another blow to the European financial structure will result in non-payment, at least for a long time, of the allied debts to the United States. The present German Government signed the reparations agreement, he added, with the understanding that the Allies would stand by the results of the plebiscite for Upper Silesia.

Mr. Marcosson will speak in Carnegie Hall Sunday night on "The World in Transition."

SILESIAN DECISION WORRIES BRITAIN

induce them to co-operate with each other, the solution proposed may work tolerably for practical purposes, but otherwise it will certainly fail.

It is, therefore, proposed that the Supreme Council should hand over to the League of Nations full powers to put its award into execution and exercise that supervision which will be necessary to reconcile the interests thrown into conflict by the decision.

The Westminster Gazette puts the point as follows:

"Reference of the Upper Silesian question to the League was the first sign that the Allies really appreciated the true function of the League in international affairs. But the question having been remitted to the League, and the League having proposed a definite course of action, it remains to see that it is vested with power to act. This means that the Allies should withdraw from the scene and give to the League full authority and whatever force it needs to carry out its proposals.

"This is the one line of safety for the Allies and the one hope of success for the award. In face of the fact that the plebiscite gave the majority to Germany, nothing is likely to reconcile her to an award which divides the territory except absolute assurance that impartial authority will see that her enterprise and industrial organization are not ruined by it, and nothing will save the League from discredit if its award becomes a dead letter and the allied troops remain and continue the old quarrel in connivance with one side or the other.

"It would open up new and promising possibilities in other parts of Europe if the League could prove by this example that it had discovered the secret of reconciling nationalist aspirations with industrial co-operation and could plainly demonstrate to Poles and Germans that drawing of the national boundary is possible without a division of the industrial unit.

"This, we cannot disguise from ourselves, is an enormously difficult task and the prospect of succeeding in it lies wholly and solely, it seems to us, in authorizing the League to administer its own judgment."

German Cabinet Assails Judgment.

BERLIN, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—An official communication concerning the decision reported to have been reached by the League of Nations Council on the Upper Silesian question, issued this evening, says:

"At today's sitting of the Cabinet the Chancellor voiced the general indignation of the country at the reports, which are not denied, that the Council of the League of Nations has decided the fate of Silesia on lines which do not correspond either with the results of the plebiscite or the economic needs of the country.

"The Chancellor said that if the reports were correct, German towns, with all the fruits of German labor and German intelligence, would be separated from the empire and placed under foreign domination.

"Such reparation would be considered as flagrant injustice, not only by a majority of the population of Upper Silesia but also by the whole German nation. It was not a pacific development, and trouble would inevitably result from it. It would cause a deep wound in Germany's economic body.

"The Chancellor added that if the decision was really such as represented, a new situation would be created which would prejudice conditions under which the present Government had assumed conduct of the affairs of the empire.

"The Cabinet can only come to a final decision when it is officially notified of the verdict of the Supreme Council. The Chancellor's declaration is made in the name of the whole Cabinet."

Assumption that the partition of Upper Silesia has been definitely decided caused a swift rise in foreign exchanges in the money market section of the Boerse today, the stock market being closed. A feverish demand for foreign currencies started early.

It was occasioned by apprehension of internal and external trouble in consequence of the prospective loss of valuable productive territory, with an attendant further disastrous slump in the mark. The dollar established a new record of 133; it closed at 131.45. Other foreign paper, including Polish notes, was correspondingly higher.

League Has High Hopes for Its Plan.

GENEVA, Oct. 12 (Associated Press.)—The Council of the League of Nations is confident that its solution of the Upper Silesian question is the only possible one and that it will at the same time roll away one of the dark clouds hovering over Europe and firmly establish the prestige of the League.

The text of the decision will be published simultaneously at Paris, London, Rome and Geneva, as soon as notified to the Berlin and Warsaw Governments.

A statement issued by the League tonight says that, confronted by the extreme difficulty of conciliating the ethnical and economic elements of the question, the Council first of all charged a committee, composed of Belgian, Brazilian, Chinese and Spanish delegates, with the study of the problem. The committee reached the conclusion that a frontier drawn either in accordance with the plebescite or the economic conditions, without other stipulation, was bound to have unfortunate results.

The committee accordingly recommended a new frontier, together with a guarantee against the dislocation of existing economic conditions extending over a period long enough to permit the region to adapt itself as completely and effectively as possible to the new economic situation. The committee also requested experts to study general measures, the application or which would assure continuity of the economic life of Upper Silesia and reduce to a minimum the difficulties during the period of change.

The economic stipulations formulated by the experts provided for the application over a fixed period, in some cases extending to fifteen years, of a series of arrangements respecting railroads and water and electric supplies, as well as the suppression of custom dues on numerous articles, including wine and coal, and the maintenance of the German mark as legal currency in the regions ceded to Poland.

The Council recommends the adoption of these plans, together with that of a guarantee relative to political minorities, believing the latter to be an essential complement to the establisment of a political frontier.

The statement concludes:

"It is in this manner only that it is possible to give the largest satisfaction to the political aspirations of the inhabitants and insure at the same time the economic prosperity of the country."

At the close of the session of the Council, Viscount Ishii, the President, thanking his colleagues, said:

"The Council has happily reached the solution of one of the most difficult and complex questions. It has fulfilled successfully, I am firmly convinced, one of the most important missions with which it will ever be charged.

"It is a decisive hour in the life of the League of Nations. The solution we have reached can not fail to contribute in large measure to the maintenance of the peace of Europe and the world."

DECISION ON WAY TO PARIS.

French Get Report of Districts Allotted to Germans and Poles.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The Council of the League of Nations has put the finishing touches to its Upper Silesian decision today, and a courier left Geneva tonight to bring it to Premier Briand, as President of the Allied Supreme Council, which referred the thorny problem to the League.

It is possible the decision will not be published for several days, inasmuch as it is desired to dispose allied troops in Silesia in a manner to prevent outbreaks.

The general lines of the League decision are known. Poland receives the district of Pless entirely and the greater part of Rybnik, the two forming the southern portion of the plebiscite territory. The industrial triangle is divided. Germany gets the two districts of Gleiwitz and Zabrze as well as the City of Beuthen. Poland receives the districts of Koenigshutte, Beuthen Country, Kattowiz City and Kattowitz Country.

Two districts, Tarnowitz and Lublinitz, are divided, the eastern portion going to Poland and the western part to Germany. The districts in the north and centre, Rosenberg, Kreuzberg, Oppeln, Gross Strelitz, Tost, Kosel, Obergiogau, Loebschutz and Ratibor, go to Germany.

In addition the League decision calls for the establishment of a commission of one German, one Pole and one neutral to work out a plan of economic unity for the industrial districts, the idea being that this commission will prepare an agreement to be accepted by Berlin and Warsaw.

It will be seen that this decision gives the Poles less than the French claimed for them, but considerably more than the majority of the Supreme Council favored assigning. Germany naturally gains where Poland loses, and vice versa.

On the eve of the announcement of the verdict, which the allied Governments are pledged to accept, the German Government is conducting a most extraordinary campaign. Yesterday, after the terms of the decision had been fixed, the German Ambassadors at London and Paris called on the Foreign Offices of those capitals and declared that under the Treaty of Versailles, Silesia could not be divided and therefore Germany should get all of it. The French Government informed Herr Mayer that it construed the treaty to mean that Silesia could be divided.

In the meanwhile the German Government is making a strange sort of campaign at home, a campaign destined to certain failure, for all of Upper Silesia. Threats are being made that the Government will resign if the League decision is not favorable to Germany. What the German leaders aim at is not very clear to Frenchmen. Certainly, they say, in starting such a fireworks campaign at this late date they could scarcely hope to bluff the Allies and the League Council into backing water. The fact that Chancellor Wirth is taking part in the general hue and cry would make it look as if he were opening the door to depart from power.

If the Germans should take any steps which the allied force of 25,000 men in Silesia could not handle, it is probable the French would not hesitate to use their army on the Rhine to persuade Germany that discretion is the better part of valor in the Silesian affair.

TWO years ago the feeling was general that a period of deflation was due. But when? How severe? For how long? No one could say. They could only guess.

Today "they" say prosperity is just around the corner. But is it? If so, when will it come? Have we touched bottom? Where are we, today, in the business cycle? Everybody has an opinion. But how many really know?

Yet the thing is not an inscrutable mystery. We need to remind ourselves that what has happened before, will happen again.

Business, like history, is a repeater. Fat years and lean years follow each other in rotation. The laws governing the business cycle are as orderly as the movement of the stars in their spheres.

The man who understands these laws is better fortified against disaster. In fair weather he battens down his hatches against the bursting of the economic tempest. When the sky is overcast, he trims his sails for the fair and warmer of tomorrow or the day after.

No man has mastered this problem of foreseeing business trends, but here and there are rare men who have penetrated it further than their fellows.

Some of these men have put their experiences and observations on paper for readers of the Evening Post. These articles, containing information vital to business men now, will appear in the Evening Post daily for the next two weeks, beginning Monday, Oct. 17th.

ARMS DELEGATES AIM TO REDUCE SECRECY

Pan American Building, through the offer of the Pan-American Union, as the principal meeting place, and the use of the part of the new Navy Building, just across the street from the Pan American Building, for the offices of the delegations, including the American, were approved.

The delegates considered many of the subjects on the agenda with special reference to the preparatory work done by the experts of the State, War and Navy Departments for their use. The experts have prepared a number of monographs, statistical, historical and otherwise, dealing with economic, military and political phases of the subjects covered by the agenda. The delegation was informed as to the progress that has been made in the preparation of other data not yet ready for submission. The Carnegie Endowment has offered its facilities to the delegation. Through the American Minister at Lisbon the State Department today received the acceptance of the Portuguese Government of the invitation to participate in the discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern questions in connection with the conference.

Text of Harding Letter.

President Harding's letter on the subject of the conference's prospects was addressed to Miss Ella L. Freed of 46 Lenox Road, Brooklyn, N. Y. Copies of it were given out in order that his views might have publicity.

Many organizations and individuals have been writing to the President about the coming conference, and it was apparent from a large number of their communications that the writers were under the impression that his purpose in calling it was to seek a means of bringing about universal disarmament. In his letter to Miss Freed, who had asked him to define what he meant by "reasonable limitation" of armament, the President explained that he meant "something practicable that there is a chance to accomplish, rather than an ideal that there would be no chance to realize."

The letter read:

The White House,
Washington, Oct. 11, 1921.

My Dear Miss Freed: Your letter, among others which came to me, suggests a widespread misapprehension as to the aims of the conference on limitation of armaments. In my letter of Oct. 5 I said to you:

"I think I ought to correct your impression about the expectation of universal disarmament. It is very erroneous even to suggest that we contemplate going so far as that. If we can get a reasonable limitation we shall think that great things have been accomplished."

You replied that my letter seemed to bring a message of hopelessness to those seeking universal disarmament and asked me to explain reasonable limitation.

By reasonable limitation I mean something practicable that there is a chance to accomplish, rather than an ideal that there would be no chance to realize. It is necessary to deal with actualities; to do the best possible.

Universal disarmament will be beyond hope of realization; even its desirability at this time might well be questioned. Thousands of years of history recording the wars and controversies of mankind suggest that human nature would require revolutionary organization to make universal disarmament possible. A consideration of the present state of the world must, I think, enforce the conclusion that this is not a hopeful time to undertake that kind of revolution.

On the other hand, a world with the horrors of recent experiences seared into its mind, and staggering under the load of debt and armaments, has generously justified our hope for a favorable attitude toward the practical effort, the sincere beginning, that we are attempting. The fine spirit in which leading nations have received the invitation to meet and consider these things is altogether encouraging.

To undertake the impossible and fail might leave our last state worse than our first. The attitude of the nations warrants confidence that we will not fail, but rather that substantial results will be accomplished, calculated to lessen the armament burden, and to reduce the danger of armed conflict. I feel that in such an effort we are entitled to the support of all people who would be glad—as I can assure you I would—to see still more accomplished if possible.

Most sincerely yours,
WARREN G. HARDING.

Miss Ella L. Freed,
46 Lenox Road,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

According to a view expressed here, it has been apparent for some time that an expectation existed on the part of some in this country that no matter what the other participants in the conference agreed to do, the United States would set an example by scrapping its ships and possibly still further reducing its army. In some foreign countries the idea has been obtained that disarmament sentiment in the United States was so strong that the Harding Administration would be obliged to conform to it without regard to the outcome of the conference. That any such view should prevail has caused surprise in Washington.

Most of the interest in this country in the coming conference appears to be centred in the armament phase, with little attention given to the purpose of attempting to remove causes of friction with respect to the Pacific and the Far East. The discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern problems is likely to assume the most important aspect in the conference, for it is felt that if these problems can be adjusted the necessity for the maintenance of great armaments will not exist to such a degree as at present. While the order in which the conference will consider the topics on its agenda cannot be determined until it assembles, it is taken for granted in unofficial quarters in Washington that Pacific and Far Eastern questions will precede the discussion of the limitation of armaments.

Miss Ella L. Freed could not be found yesterday at 46 Lenox Road, Brooklyn. Tenants in the house said that she visited friends there a month ago but that she left in an automobile last Friday.

They said that they knew nothing of her personal affairs except that she was supposed to live in Pittsburgh. She told no one in the house, so far as could be learned, where she was going.

COOLIDGE ALSO URGES CAUTION

Says Parley's Aim Is to Give Relief From Competitive Armaments.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 12.—A warning against undue optimism concerning the armament conference was given by Vice President Coolidge in the course of a visit here yesterday to open a community chest campaign.

He emphasized the fact that the gathering on Nov. 11 was not to be a disarmament conference, but a meeting to try to find a basis for a mutual reduction of land and sea forces.

"Every well-informed person knows," said the Vice President, "that it is impossible to do away with a sufficient military establishment, both on land and sea, to protect the domestic peace of the nation."

He said it was recognized that our national rights must be protected, and that a force sufficient for that purpose would not be "a great burden."

"It is not in this direction," said Mr. Coolidge, "but in the direction of competitive armaments by the great nations that it is hoped the conference may secure relief."

ROME, Oct. 12.—Interest in the Washington conference is growing daily here.

Ambassador Child was interviewed today by two leading papers, the Tribuna and the Giornale d'Italia. He said that the conference originated in a spontaneous demand, dictated by the good sense of the American people, who made President Harding understand that it was desired to give the great powers an opportunity to remove from the peoples of the whole world the terrible economic burden of taxes and waste contingent on unlimited armaments. He added:

"Fortunately, the initiative comes from a people having sufficient resources to fight any war victoriously, from a strong nation desirous of the good of humanity." He added that the nation did not imagine that the conference could render war impossible, but desired as far as possible to reduce warlike preparations. The Ambassador said that he was convinced that the conference would show the policies of America and Italy to be parallel, both being nations desirous of minding their own business and developing their own plans independently of any foreign will or influence.

An interviewer, having suggested that all the nations of Europe in the extreme East were not convinced of the possibility of a rapid and effective reduction of armaments, and that therefore an expression of skepticism might be heard at the conference, Mr. Child energetically replied:

"All nations, I am sure, hope that this voice will not make itself heard at Washington."

VIVIANI ACCEPTS CONFERENCE MISSION

Will Head the French Delegation When Briand Leaves Washington for Home.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—René Viviani today accepted his appointment as a member of the French delegation to the Washington conference. When Premier Briand returns to France late in November it will be Viviani who will head the French delegation. General Buat, chief of the General Staff, and Admiral Bon will also be members of the French delegation.

The choice of Viviani as chief of the French delegation during the period of tedious negotiation is pretty well received in France. Many leading Frenchmen thought that a diplomat who spoke English should have been chosen, if possible, but such a man did not appear to be available, and it is recognized that Viviani has a certain popularity in the United States gained through his official missions there.

The French delegation, headed by Briand, according to present plans, will sail from Havre Oct. 29 on the Lafayette of the French Line. It is understood that the headquarters of the French diplomats in Washington will be the New Willard Hotel.

The French newspaper men who will accompany the delegation are much worried over prohibition, and today a committee of them petitioned M. Briand to use his influence to the end that the drinking privileges which will presumably be enjoyed by the French diplomats be extended to include the newspaper men accompanying the delegation. The correspondents are also taking up the matter with M. Viviani.

REPORT JAPAN SEEKS END OF CAPITAL SHIPS

Her Plan Said to Be Scrapping or Ceasing to Build Them—Delegates Hopeful.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Japan's plan for disarmament, which it will present at the Washington conference, is that the three naval powers shall agree to scrap or cease building capital ships on the theory that the only use of these vessels is for offensive warfare.

Japan will propose that naval building in the future shall be confined to small ships mounting small guns suitable only for defense and that the nations be free, if they wish, to fortify their coasts and harbors to any extent. It is pointed out, however, that none would care to spend money on coast defense when there are no offensive armaments to launch attacks.

Japan will also take the position that no matter what the Continent of Europe does in the way of disarmament, America, Japan and England as the main naval powers can work out a scheme of their own.

HONOLULU, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—The Japanese army and naval delegation to the Washington Conference, headed by Major Gen. Hirotara Tanaka and Vice Admiral Kanji Kato, arrived in Honolulu today on board the liner Kiyo Maru.

General Tanaka and Admiral Kato expressed confidence that the conference would be a success. The Admiral said:

"We are going to the conference with the single desire to co-operate with the other nations in accomplishing disarmament and we must not forget that real success will depend upon the sincerity and earnestness of purpose of all the nations participating. Should a single nation be lacking in sincerity and weak in its desire for limitation, we cannot expect to repeat anything but the failure that has attended previous conferences on reduction of armaments.

"The Japanese firmly believe that representatives of all other nations are coming to the conference with the same spirit of earnestness and co-operation as ourselves, and that something definite and practicable will be accomplished."

GREY URGES POWERS TO TRUST AMERICA

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Viscount Grey, speaking at Alnwick tonight in support of the League of Nations, said that the League provided the machinery by which war could be prevented and that public opinion should be organized in every country so that in any danger of war there would be an overwhelming demand for the use of that machlery.

Turning to the Washington conference, he said that though the American Government was not a member of the League, supporters of the League must feel gratified that the conference had been called, and more so, if the Pacific question could be settled, he believed that the American Government had summoned the conference for no national advantage, except the advantage in which every country would share. He hoped that all other Governments which had been invited would go to the conference feeling that what they had to do was to respond to the American Government's invitation by trusting it and putting all their cards on the table.

A great part of the evil of the world, he said, had come from nations trusting each other too little. Each nation might try a little more of the experiment of being first to show trust. If that was the spirit in which the conference met it would realize results such as perhaps no other conference has realized before.

The main object of the League, continued Lord Grey, was to prevent war. If in future years disputes between nations should arise and one nation refused to accept the decision of the International Court, he hoped that other nations would put a ringed fence around it and isolate it.

WARNING BY SUN YAT-SEN.

South China if Unrepresented Won't Accept Conference Decisions.

CANTON, Sept. 5 (Correspondent of The Associated Press).—Japan's twenty-one demands on China, and the "secret agreements" between Peking and Tokio, if permitted to stand, will block any settlement of Far Eastern questions at the forthcoming Washington conference, according to Dr. Sun Yat-sen, leader of the South China Government.

Dr. Sun made this assertion in a statement in which he describes himself as "chief executive of the Government of the Republic of China," which was given The Associated Press by the Canton Information Bureau. He charges that China is so shackled by Japanese influence over the Peking Administration of Hsu Shih-chang that "all other questions are subordinate to this menacing policy."

The Canton leader asserts that to obtain China's "release from this policy of dominations, China must be represented at the Washington conference by a delegation under the direction of an administration that is not only the legal Government of the republic, but is not committed and is not compromised by its dealings and relations with the foreign power pursuing that policy."

After citing arguments to prove the unconstitutionality of the Peking Government and further emphasizing his plea for representation of the Canton régime at the Washington Conference, Dr. Sun announces:

"Therefore, I, in the name and on behalf of the Government and people of the Republic of China, do hereby declare that, unless a delegation under the direction of this Government attends and takes part in the work of the Washington conference, none of the decisions of the conference relating to China will be recognized as possessing any validity or force."

THIS DAY at Wanamaker's

The Little Flowering Plant on the Breakfast Table

called the Cyclamen has been our joy and encourager for two months:

Its slender, graceful stalks, bearing bright red flowers which after a time faded into seeds, have never dropped nor faded.

It was like a living bird every day speaking to our eyes. A little water daily renewed its life, and sitting near a window it breathed fresh air and felt the Summer sun.

Oh, the pity to neglect the children of the greenhouse, and the greater pity it is to neglect the buds of the home, its little children, and not recognize and care for them.

is after a model by Cheruit. We bought the original pantaloon frock in red velvet, with a gold girdle and square red velvel trousers, at Cheruit's opening in Paris, and had it copied, for we thought it a charming frock for dancing. We believe that we are the only house in America now showing this, the greatest innovation of the season. $165. Authentic reproductions of models from Callot Soeurs, Jeanne Lanvin, Jenny, Patou, Rolande, Agnes, Molyneux, and others by Cheruit, at about half the price of the originals.

Flower Paintings for Less.

A very good group in oil, at a third to a half less than regular prices. Some genuine antiques, French and Italian. Others copies of antiques. Still others are thoroughly modern in spirit and full of the brilliant color the modern school loves. Some are in ovals to form medallions on the walls. Others are long and slender for overmantle or over-door use. All are handsomely framed in gilt or colored frames. The flowers in the paintings are in every color, and of every variety, from gorgeous peonies, roses, poppies and chrysanthemums to smaller and more delicate blossoms. As people are using many flower pictures to decorate their walls just now, this is a good opportunity.

IRISH CONFERENCES PROCEED AMICABLY

Joint Committee Examines Truce Violations and Will Report to Full Delegations Today.

LLOYD GEORGE SEES KING

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Premier Lloyd George had an audience with the King at Buckingham Palace today, at which it is believed he reported on the progress of the Irish conference and the Government's unemployment plans.

As a sequel to consideration by the Irish conference yesterday of preliminary matters the small joint committee met today at the Cabinet offices in Whitehall Gardens to examine how the truce in Ireland could be better observed. The committee consisted of Sir Hamar Greenwood, Sir L. Worthington Evans, General Macready, Michael Collins, B. C. Barton and E. J. Duggan. The committee will report to the second meeting of the Irish conference, which will be held at Downing Street at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (Associated Press)—When the Irish conference resumes its sessions at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning it will probably deal first with the question of alleged breaches of the truce, which have been the subject of conversations today between various members of the British and Irish delegations.

It is agreed among the delegates, it was understood tonight, that breaches have arisen on both sides, Dublin Castle having produced a list of such occurrences, which was compared with a list published by the Irish Bulletin of breaches by auxiliaries, the police and the military.

In the recent killings at Galway and shootings resultant from an Irish Republican dance, it was conceded that both Sinn Feiners and Crown officers violated the truce by carrying arms.

The Irish representatives, while expressing anxiety for accord regarding the truce, expressed disfavor of any extension of the original terms of the truce signed at general headquarters in Dublin. It is understood that they are unwilling to bind themselves to discontinue any activities not covered at that time. Since, however, many of these activities were possible only through the possession of arms, a stricter regard for prohibition against carrying arms by either side would meet all Government requirements.

Today's conversations were quite friendly and harmonious, as were yesterday's discussions in conference.

The appointment today of Lionel Curtis as one of the chief secretaries on the Government side, having a position similar to that of John Chartres on the Irish side, was taken to indicate that the Government approach toward a settlement will follow the lines indicated by General Jan Christian Smuts, the South African Premier. Mr. Smuts, who is considered a great authority on the Imperial Federation, took a prominent part in the framing of the South African Constitution. He has spent much time in Ireland, his wife being Irish.

The Sinn Fein, which has carried out religiously its agreements regarding publication of the proceedings in the conferences, complained this morning that there had been leaks on the Government side, and said this was another matter which they shall demand remedied.

Premier Lloyd George laid before a full meeting of the British Cabinet Council meeting today the subjects discussed at yesterday's conference.

Michael Collins in an interview published in The Herald (Labor organ) is quoted as saying he dislikes London, and wants to get out of it as soon as he can. He evaded questions bearing on the conference, but, replying to an inquiry as to whether he was an optimist, said:

"Yes, I am an optimist. A man would need to be an optimist to hold up the British Empire. That is what we have done, and we may have to do it again. It needs more than optimism; it needs faith like that of the Apostles."

CORK, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—Lord Mayor O'Callaghan, speaking today at a meeting of the Cork Harbor Board, moved the following resolution:

"We insist that Mr. Lloyd George's protestations of a sincere desire for peace between Ireland and Great Britain cannot be accepted while his Government retains in prison and in interment camps thousands of untried Irishmen."

P. B. O'Brien, in seconding the resolution, said that the Irish hierarchy had called upon the British Cabinet to release these men for the sake of peace.

SAILOR'S MILLIONS VANISH.

Illiterate Basque Learns That Uncle Didn't Leave 30,000,000 Francs.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Poueche Lancole, the illiterate Basque sailor who, putting into Dunkirk Harbor some weeks ago, learned he had inherited from a long-forgotten uncle a fortune of over 30,000,000 francs, now discovers that he is a comparatively poor man after all. A friend of the dead uncle arrived at Lancole's home, in Bayonne, with the information that the estate is worth only about 150,000 francs.

Sicard, the uncle, owned a sheep farm in the Argentine, with some thousand heads and about forty thousand piastres in cash. In 1911 he was murdered and his body cut up and burned by the assassin. It is probable that the subsequent winding up of Sicard's affairs by the authorities will have eaten a large hole into the fortune, so that Lancole may ultimately get only a few thousand francs.

Still, that is a windfall for a sea rover unable to either read or write, and, fortunately, he is a philosopher. He said from the start: "I will believe it when I handle the banknotes." But the townsfolk are bitterly disappointed that their millionaire sailor is not a millionaire, after all.

POPLAR COUNCILORS FREED.

They Promise Effort to Solve the Borough's Tax Problem.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Viscount Birkenhead, the Lord Chancellor, today ordered the release from Brixton Prison of the Councilors of the Borough of Poplar, whose recent arrest grew out of a refusal to comply with tax provisions of the London County Council.

The Councilors were released after they had signified a desire to get together to endeavor to solve Poplar's financial difficulties. They disclaimed any desire to treat the Hight Court disrespectfully by their refusal to comply with its order to raise the tax rates in accordance with the County Council's ruling.

ARMED TRIO ROB 15 AND ESCAPE AFOOT

Hold Up Lexington Avenue Lunchroom and Pass Hat Around for Loot.

MISS $600 IN OPEN SAFE

Jersey City Woman, In Bed, Watches Burglar Collect $1,700 Worth of Jewelry.

Three armed robbers held up fifteen patrons and employes early yesterday morning in the Grand Lunch Room at 447 Lexington Avenue, opposite the Gand Central Palace, and while a confederate stood guard at the door leading to the street, backed them into the kitchen in the rear, where they made their victims empty the contents of their pockets into the hat of one of the holdup men.

While two of the robbers held the fifteen at bay with their pistols the third walked to the counter in the front part of the restaurant, where he obtained $37, but overlooked $900 which was in the open safe under the cash register. Hundreds of persons were passing at the time but the holdup men made their escape on foot. A description of one of the bandits led to the arrest of Robert Davison, 23 years old, of 894 Second Avenue on suspicion of knowing something about the robbery. He declared he was not in the vicinity at the time. The detectives said they expected to arrest the three robbers and the lookout man through descriptions obtained from their victims.

For fifteen minutes yesterday morning Mrs. Bert S. Fuller lay terrorized in her bed at her home at 131 Gifford Avenue, Jersey City, while a burglar with a flashlight robbed her home of $1,700 in jewelry. Her husband was asleep in an adjoining room, but it was not until the burglar had escaped that she ventured to awaken him. Investigation revealed that the robber had gained access to the house by opening the front door with a pass key.

Alfonso Corleliano of 413 West Thirty-first Street and Rocco Toladiano of 429 West Thirty-eighth Street, barbers, were held in $1,000 bail each by Magistrate Corrigan in the Jefferson Market Court on a charge of receiving stolen property. The two were arrested by Detectives Wood and Sullivan of the West Thirtieth Street Station following the arrest two weeks ago in Washington of Ernest Johnson, a negro, who confessed to thirty-seven recent robberies there totaling $50,000 in loot. Corleliano is charged specifically with having received a wrist watch valued at $450, stolen from the apartment of Paul D. Brock in Washington. Toladiano is accused of having in his possession a ring worth $450 and a gold watch valued at $100, the property of W. D. Hoover, President of the National Surety Bank.

THREE BOYS KILLED BY MOTOR TRUCKS

Edward Brinkerhoff, 15 years old, of 1,818 Topping Avenue, the Bronx, was run over and killed last night by a truck at the New Jersey landing of the Dyckman Street ferry. The boy was riding a bicycle and as he neared the ferry swerved to one side in front of the coal truck driven by Dominic Tomasio of 235 Cherry Street, Manhattan. Tomasio was held in the Hackensack jail under $2,500 bonds.

An American Express automobile truck, swinging into the curb in front of 258 First Avenue, near Fifteenth Street, yesterday killed Charles Boyer, 11 years old, of 411 Seventh Street. The driver of the truck professed ignorance of the accident, and, on advice of counsel provided by the company, refused to make a statement. The police were unable to find any witnesses of the death of the boy, who had been roller skating in the street.

Three-year-old Robert Mayer of 423 East Eighty-first Street, died after a Department of Street Cleaning truck ran over him in front of his home. The driver of the city truck was not held.

Charles Hoffmeister, who lived at the Harter Hotel, Jackson Avenue and Third Street, Woodside, L. I., died in St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, from injuries received when he was struck on Oct. 2 by an automobile driven by Edward Ajello of 25 West Hayes Avenue, Corona. An automobile accident in which he figured a week ago caused the death of Harry M. Martin of 573 Bergen Street, Newark, in St. Michael's Hospital, Newark.

HYLAN LEADS 5-MILE COLUMBUS PARADE

BUSTS ARE UNVEILED

Discoverer of America and Roosevelt Are Linked in Celebration at Public School.

Mayor Hylan marched five miles yesterday at the head of the parade arranged by Bronx residents of Italian descent to celebrate the 429th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. The parade was the chief feature of the celebration of Columbus Day, which closed with a meeting of the Knights of Columbus in Carnegie Hall in the evening.

Scores of Italo-American societies took part in the parade. The ranks of the marchers were filled by contingents of pupils from the Bronx schools. Veterans of the Twenty-seventh Division, the Militia Artillery of the Bronx and the Garibaldi Veterans and others were represented.

The parade moved from Morris Avenue and 149th Street to 189th Street and Lorillard Avenue, where, in front of Public School 45, busts of Columbus and the late Theodore Roosevelt were unveiled amid brief speeches.

With the Mayor at the head of the parade were Robert L. Moran, County Clerk of the Bronx; District Attorney Edward J. Glennon of the Bronx, Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso and S. A. Valente, candidate for Judge of General Sessions, and Dr. Pasquale Gadia.

Mayor Hylan marched at the head of the parade along the entire route of five miles. The last few blocks were covered in the face of a shower. The Mayor reviewed the procession at Public School 45. In a brief address he expressed pride in Italy's contribution to American citizenship. Italian-Americans, he said, were law-abiding citizens and when elected to public office discharged their duties ably and efficiently.

In taking up the attacks upon him for the conduct of the public schools because of the number of children on part time, the Mayor said that he had done everything in his power to correct the "negligence of previous administrations."

Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of the Knights of Columbus received the following message of greeting from the Mayor and municipality of Genoa, Italy:

"Remembering your pilgrimage to Rome and to the home of Columbus in Genoa last year, this, the City of Columbus, sends greetings to the Knights of Columbus, and rejoices that you are soon to embark upon important welfare work in Italy."

Edward F. McSweeney, Chairman of the National History Commission of the Knights, sent a Columbus Day message to the K. of C. councils throughout the country, reporting that the initial operations of the movement for the preservation of American history had brought some opposition, but also had received marked approval throughout the country.

MAYOR PRAISES LAGUARDIA.

Capable and Upright Official, He Says of Aldermanic President.

Fiorella H. LaGuardia, Republican President of the Board of Aldermen, was described last night by Mayor Hylan as "one of the best public officials I have ever come in contact with." These laudatory remarks were addressed by the Mayor to nearly 2,000 Italian citizens who attended the twenty-fifth annual charity ball of the Sons of Columbus at the Star Casino, 107th Street and Park Avenue. The function at which the Mayor spoke was part of the Columbus Day celebration in Harlem.

Mayor Hylan said that the Italian people were among the best citizens that we had in New York City. "I have appointed to public office Magistrate Mancuso of Manhattan and Magistrate Lioda of Brooklyn," said the Mayor. "In the Street Clearing Department I appointed Michael Laura of Brooklyn a Commissioner. They have made faithful and efficient public servants.

"One of the best public officials I have ever come in contact with and one of the most capable members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is President LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen. President LaGuardia is honest and painstaking, he is a capable and upright official, and the Italian people of New York City may well be proud of the record he has made.

COLUMBUS DAY AT HAVRE.

23 American Consuls Attend Ceremonies at French Port.

HAVRE, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—Brilliant and picturesque ceremonies today attended the celebration of the discovery of America by this seaport town, which considers itself a stepping stone to the New World.

One of the features of today's celebration was the unveiling of a statue of Francis I., founder of Havre. Senator Brindeau, who delivered the unveiling address, said that Francis I., after learning of Columbus's discovery of America, immediately felt that a great port should be built to bring the heart of France into relation with the newly found world.

Twenty-three Consuls, representing American countries, were present at today's celebration. Each of them received a silver plaque bearing the date of the discovery of America on one side and today's date on the other.

Another feature of the celebration was the affixing of a bronze tablet to what is now the customs office, formerly the private house where General Lafayette stayed before leaving for the United States to take part in the Revolutionary War and where later the sword of honor, voted to him by the American Congress, was presented by a descendant of Benjamin Franklin.

A banquet in the City Hall was arranged for this evening in honor of the American Consuls.

Ambassador Ricci Speaks in Rome.

ROME, Oct. 12.—Vittorio Rolandi Ricci, Ambassador to the United States, and Senator Contarini, Director-General of the Foreign Ministry, presided today at the celebration of Columbus Day. Several speeches were delivered before the Columbus monument on Pincian Hill the orators expressing a desire for a continuation of the close union between Italy and the United States. They urged that Columbus Day be proclaimed a national holiday in Italy. Many wreaths were laid on the Columbus monument.

number of women who appeared was a surprise to the politicians, and the holiday was blamed. The women who did register in this locality went to the polling places shortly after they were opened, in order, apparently, to attend theatres and the movies later on.

In one polling place, where twenty-three persons had registered up to 8:30 o'clock, only three women appeared. In some places the women registrants numbered about one-seventh of the male registration. In the neighborhood of Columbia University women registrants made a better showing. In the Dyckman section few women registered.

Registration dragged decidedly in the Bronx. The sudden change to cool weather discouraged both men and women from standing in line. Many of the registration booths were practically deserted, only a few stragglers appearing.

The following table shows the registration by boroughs for the third day this year, in comparison with earlier years, and the total for the first three days, with similar comparisons:

ing a per capita tax of 1 cent per member each month and there will be special assessments on affiliated bodies in case of strikes and lockouts.

The third convention of the Amalgamated Textile Workers will open in the Labor Temple on Saturday morning, at which time steps will be taken to further the plan. The union also will take up the question of levying assessments to bolster up its treasury and create a defense fund to carry on its fight against the "open shop" and wage reductions.

The resignation of A. J. Muste as General Secretary of the Amalgamated was announced last night, and his successor is to be chosen by the convention. Muste is going to engage in education work at the Brookwood Labor College, Katonah, N. Y.

Important Centres Affected.

The Amalgamated, according to Secretary Russell, embraces a membership of textile wage earners in all important woolen manufacturing towns of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and New York, including the Cities of New York and Philadelphia. It also includes the silk workers of New York, New Jersey, particularly in the City of Paterson and in Hudson County and Allentown, Pa.

"The Amalgamated was formed as the result of the collapse of the Industrial Workers of the World in the Paterson strike in 1919," Mr. Russell explained. "We decided to form a radical and progressive organization designed to lay down a broad program of industrial unionism, and on that program bring together all the wide-awake elements among the workers who wanted a practical union that would get somewhere.

"We have invited into our membership the I. W. W. and workers of all classes in an effort to get the textile industry solidly organized."

The Amalgamated is engaged in one strike in this city, said Mr. Russell. This is in the trimming industry, where between 2,500 and 3,000 workers have walked out in protest against a 20 per cent. wage reduction. Two other strikes are being waged in New England against working conditions—in the Stillwater Worsted Mills, Harrisville, R. I., and at the Slater Worsted Mills, Webster, Mass.

OPPOSE VALUATION PLAN.

Americans in Paris Say Tariff Provision Would Hamper Trade.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—Opposition to the clauses of the Fordney Tariff bill providing for American valuation of imports was announced by the American Chamber of Commerce here today after careful consideration of the measure.

The Chamber claims the clauses must handicap and prevent the free exchange of goods. It contends it would be difficult for American importers to ascertain the complete cost of their foreign purchases until received in the United States, and also that it would be difficult for foreign shippers to make quotations.

Suggestions that a flat increase duty would be preferable to the valuation clauses are put forward by the Chamber, which says it feels the United States should foster and encourage the flow of goods between itself and other countries, as "an unimpaired flow of goods is the only means of creating funds for the purchase of those American commodities of which other nations stand in need."

there under the eye of the Government if we have anything to conceal. There is nothing in it but love of country and pure Americanism."

The charge that the Klan sought to obtain officers of the law as members was characterized by the Imperial Wizard "as a tremendous indictment against the honor of American citizenship." Denying that the Klan incited to riot, he declared no riot had occurred in any city where the Klan had representation.

"The Ku Klux Klan is purely a Protestant and non-political organization," he said. "It does not seek political power. It has offered big rewards for capture of lawbreakers posing as klansmen, and its records show where it has provided substantial aid for those needing it. In the six years I have been with the order, I have received only $12,000, and my Atlanta home was the gift of members, most of whom subscribed less than a dollar. If the Ku Klux were a lawless band there would not be such a growth of membership, including leading citizens of many communities, East and West.

Denying that officials of the organization received large sums as salaries, or bonuses, Mr. Simmons said:

"We are spending the surplus money of the Klan in further building and enlargement of Lanier University, Atlanta, Ga. We have spent, and are spending, on Lanier University the sum of $150,000.

Replies to Intolerance Charge.

"The charge is made that we are organized to preach and teach religious intolerances and especially that we are anti-Roman Catholic, anti-Jew and anti-negro," Mr. Simmons continued. "The works of the Klan prove this absolutely untrue. Many alleged outrages have been attributed to the Klan, but none of these was against Roman Catholics, Jews and negroes per se and none were committed by the Klan."

Declaring that the attacks against the Klan were originated and started by The New York World, the witness said:

"The World is the stronghold of the Democratic newspapers and the Democratic Party, and it has been said by those in a position to know that if The World could by shrewd propaganda and untruthful slanders force a Republican Congress and Administration to throttle or destroy a purely loyal American Protestant fraternal organization, as is the Ku Klux Klan, its hundreds of thousands of members, friends and those who think as does the Klan would at the polls three years from now forget party lines and preference and vote the Democratic ticket."

Referring to "attacks on the Klan by Hearst newspapers," Mr. Simmons, turning toward C. Anderson Wright, a former Klansman, who wrote a series of articles about the organization, said:

"Just as Judas betrayed Christ for 30 pieces of silver, so there was found by the Hearst paper C. Anderson Wright, a former Klansman, who for money betrayed his oath. My information is that the Hearst papers paid this man $5,000 cash and $100 a week as long as he worked on the stories, and also agreed to protect him from any damage suits and other legal action resulting from his libelous stories, these stories being false from start to finish."

"$75,000 Palace" Dwindles.

Paul J. Etheridge of Atlanta, who described himself as supreme attorney of the Klan, declared that Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler of Atlanta had no relation with the imperial body, and, according to his information, was with the propagating department.

"If Mrs. Tyler has had any control over the organization, it has been outside of my knowledge," the witness said.

Referring to published reports that several teachers in Atlanta were defeated for re-election by the School Board "because they were Catholics," Etheridge declared there was no truth in it. "There was not a klansman on the board," he testified.

"The $75,000 palace" of Mrs. Tyler at Atlanta, described yesterday by Wright, dwindled to a "$10,000 structure" today on testimony of O. B. Williamson, a Post Office inspector. Williamson said investigation showed the house was purchased by Mrs. Tyler prior to her connection with the Klan, and that no part of Ku Klux money was used in the deal.

Wright reiterated that the "palace" was a fine structure, and that Clarke, the imperial kleagle, who lives there, kept a fleet of seven motor cars. Wright told the committee that already he had received $2,000 from the Hearst organization, and that he expected his total receipts from the series to reach about $5,000. Replying to questions from Representative Pou, Democrat, of North Carolina, the witness explained again that he had violated the oath taken in joining the Klan by publishing articles about its secrets.

SAY GUNMEN HARASS KLAN.

Leaders Disclose That Officials Are Guarded in Atlanta.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 12.—That gunmen from New York have been sent to Atlanta to kill officers of the Ku Klux Klan, and that they were responsible for the attack last night upon the life of Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler of the Propaganda Department and head of the Woman's Department, was the declaration today by leaders of the organization.

According to Imperial Kleagle Edward Young Clarke, who has resigned his position, but holds office until his successor is appointed, he was informed several days ago by S. L. Savage, former New York detective, now chief investigator of the Klan, that these men had been sent to Atlanta. Since that time a guard of two men has been set over Mr. Clarke, and guards also have been assigned to the home of Mrs. Tyler. The fact that one of the guards assigned to the Tyler home was late in arriving made possible the attack of Tuesday night, it is stated.

Detroit Bars Klan Parade.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 12.—A Ku Klux Klan demonstration in Detroit on Thanksgiving Day, which it had been rumored W. J. Simmons, Imperial Wizard, was to attend, was outlawed today by the Common Council. John C. Lodge, President of the Council, announced that the Police Department would be instructed to regard as peace disturbers members of the Klan who attempted to parade.

Preacher Resigns From Klan.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12.—The Ku Klux Klan has lost a Kleagle. He is the Rev. William L. Brandon, pastor of the Baptist Church at Braymer, Mo. He sent a letter to Imperial Wizard Simmons denouncing the invisible empire and resigning. Mr. Brandon recently returned from Oregon, where he conducted a series of religious debates in which he attacked Catholicism. The debates were not held under the auspices of the Klan, but Mr. Brandon believed when he joined the Klan that his religious beliefs were those advocated by the Klan. Instead, the Klansmen put him on trial and warned him not to discuss his beliefs publicly. No attempt at punishment was made, he said.

Killed In Kentucky Moonshine Raid

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 12.—Two prohibition enforcement officers were shot and a man accused as a moonshiner was killed in a raid on a cabin near Bardstown, Ky., early today. L. H. Gilbert of Louisville and N. E. Reed of Edmonton County were shot through the legs when they attempted to destroy a still in the cabin. As they entered the structure they were fired upon from the brush. The fire was returned and Arthur Burman, a farmer, fell dead. Two of his companions were taken prisoners.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

Seized Papers Show That Hundreds of Cases Went to Clubs, Cafes and Homes.

SIX HELD IN $104,000 DEAL

Charge Is Made That They Were Trying to Obtain 2,000 Cases on Forged Permits.

With the arrest in Long Island City last week of six men charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government in an alleged whisky deal involving $104,000, Hugh McQuillan, head of the Special Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, came into possession of papers showing the delivery of large quantities of liquor to clubs, restaurants and homes, including some apartment houses in Park Avenue, near Fiftieth Street.

The papers, according to Mr. McQuillan, were found in the possession of Charles S. Kurtzman of Pelham Manor, one of the six arrested, who described himself as a broker and asserted he had no connection with a bootlegging ring. Most of the papers, it was said, are in the form of delivery slips, apparently given to truck drivers, giving the quantity of whisky and the name of the person to whom it was to be delivered. In some cases the price to be paid was shown on the slip and other details for the guidance of the delivery man.

Of special interest were the instructions for the delivery of three cases of "Old Taylor" to a restaurant on Lafayette Street, not far from the Criminal Courts Building, as follows: "Deliver Lafayette Street side if policeman is there. O. K. afternoon to 6 P. M., morning after 7 A. M."

Prices for the liquor, according to the memorandum, ranged from $82 to $87 a case. The whisky, when purchased from the distillery, according to Mr. McQuillan, costs the bootlegger $24.50 a case, and from a wholesaler about $30 a case. Whisky brought in from other countries is higher, it was said.

Deliveries were made to individuals throughout Manhattan, Brooklyn, the Bronx and Queens, according to the memorandum. Prominent clubs and restaurants in the heart of the theatrical district also received a large quantity of liquors, it is shown. One slip indicates that six cases of whisky were delivered to a yacht club on Gravesend Bay. Twenty-five cases went to an address on Madison Avenue, "Opposite School."

Below are other whisky deliveries disclosed on the delivery slips, as announced by Mr. McQuillan, with the names and street numbers withheld:

Restaurant, Sixth Avenue near Forty-second Street, five cases; West Forty-seventh Street, ten cases; Amsterdam Avenue near Eighty-eighth Street, five cases; Stanhope Street, Brooklyn, ten cases; lower Washington Street, forty cases; Sidney Place, Brooklyn, fifteen cases, for which $1,230 was paid; Forty-second Street near Eighth Avenue, ten cases; Eighth Avenue near Forty-fourth Street, twenty-five cases; Eighth Avenue near Thirtieth Street, twenty-five cases; private apartment, West 119th Street, twenty-five cases; Throop Avenue, Brooklyn, thirty cases at $86 a case; office building in Broadway not far from Twenty-third Street, thirty cases; West Thirty-sixth Street, fifty cases; Park Avenue apartment house, five cases. Besides Old Taylor, the slips showed deliveries of Haig & Haig, "Old Crow," gin and wine, &c.

The men arrested in Long Island City were Charles S. Kurtzman of 49 Lyden Avenue, Pelham Manor; James, alias "Greek," Williams of Mount Kisco; Nicholas Biley, 43 East Twenty-seventh Street; Mitchell Kalmowitz, 574 West 175th Street; Joseph Gans, 60 Pontingo Street, Port Chester, and Murray M. Himwich, a lawyer, 2,380 Creston Avenue, the Bronx. All the men are out on $5,000 bail. They are charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government by the use of forged permits. They were arrested while they were attempting to obtain, it is charged, 2,000 cases of whisky involving $104,000 on forged permits. Kurtzman, according to Mr. McQuillan, has made many fruitless efforts to regain possession of the papers seized at the time of the arrests.

MARIAN M'ARDLE FREE IN KABER MURDER PLOT

Plea of 'Mother Love' Offset Conspiracy Evidence, Says Foreman of Mixed Jury.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—Marian McArdle, 20 years old, daughter of Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, was found not guilty of complicity in the murder of Daniel Kaber, her stepfather, by a jury today. Miss McArdle was permitted to leave the courtroom a free girl immediately after the jury reported.

The jury of nine men and three women had the case under deliberation since late yesterday afternoon. The jury reported an agreement shortly before noon, after being out nineteen hours. When they failed to agree on a verdict late last night they were locked up in a hotel, and resumed deliberation of the case at 8:30 o'clock this morning. Eight ballots were taken, the three women members of the jury standing solidly for acquittal throughout.

Miss McArdle's plea of "mother love" offset in the minds of the jurors the evidence introduced by the State in its attempt to prove her a conspirator in the murder plot in which her invalid stepfather was stabbed to death, according to W. W. Britton, Foreman of the jury.

"We felt that Marian committed no criminal act in guarding her mother's secret and that she did the only natural thing for a daughter to do—what any devoted daughter would do for her mother," Britton said after the verdict was read.

Miss McArdle stood pale and weary at the trial table as the verdict was read. She had spent a restless night in her cell and the strain of the trial was written sharply on her features.

When the words "not guilty" were read by the Clerk of the Court, her lips quivered and tears rolled down her cheeks as she realized she was free. She was quickly surrounded by a group of her schoolgirl friends and others, who congratulated her with kisses and handclasps.

Overcome with emotion, she sought out all the members of the jury and thanked them. "I certainly am grateful," she said, as she passed from one juror to another. When she reached the first of the woman jurors, Mrs. Anna Livingston, she kissed her.

CARTOONISTS AID HAYS.

Seek, In Postal Bulletin, to Educate Public About Mailing.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—For the first time in its history The Postal Bulletin, published daily for the information of the officials and employes of the Post Office Department, appeared today with a cartoon on the first page. The cartoon was the first of a series from the pens of noted newspaper cartoonists whose aid Postmaster General Hays has enlisted in an effort to drive home to the public some facts about the proper addressing of mail, early mailing and preparations for the Christmas rush.

The Postmaster General said he wanted particularly to impress on the public the need for proper and legible addressing and the importance of that to improve service.

Some Studies in the Science of Investment—No. 3

Is Your Money a Plaything?

There are games of chance and skill. Some are played for fun, some for stakes.

Some games are characterized as investments, some are designated less kindly.

We sell first mortgages guaranteed by the Bond & Mortgage Guarantee Company. For us it is a game of skill and chance, our skill in selecting the mortgages, our chance in being mistaken. The Bond & Mortgage Guarantee Company carries the risk. For you it is a sure thing.

If you are looking for excitement, there is no great fun in our game. It is one of the "sure things" that never loses and you know the outcome in advance.

You can buy these mortgage investments in any amount even as low as $200.

YOM KIPPUR PLEAS FOR DISARMAMENT

SAYS SENTIMENT WILL WIN

Synagogues Crowded Until Sundown —Prayers in Memory of the Late Jacob H. Schiff.

Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, was observed by the Jews, both orthodox and reformed, all over the city yesterday, the orthodox Jews having fasted from sundown Tuesday until sundown yesterday. All the synagogues were thronged, and there were many improvised places of worship on the east side, in Harlem and the Bronx. In the Ohab Sedek and other congregations special prayers were offered in memory of the late Jacob H. Schiff.

Rabbi Joseph Silverman, speaking at the Atonement Day services at Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, said that the success of the coming conference on the limitation of armaments depended in the last analysis upon the individual citizen. He pointed out that what the Church, the various social and political groups, or what capital or labor might say on the subject of disarmament would be of little avail, so long as the individual refused to disarm by casting aside underlying selfish desires that engendered combativeness.

"Selfish man, with his spiritual belligerency bristling out, is a walking arsenal against which 300 delegates to the conference cannot prevail," Dr. Silverman said. "The conferes can legislate, but they cannot enforce their legislation unless they can depend upon the men and women of the world." He warned against those who seek world disarmament for selfish motives, adding:

"These are: the Socialist or Bolshevist who desires it only as a means of weakening resistance against the overthrow of duly constituted authority; labor that supports it for the purpose of undermining the opposition of capital to the further encroachments of labor; or capital that has no sincere desire for complete disarmament.

All Must Disarm.

"They must all disarm. The attitude of the social reformer is very important. Universal disarmament is not practicable with those who do not desire it for the welfare of the world, but for their own supremacy. If the Bolshevists really seek the welfare of the world they must first disarm themselves. They must do away with the Red flag, abandon all attempts to overthrow regular Government and come forward not as the enemies but as the friends of government.

"Capital and labor are the two greatest forces of humanity and mutually necessary to one another's existence. They stand arrayed in belligerent attitude to one another, organized labor under the suspicion that it seeks disarmament to weaken the Government, capital suspected of desiring a limited armament in order to perpetuate some sort of militaristic organization protecting its own interests.

"Neither of these forces is of much value to the Government unless each agrees to disarm. The strike and the lockout must be done away with and in their place arbitration substituted. If nations arbitrate, then why not capital and labor, the backbone of nations?"

Since the making of the Hay Treaty, 3,353 international disputes had been settled by arbitration, Rabbi Silverman said. "Disarmament has a patriotic appeal for us since our country has invited the nations of the world to assemble their delegates at Washington on Armistice Day and discuss the question," he continued, "but no general ever won a war alone. He depended upon his army and the morale of the army depended upon the spirit of the country. We who will not be at Washington must do our part in the preparatory work.

Gentlemen by Force of Law.

"From now until Nov. 11 throughout the country men and women must devote themselves to creating unanimous sentiment in favor of world disarmament. The question will not be settled by argument, but by psychology. Nations discount the peace professions of one another when coupled with an increase in armies and navies. We have had nations that spoke openly in amicable terms while preparing secretly for the overthrow of the world. If one man may carry concealed weapons, then all men may carry them. Dueling, once considered honorable, has been changed by law to a crime. We have become gentlemen by force of the law. If so, then why should nations be permitted to violate the very law that they force upon their citizens?"

Dr. Jacob Kohn of Temple Ansche Chesed, Seventh Avenue and 114th Street, in his Yom Kippur sermon also touched upon the coming conference at Washington, saying that its ends would be achieved if humanity condescended to make sacrifices.

"Judaism teaches that man cannot reconcile himself with God through mere sacrifice," Rabbi Kohn said. "Only conformity to the demands of a high morality can work such reconciliation. The formula of the great prophets must be embodied in life—'to do justice and love mercy and walk humbly with God.' We are looking forward with high hopes to the coming conference in which our country seeks to be the pathfinder to international justice as against the dominance of brute force. Will not such a conference make its appeal to the spirit of sacrifice? Will it not demand that in the interests of that higher justice to which civilization is groping its way the nations sacrifice national pride, imperial ambition and inherited passions and prejudices?

In an Atonement Day sermon at Temple Israel, Lenox Avenue and 120th Street, the Rev. Dr. M. H. Harris, whose text was "My Brother's Keeper," said in part: "Every sin can be explained as a form of selfishness; even those failings that seem only to tend to one's own detriment will be found to involve the fate of others. The idler who spends his life in sloth, to that extent withholds his contribution to the common weal. He who indulges in depraved tastes injures by his example and transmits his depravity to posterity."

Dr. Bernard Drachman, speaking on Kol Nidre evening at the First Hungarian Congregation of Ohab Zedek, 18 West 116th Street, said that the universal observance of Yom Kippur was an impressive demonstration of the vitality and power of Judaism to the whole world. He pleaded for further aid from the public for the "worried and harassed directors of our relief committees," saying that if the Jews of the country would give to the cause of worldwide benevolence as much as they spend on motion pictures, the annual total would exceed the entire amount hitherto raised—$40,000,000.

TWO DEAD IN AUTO CRASH.

Five More Bronx Men Hurt at Westport, Conn.

NORWALK, Conn., Oct. 12.—Gerson Douglas and Alexander Anderson, both of the Bronx, New York City, are dead, the victims of an automobile crash against a telegraph pole at Nash's crossing, Westport, late last night. Douglas died a moment after he was hurled out of the machine and Anderson expired in the Norwalk Hospital this morning. Five others of the party are in the hospital, but it is stated that apparently none is seriously hurt.

They gave their names as Louis Elkan, Sol Forft, Israel Edelson, Edward Bebarfald and John Elcholz, all of the Bronx.

At this manufacturing plant, where hundreds of skilled tailors are employed —we inaugurate a most unusual money-saving event for New York men.

Here's a new and positive way to reduce your clothes costs. It's common sense; any man can see the reason for the saving.

The deal covers an order for a suit and an overcoat combined. It's a combination proposition.

You let us send your order for a suit and overcoat through our shops at one and the same time, to be tailored from the same measures. One handling instead of two; a big saving in labor, detail, overhead.

In a nutshell, we reduce your costs by reducing our own. We couldn't offer you this saving if the garments were already made up, like those in a clothing store. The saving comes in the making—in making two garment orders for the same man at the same time!

Selling direct as we do, in large volume at our manufacturing plant, a Royal price is always bedrock. But here's a plan that enables us to underquote even our own manufacturing prices on your Winter clothes needs.

LEGATEE COLLAPSES IN GRISWOLD CASE

Mrs. Drischman, Hard Pressed by Cross-Examiner, Begs Him Not to 'Knock Her So Hard.'

$45,000 IN COMMISSIONS

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 12.—Under cross-examination today by former Judge C. L. Cole, chief of counsel for the Countess Anna St. Clair de Contubia, Mrs. Mary M. Drischman, wife of a former Atlantic City butcher, chief beneficiary under the will of Alice Gerry Griswold, which is being contested here, broke down, and a recess was taken until she could compose herself. This incident happened when the woman, under whose administration the estate, that has been estimated at from $500,000 to $750,000, in the hearings on the appeal of the titled daughter to prevent probate of her mother's will, dwindled to $80,000, was being interrogated concerning "mistakes" in testimony she had given.

The witness became so confused that she was unable to tell her own age, saying it might be "48 or 58 years." She admitted she had made five errors in statements while on the stand several days ago.

Earlier in the day Dr. L. H. Bewley, a shore physician, testified that he had attended Mrs. Griswold from 1915 to 1917 and that "most of the time she was more or less hazy from drugs."

When she took the stand for the defense, Mrs. Drischman denied the stories told by Mrs. Griswold to friends that she had fed drugs to Mrs. Griswold.

Under the re-direct examination by Judges Cole and Shinn, the witness admitted she had made mistakes in her testimony about the disposition of fine pieces of jewelry belonging to Mrs. Griswold. Judge Cole questioned her concerning a $2,000 tailor bill she had paid.

"Oh I bought clothes there for my two nephews, my husband and Charley Miller," she responded. Miller had been in her employ for many years before she made him an attendant to Mrs. Griswold.

"And paid for them with Mrs. Griswold's money?" pressed counsel.

"Mrs. Griswold wanted Charley to have the clothes, as she insisted that he be smartly dressed to be her chauffeur," she answered.

"Did Mrs. Griswold buy clothes for your husband and nephews?" inquired Judge Cole.

"No, Judge, I guess I made a mistake on that," replied Mrs. Drischman.

The witness often begged for time to collect her thoughts, and once almost shouted:

"Oh, Judge, don't knock me so hard!"

She admitted having read a letter from Mrs. Griswold to the Countess in which the Baltimore woman said she wanted to see her daughter. Asked why she had not admitted this when on the stand on Monday, she replied: "Well, I was confused then."

Asked about Mrs. Griswold's frequently expressed desire to go back to Europe, Mrs. Drischman said she had often heard her say so, but she couldn't go "because she didn't have any money." Later the witness admitted disposing of some of the Griswold jewels to finance the trip and of using the money derived for other purposes.

"How much did you take in commissions from the Griswold estate during your management as trustee?" Judge Cole asked Mrs. Drischman.

"Judge, I couldn't say," she replied. "The books will show."

"Did you make a return to the Government?"

Mrs. Drischman replied in the affirmative when it was explained that the question referred to her income tax return.

LAUDER VISITS SING SING.

Comedian Says He Expected to Find Inmates Out on a Holiday.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Sir Harry Lauder was applauded by prisoners who packed the Sing Sing chapel today when he said that he had come to see them because they couldn't come to see him.

Lauder, who is about to begin a theatrical tour, sang several songs, told stories and spoke briefly. He told the men that on the way to the prison he met a friend who asked him where he was going. "I am going to Sing Sing," he said, "but I won't be in for long." "As this is a holiday," he continued, "I didn't expect you to be here. I expected to find you all out. It's a great pleasure to be here. I have been in this business for a long while. I am of the opinion that there are lots of men and women in the world who have never had the best in them tapped. We can all do something good if we try."

Lauder sang several of his songs, and had the inmates join in the chorus. He said that he had visited Sing Sing at the suggestion of Sir Thomas Lipton.

Made like the Coats of Animals that Revel in Extreme Cold
Authorities state that no wild animals known resemble the wool-bearing sheep; it is believed that sheep could not survive the cold of an Arctic winter. Chase Plush Motor Robes are woven from selected animal hair to afford maximum protection for motorists.

Motor Robes ~Warm and Durable that fascinate because of their Style

IF YOU are particular about the robe that goes into your car, examine Chase Plush Motor Robes before you make a definite selection.

Chase Plush Motor Robes are unequalled for warmth. They are "made like the coats of animals that revel in extreme cold"—made of especially-selected animal hair which is the protection that Nature gives her animals that must withstand the rigors of below-zero weather without shelter.

The hair used in Chase Plush Motor Robes is carefully treated to make it soft and pleasant to the touch.

According to the New International Encyclopaedia, there is no wild animal known with a coat which resembles that of the wool-bearing sheep. The seal, walrus, reindeer, musk ox, polar bear, arctic fox and wolf, ermine—EVERY wild animal is protected by a coat of hair, not by wool, which, according to the same authority is partially the result of sheep receiving protection from the inclemencies of the weather.

Hair, therefore, as used in weaving Chase Plush Motor Robes is a natural protection and Nature's best protection from the cold.

You have a wealth of colors and patterns to select from in Chase Plush Motor Robes. Should you favor plain colors there are rich greys, sparkling reds, regal blues, sombre browns, lustrous blacks and other colors and shades in almost endless variety.

If you fancy a plaid motor robe you must see the Chase Scotch designs. New and attractive colors have been daringly combined; the rich lustre of Chase plush enhances the beauty of the colors.

Chase Plush Motor Robes are priced to meet your ideas of what a motor robe should cost. Whatever you pay for a Chase Plush Motor Robe you get more actual value—greater warmth and longer usefulness—than the same sum will buy in a motor robe made of any other material.

The black and gold Chase label is sewed on the corner of every genuine Chase Plush Motor Robe. The better dealers everywhere carry or can get them for you.

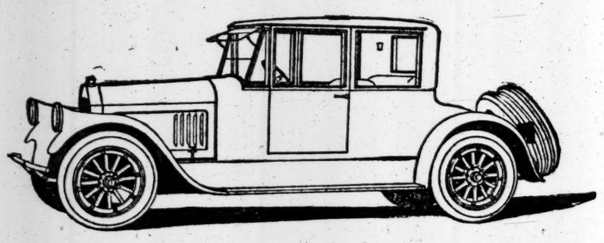
The only way to really know



Pierce-Arrow

Said a demonstrator connected with the factory: "If I can get a prospect in this car and run him around a bit, I can sell him."

That is the present state of mind of every man who has had anything to do with the making of Pierce-Arrow. He is sure the car will sell itself.

The feeling the car gives the man who rides in it the first time is unmistakable. Driving would be better than riding, but even the passenger gets that sense of ample power, of ease and responsiveness and elasticity the Dual-Valve engine makes possible.

The Dual-Valve is not new, but the three years since it was new have been judiciously used. It is better. The car that depends upon it is better. The body designs reflect the qualities the engine gives the car and they are full of convenience and comforts.

Only a personal inspection can show you what these things are and what they mean to you.

FAILS TO GET ROLE; TAKES CHLOROFORM

AUTO KILLED MOTHER HERE

Was Buried Under Forged Permit—Daughter, Still Living, Wanted Parrot in Coffin With Her.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Charlotte Cailless, 42 years old, said to be a singer of some repute in Germany, attempted to end her life by swallowing two ounces of chloroform tonight at the Congress Hotel.

She left two letters, one addressed to Harold McCormick, chief backer of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and one to George M. Spangler, manager, in which she made arrangements for her burial in case of death.

A maid passing the room occupied by Miss Cailless heard moans. She notified the house physician, who broke in the door. For several moments the singer refused to let Dr. Joseph Blake administer an antidote. She refused to give any reason for trying to end her life other than that she was "ready to die."

She has made repeated attempts to get a position in the Chicago Grand Opera Company since her arrival from Europe. Her condition is critical.

At the hospital there were found in Miss Cailless's dress several documents, among them a naturalization paper, a cemetery lot certificate and a note to Mr. Spangler.

"I pray that Mr. Harold F. McCormick will send my body to New York to my parents' grave in Evergreen," it read. "Grant me this consolation, to be spared further humiliation."

A postscript asked that her parrot be chloroformed, so that it might be her "faithful companion" in her coffin.

Miss Charlotte Cailles is the daughter of Mrs. Anna A. Cailless, who was run down and killed by a taxicab in this city two years ago and was buried in Kensico Cemetery under a forged burial permit. It was two months before Miss Cailless finally traced the body of her mother to the cemetery. According to the stories told to the authorities then, an adjuster for a taxicab company paid an undertaker a small sum for the burial. An investigation followed, with reforms in the regulations covering the disposal of bodies of unidentified accident victims. A suit for $50,000 is pending.

GUARD TROOPS IN REVIEW.

225 Enlisted Tuesday in Campaign to Get 4,000 Recruits.

As part of the campaign for National Guard recruits several detachments from city units marched yesterday in review before Adjutant Gen. J. Leslie Kincaid and W. Ward Smith, Governor Miller's secretary, at 168th Street and Broadway.

The number of recruits was 225 on Tuesday, a drop of fifty from the total enlisted on Monday, the first day of the campaign. Officers hope to enroll about 4,000 in this city this week, to bring the National Guard up to a strength of 24,000. About 2,000 are sought in other cities in the State.

KANSAS CITY THEATRE WAR.

Two Seats for $2 Said to Be Forerunner of General Slashing.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12.—Which do the theatregoers prefer—two seats for the price of one, or one seat for the price of two? The question was being asked around town yesterday when it became known that "Smooth as Silk," the comedy in which Taylor Holmes is appearing at the Grand, an Erlanger house, this week, was being offered at the cut rate.

Sunday 10,000 red and yellow coupons were distributed in Kansas City, giving their holders the privilege of buying two first floor seats for $2, plus the war tax. The result was that the theatre was crowded.

Louis Miller, publicity agent of the Grand, said the two-for-one privilege would prevail all this week.

Meanwhile, a different story is being heard about the Shubert, where Florence Reed is appearing in Edgar Selwyn's stirring drama, "The Mirage." There tickets for best seats cost $2.50 each, plus the war tax. The result is that a first-rate attraction is playing to many empty seats.

Old-time theatregoers say that the Grand's method is the forerunner of another price-slashing war between A. L. Erlanger and his old rivals, the Shuberts.

"It will be war to the hilt this time," said a theatrical man yesterday. "There's never been a sudden season than this for theatrical people. The best of stars and the best of plays are practically starving."

GIUSEPPE DANISE SINGS.

Baritone Gives Delight in Spanish Serenades at Town Hall.

Giuseppe Danise, distinguished among last season's newcomers at the Metropolitan, gave an evening of baritone songs at the Town Hall last night before an audience of his Italian countrymen in the holiday mood of Columbus Day. Designated as his "first song recital in New York," the program was operatic as to its leading aria, Verdi's "Eri Tu," from "Masked Ball," while the half dozen lighter songs might have cheered a Sunday night on Broadway. The singer twice yielded the stage to a young assisting artist, Nina Wulfe, who played neatly the vanishing harmonics of Wienlawski's "Souvenir de Moscow."

Mr. Danise's singing in French of Paladilhe's "Psyche" was perhaps his most striking departure from the familiar field. He was delightful in Spanish serenades, "La Partida" of Alvarez, given mezza voce in its proper tongue, and "Notte di Spagna" of Massenet, sung in Italian. A Neapolitan encore of robust style, expansive humor and many little vocal flourishes recalled the manner of Caruso. There were also Tosti's "Malia" and Rossini's "Tarantella."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Mad Dog," a play by George Scarborough, has been placed in rehearsal by the Shuberts. Conway Tearle and Helen Menken will have the leading roles.

"Good Morning, Dearie," a musical comedy by Anne Caldwell and Jerome Kern, was produced in Atlantic City last night by Charles B. Dillingham. The cast included Louise Groody, Oscar Shaw, Harland Dixon, William Kent, Ada Lewis and others.

Do you know that, aside from the regular $1.50 Table d'Hote Dinner and the comprehensive a la carte list, with its many famous Hungarian specialities, it is possible to eliminate the bother of selecting some special dinner for any particular price you may feel like paying, at The Cafe Boulevard?
Think what it means, if you are entertaining a party of friends, to be able to merely say to the head waiter:—"Select a nice dinner for us to cost so much each," and then to know you are going to get full value as well as a careful selection of dishes specially prepared.

THE WOMEN'S DUTY.

In many Republican districts the women voters have registered in greater numbers than the men, and in many districts, apparently, the Republican women have gone to the polls more multitudinously than their Democratic sisters. It is still early in the week, however. There are three days more of registration, and not till its close can it be judged with some accuracy whether hope or disappointment for the restoration of civilized municipal government at the City Hall is justified.

Meanwhile, generous as has been the answer of the women to their great opportunity and duty, it must be larger yet. In particular, the considerable number of prosperous women who have not returned from their summer homes should make it a point to come to town long enough to get their names on the list. Every vote may be needed, and of all voters those in fortunate circumstances are most unpardonable if they neglect the responsibilities of citizenship.

This is the first municipal election in which the women have been permitted to participate. Theirs is a grave responsibility. For long years of agitation, while the movement destined to be so triumphant was still doubtful, its advocates told us again and again that it would be a high political and civic benefit; that reform and purer government were sure to be born of it. This city is in sorely proved need of reform and purer and more effective government. The suffragists were firmly persuaded of the invincible truth of their promises and expectations. The registration figures will be a practical test of that truth. The women have done wonderfully well already, and we only ask them to keep on doing till the last minute of registration Saturday.

BIPARTISAN TAXES.

The Republicans are winning famous victories all along the line and every day nowadays by passing Democratic amendments to their proposals. These compromises by surrender to the political enemy are the necessary result of the discovery that the country was displeased with the Republican defection from Republican principles in the House Tax bill, and more displeased with the Senate Republicans' similar forgetfulness of platforms and promises. The Republicans of both houses preferred to please themselves rather than the people they represent, and sought to impose schemes of both customs and internal taxes dictated by new "interests" instead of national interests. Nothing is more striking in the Washington debates than the absence of the national and patriotic note, and the dominance of arguments which might be forgiven in a horse trade, but which are abhorrent in a legislative body supposed to be animated by patriotism as expressed by party principles. There are only faint traces of either principles or patriotism in what Congress has done.

Take the attitude of the Senate toward Senator SMOOT'S appeal for the manufacturers' sales tax as an example. The demand of the country for it and the country's protest against the taxes which it would replace are unmistakable. The committee which rejected it filed a report showing that $197,000,000 is now collected by a discriminating set of sales taxes which are offensive for the manner in which they are levied rather than for the manner in which they are collected. Senator SMOOT proposes to correct the levy by making it universal and by preventing the duplication and reduplication. It would be collected at the time when business is done, and could be calculated by a schoolboy. It would displace a system of taxes which is in arrears through the complicated process of audit back to 1917, and would not be collected on the profits of a good year in a following year of losses, in the manner which now embarrasses many businesses. As Senator SMOOT said, there is no meritorious argument against it, and the only reason why it is not adopted is that the politicians do not think that it would be popular.

The bills proposed by both houses have the defect that they treat the surtaxes as something to be settled by the votes of Congress rather than by the calculations of investors. The point at which the income surtaxes will be productive of taxes, and not destructive of the growth and investment of capital, is the point fixed by calculations of what the tax would leave to those taxed in comparison with what they would realize by using their option of investment in tax-free securities. None of the several percentages of surtax under discussion has anything to do with the matter. They are irrelevant to any proper system of taxation, as much so as theories of redistributing wealth by penalizing it, which have broken down on proof that the theories do more harm than good. The blocs and the parties might as well repeal arithmetic as proceed with their proposals regarding the income surtaxes.

PROPAGANDA VS. EDUCATION.

President HARDING, in his excellent message to the Press Congress of the World now in session in Hawaii, turns lexicographer, for a paragraph or two, to our general edification. Dictionaries are very slow in noting changes that come over old words in their popular usage or in admitting newcomers. Immigrant words or meanings have to undergo a period of naturalization and minor words to grow up before they come into full verbal citizenship. "Normalcy," for example, is still, in the view of Webster, a "minor," being placed in the space set apart for "minor words and foreign words and phrases." But a President may confer such citizenship by the decree of his own definition, and a President who has been an editor is more likely to recognize merit in words and meanings which have come into daily use.

So, in his definitions of "propaganda" and "education," the President no longer finds them synonymous, as CRABB might have done a hundred years ago, in connoting merely the "spread" of information or knowledge; for, as the President insists, "propaganda," with all its patriotic devoutness during the war, and its well-intentioned aspiration for the salvation of the best in human society, has now a diametrically opposite purpose from that which "education" has. While the latter's aim is to open the mind, to make it receptive and to urge it to form its own conclusions, "propaganda" aims primarily "at shutting up the mind against other conclusions than those which the propagandists aim to implant." As defined in their effects upon human minds, education (it being assumed that it is properly employed) shows itself in intellectual stimulus, while "propaganda" results, at last, in "intellectual paralysis."

It is a discerning sense of these definitions which have not yet come into the dictionaries that the press of a democracy must have, and perpetually hold against all temptation, if it is to deserve the President's conclusion that, in the work of education, in which common men give serious, continuous, effective consideration to the problems of common men, "no single force or influence of which we now know can be expected to exert so great a potency as the press."

BULLYING THE LEAGUE.

Before the finding of the Council of the League of Nations upon the division of Upper Silesia between Poland and Germany has been officially promulgated some of our British friends, near enough to the Government to make their utterances worthy of a certain degree of attention, raise the outcry that the decision, of which we have knowledge only through unofficial intimations, is all wrong, and that, inasmuch as the reputation and perhaps the "future existence of the League" are involved in this matter, the consequences to the League itself may be serious. The consequences to the peace of Europe and possibly to the Lloyd George Government, should the opinions thus expressed become the basis of Ministerial policy, would almost certainly be serious.

The persons from whom these views emanate would like to see the British Government play politics with the Silesian question. There has been too much of that already. At the Peace Conference Mr. LLOYD GEORGE for a time favored satisfying Polish demands in respect to the partitioning of Upper Silesia; then he suddenly shifted his position, and from that time the British Government has been Germany's best friend and champion in demanding for the Germans practically all of Upper Silesia that is worth having. The motives of this policy are well enough understood, and have been often alluded to, even frankly stated. Between France and England the differences over Silesia have often become acute; they have been adjusted by concessions, chiefly on the part of Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, whose habit it is to retire from a position before it becomes too extreme and unreasonable.

These criticisms of the League of Nations because of its finding in a case submitted for its candid judgment are in bad form and offensive. They may be compared with the round robin of the thirty-nine Republican Senators who denounced the Versailles Treaty and the League Covenant months before they were signed at Versailles. When Mr. LLOYD GEORGE'S chief newspaper organ raises the question whether "the League of Nations by a timid and time-serving decision is to be the author of a future war," it might be surmised that this extraordinary language was used in the hope of bullying the Council of the League into changing its decision.

It is too late for that, and on such information as has transpired there is no evident reason why the decision should be changed. The question was referred to members of the Council whose Governments are entirely disinterested and would not be affected by the finding. Good faith and fairness are assumed, and the justice of the principle applied in tracing the frontier line is not impeached by abusing the court. The coal mines, which have been the chief bone of contention, are divided, some going to Poland, some to Germany, but it is declared that Germany gets coal lands upon which it can open new mines. Pending the publication of the full report, there is no evident justification for the attack on the League in any British quarter. The Supreme Council, altogether a political body, found it impossible to settle the Upper Silesian problem, and referred it to the League Council. It hardly need be pointed out that this reference of the matter implies that the parties to the controversy would accept the finding, even if it did not impose the obligation to accept it. Germany, of course, makes no end of wry faces over the matter and even goes so far as to say that without the Silesian coal it will be impossible to continue the reparation payments. But it is not to be expected that the British Government will carry its leanings toward the German side of the controversy quite so far as to identify itself with that attitude.

SECURITY FOR FRANCE.

Premier BRIAND'S speech on the French attitude toward disarming has been much applauded by his countrymen. It doubtless strengthens his Government. But it was obviously addressed to England and the United States as well as to France. It foreshadowed positions which will unquestionably be taken by the French delegates to the Washington conference next month. France, declared BRIAND, is entirely ready to discuss cutting down of armies as well as of navies, but she must see her way, know where she is going, and make sure that her security is not imperiled. She maintains her large army only to protect herself. What is to take its place?

This question will be pointedly put by France to the other conferring nations at Washington. She issued from the war with the one great demand that she be not exposed again to sudden and overwhelming aggression by Germany. The Versailles Treaty, with the accompanying agreements, was supposed to give her adequate guarantees of safety. But these have failed her. She gave up her long insistence on the Rhine frontier in return for a promise that England and the United States would enter into a defensive alliance with her against any unprovoked assault by Germany. But that treaty never came into force. France is left to care for her own safety. With what grace can the very countries that refused to guarantee her protection now ask her to denude herself of her sole protection in the superior strength of her own army?

To this inquiry France will wish an answer at Washington. If our Government is willing even now to enter into the tripartite alliance with France, she will be satisfied, and will cut down the military expenditure which she is anxious to reduce. Or, if the United States were to make a belated entrance into the League of Nations, the French Government would feel that the security of France could be safeguarded by that means. But if America will do nothing, how can we expect France to do anything? She will not consent to be put off again with parsnips buttered only by fine words. And we may be sure that she will listen a bit impatiently and sorrowfully to American protests that we should like very much to help her, but that unfortunately we can have nothing to do with Europe.

MR. LOCKWOOD FOR CONTROLLER.

A victory for decent and progressive government in New York would not be complete which did not include the election of a new Controller. The imperative need for this is something into which partisanship does not enter, for the city's financial position is, in substance, this: The debt of New York is $1,000,000,000, of which one-quarter ($250,000,000), invested in subways, has become unproductive, largely through the refusal of Mayor HYLAN to agree to, much less propose, any solution which would give the city a return on its investment. As a consequence the taxpayers and rentpayers are obliged to meet an added interest charge each year of $10,000,000.

Under the administration of Controller CRAIG the appropriations for this year are $27,000,000 more than the prospective legal revenue—a dangerous precedent in municipal finance. In addition to the budget shortage, there was outstanding at the beginning of the year $36,392,900 in "special revenue bonds," in addition to $261,225,000 of "revenue bills" issued in 1920 and to be repaid later on.

It would be unfair to ascribe to Mr. CRAIG all these methods of finance, some of which antedate his election. But their culmination has been under his administration, and their reversal is not to be expected if he should be re-elected. His competitor, CHARLES C. LOCKWOOD, is a man of achievements. As a State Senator he has made an admirable record, especially as Chairman of the Committee on Education in connection with the schools and the pay, tenure and standards of the teachers. As Chairman of the Lockwood Housing Committee, Mr. LOCKWOOD did courageous and effective work—first in eliciting testimony which broke up some of the building "combines" and sent some of the delinquents, BRINDELL and HETTRICK among them, to prison; second, by the adoption of the Lockwood Rent law, which saved, it is computed, forty thousand or more tenants from summary eviction and established a method for adjusting, at least temporarily and on fair terms, the acute difficulties between landlords and their tenants at a period of widespread shortage in apartments—an aftermath of the war, accentuated by the high cost of building materials and of labor.

As between the contentious CRAIG and the constructive LOCKWOOD, what voter in New York, man or woman, Democrat or Republican or independent, need hesitate long when it comes to voting for Controller?

LICENSED CRIMINAL CHAUFFEURS

The voyager in New York taxicabs must be surprised and relieved to learn that only twenty-two convicted felons, duly registered by the Bureau of Licensed Vehicles in the Department of Licenses, are taxicabbing for hire here at present. So small an active felon force should be encouraging to all the friends of public safety; and of the twenty-two only four have been convicted of grand larceny, only four of burglary, only three of felonious assault, only four of assault in the second degree. A peaceful band, with obvious claims on public confidence.

Then there are 157 active licensed chauffeurs who have had their little adventures with justice. Ninety of them have pleaded guilty to petty larceny, though in many cases the charge of burglary in the first or second degree was softened to the more diminutive offense. In this Bagdad of adventure the driver with an erroneous past is surely better fitted than the innocent to force his cab through the press of the wicked and to avoid the devices of Satan.

Then there is a third gentle variety of licensed charioteers. Technically "suspended," but in the majority of instances still furnished with badge and book and doing business at the old stand, are "131 convicted felons and 69 men convicted of other crimes." Free spirits, free lances, gentlemen of the road who have seen the error of their ways, doubtless, and from their coigns of vantage watch with calm, experienced eyes the flow of life and traffic.

Most instructive of all this strange, eventful history, perhaps, is the report of a Police Captain, dated Oct. 6, 1921, which showed that from Jan. 1 to Oct. 1, 1921, 432 out of 5,459 applicants for taxicab licenses had fingerprint records; that from Jan. 1 to Oct. 6 46 arrests were made of holders of taxicab licenses for the following crimes: Assault and robbery, 1; burglary, 7; felonious assault, 2; grand larceny, 24; grand larceny and narcotics, 1; rape, 2; robbery, 5; possessing a revolver, 2; seduction, 1; fugitive from justice, 1.

As agreeable a collection of spirited drivers as one would care to meet. We are living, we are moving—if we can afford to take taxicabs—in a grand and curious town. There is small graft in regard to the issue of licenses, it seems, but there is nothing small, there is a wide experience of life, among more than a few taxicab drivers, and to have the happiness of riding in their cars must be a poem, an adventure, a perilous ecstasy.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Automobilists Should Be Careful.

There are a good many automobiles in this country, and a good many of them—probably a large majority—are kept, or perhaps one should say stabled, in small garages that have little or no ventilation except through the doors. With the coming on of cold weather, much of the tinkering which these machines so often require is done with the garage doors closed, and not infrequently the engines are set to running to warm them up before starting out on the road. The result is that from now on until Spring many accidents occur, not a few of them fatal, for a gasoline engine in motion gives off in considerable quantities that dangerous poison, carbon monoxid, and when this is done in a confined space the air in it soon becomes deadly to any living being.

The effects of this gas were investigated with great care, recently, by Professor YANDELL HARRISON and several colleagues with a view to solving the problem of ventilation with respect to the proposed vehicular tunnel under the Hudson, and their observations are summarized in the current issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association with a special view to their bearing on automobiles in garages.

It was found that, if the amount of carbon monoxid in air did not exceed three parts in 10,000, no physiological effects were produced. Between three and six parts to the 10,000, the effects were barely perceptible. Above that, headache and nausea were induced, increasing in severity with the rising of the ratio, and when it reached fifteen to the 10,000 life was seriously imperiled.

An ordinary motor car, when its engine is in motion, gives off a square foot of the deadly gas every minute, and in three minutes the air in a closed garage, 10 by 10 by 20 feet, is contaminated to the degree that endangers life. Not long after that the victim falls unconscious and death follows if he is not promptly rescued.

The lesson is obvious and all automobilists should heed it.

No Offense Meant or Taken.

What might have been a cause of serious and even dangerous ill-feeling has been settled satisfactorily by a careful division between American diplomatists and British Ministers of responsibility for the seeming indifference of the Ministers to the award by our Congress of a Medal of Honor to the unknown warrior who sleeps in Westminster Abbey, and their failure to notify General PERSHING when they would be ready to receive this symbol of international amity and appreciation.

There was no indifference, as was shown by Lord CURZON'S cordial letter to our Ambassador when first informed that Congress had voted this decoration, but after that there was an unfortunate misunderstanding as to when the formal presentation of the medal was to be made, and what should have been done promptly was delayed while other matters, ranging in importance from week-end golf up to unemployment and Ireland, commanded the attention of these important personages. Everybody except General PERSHING apparently had the impression that the medal would be offered and accepted on Armistice Day, and that there would be time, meanwhile, to go through the somewhat complicated process of breaking precedent and giving the Victoria Cross to America's unknown warrior.

As in both London and Washington there was an equal assumption of good intentions and an equal determination to avoid giving and taking offense, no harm has been done. The course of the London press in the matter has shown a notable friendliness, while the papers in this country have refrained from any display of irritability.

To Discuss the Seven Amendments.

Not content with instructing its own members in regard to candidates at the coming election and telling them who can vote and just how to do it, the Women's City Club has united with the other and unqualified City Club in arranging a joint meeting to be held in the new Town Hall, 121 West Forty-third Street, next Monday evening at 8:15, for consideration and elucidation of the seven proposed amendments to the State Constitution which also are to be voted on at this election.

Men, in spite of their longer experience in practical politics, are almost as likely as women not to give to such changes in the fundamental law the attention and study their importance deserves. The result is that amendments too often get a smaller vote than candidates, and it is to be feared that some of the voting is neither careful nor intelligent. Whoever, woman or man, attends Monday's meeting at least will be able to know what the amendments are, and, by listening to the speakers who have been secured, a good basis for judgment can be found.

Dr. JOHN H. FINLEY is one of them, and he will speak with authority on the amendment which, if passed, will impose a literacy test on voters—require of them, that is, the ability to read and write the English language. That requirement, while of dubious merit in weeding out undesirable immigrants, is entirely reasonable when applied to voters. Mrs. MARY E. PADDON will discuss and commend the amendment relating to the establishment of a Children's Court and a Court of Domestic Relations, and Major Gen. JOHN F. O'RYAN will tell what he thinks of the proposal to give all war veterans a preference as regards appointment and promotion in the civil service.

Schools as Polling Places.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Polling places bald, bare and gloomy—must voting always be a mournful duty? Schoolhouse, jury box, polling place, triune pillars subtending our political institutions. Schools today lay great stress on the teaching of civics. Why not link up the schoolhouse and the polling booth in a practical lesson for Young America? Each school in New York City, about 900, to decorate the polling place nearest to it. Just before election day a select group of students—after appropriate dedication before the entire assembled school—with the teacher, to decorate the premises and entrance of the nearest polling place with the flags, city, State and national shields and color standards that each school uses in the weekly flag salute. No expense to the city, children or parents and a deep impression made upon our future citizens and an inspiration to proud mother and father when casting their ballots next day. Let election day be a colorful, flagful day by the help of the school children.

MOTHER VOLGA, WE ARE DYING

Mother Volga, we are dying.
Over us the gray clouds roll;
Ravens croak their fatal dirges;
Lo! the famine onward surges,
Maiming body, slaying soul—
Mother Volga, we are dying.

Mother Volga, heed our prayer;
Life is only black confusion.
From afar sound kindly voices,
But the heart no more rejoices;
Maybe it is all illusion.
Mother Volga, heed our prayer.

Mother Volga, are you weeping
When your torrent rushes stronger?
Is it that you hear our sighing?
Do you know that we are dying?
We, your children, hope no longer—
Mother Volga, are you weeping?

Mother Volga, we are simple,
Knowing naught of States and Kings;
Rulers come and play the master.
We obey until disaster
Lights on us with vulture wings;
Mother Volga, we are simple.

Mother Volga, we are dying.
Over us the gray clouds roll;
Ravens croak their fatal dirges;
Lo! the famine onward surges,
Maiming body, slaying soul—
Mother Volga, we are dying

PRINCE YAMAGATA ASKS FRIENDSHIP.

Venerable Japanese Statesman Believes All Misunderstanding Can Be Cleared Away.

Prince Yamagata was Chief of Staff in the Russo-Japanese war and is now one of the famous Elder Statesmen, a body of which Marquis Okuma and Viscount Shibusawa are conspicuous ornaments—all of them about 85 years of age and all keenly alive to the importance of a peaceful Pacific.

The following words, written as a letter to Poultney Bigelow of Malden-on-Hudson, are by him offered to the public through THE NEW YORK TIMES, by permission of the venerable statesman.

[LETTER FROM FIELD MARSHAL PRINCE YAMAGATA TO MR. POULTNEY BIGELOW.]

"I have been watching with profound apprehension the trend of American-Japanese relations in the past several years. No honest publicist can deny that the two nations, which should be on the best of terms, are drifting apart. I have been so deeply concerned with this unhappy situation that I sometimes forget that I am living on borrowed years and entertain the impossible wish that I might cross the Pacific and lay before the leaders of America what I believe to be the real motives and intentions of the Japanese nation, and thus serve as a means to add one small stone on the foundation of the temple of peace.

"In the span of my eighty-three years I have seen my country emerging from feudalism to modernism, developing from a hermit nation into a world power unreservedly admitted into the comity of great nations. In all the successes and triumphs which accompanied this national development it was my fortune to be deeply concerned and often directly interested.

"Few Japanese appreciate better than I do that in those trying days, when Japan was carrying infant steps along rough and thorny roads, it was the American nation which took the most sympathetic interest in her welfare and extended to her a helping hand in her task of rehabilitation. Looking back over that happy period of American-Japanese relations, it is difficult to understand why the two nations could not remain the best of friends.

"I have long since retired from active politics and am no longer identified with the affairs of state. What I have to say, therefore, does not represent the views of the Government. Yet I believe that I do not misrepresent or misinterpret the attitude of either the Government or the people when I say that Japan's fixed policy is to maintain the most cordial relations with America.

"I realize that between our two countries there are problems fraught with grave possibilities. But I am convinced that these problems are, one and all, amenable to amicable adjustment, if only the leaders on both sides sincerely endeavor to understand them and apply to their solution sound sense and broad statesmanship.

"Some Americans seem to think that Japan is scheming to become a law unto herself. They seem to fancy that we are playing the rôle of an overlord in the management of Far Eastern affairs. Japan entertains no such ambition, which is as quixotic as it is anachronistic. Our recent actions in Siberia and Shantung may have given occasion to misinterpretation. But I feel justified in saying that time is near at hand when such misunderstandings will be swept away, when the world will appreciate that Japan never entertained sinister ambitions in those quarters.

"In sending troops to Siberia Japan had no other motive than to come to the aid of Czechoslovak troops and to restore and maintain peace and order, and she has consistently pursued that policy. In the execution of that policy she may have made blunders, as indeed she has, but they were the blunders of one honest and conscientious, zealous to perform his duties, eager to serve the cause of peace and order to the best of his abilities. The moment she is satisfied that the Russians do not have to rely upon Japanese troops for the maintenance of order, and that Japan has nothing to fear from the more or less chaotic state in Siberia, those troops will be withdrawn, and I sincerely hope that that moment will come soon.

"As for Kiao-Chau and other German possessions in Shantung, Japan has repeatedly signified her intention to dispose of them in China's favor as soon as the Chinese Government is ready to deal with the Japanese Government for that purpose. If this transaction has been delayed, it is due to no fault of Japan's, but because China, for some reason difficult to understand, has been reluctant to put an end to that chapter of Sino-Japanese relations. I hope and trust that China is not emulating the Achilles of old, nursing rancor in his tent for no good purpose. But do what China will, Japan is resolved to adhere to the promise she made of her own accord in 1915 and confirmed later at the Peace Conference, and will in the very near future carry out that promise to the letter.

"My modest knowledge of history leads me to believe that no nation has a right to regard itself as the apotheosis of righteousness. Before God all nations must plead guilty, for they have, one and all, erred, and erred widely, at various stages of their development. In the light of the world's experience of a thousand yesterdays, let us not be too harsh in criticising a young nation of today whose blunders seem, after all, far more pardonable than those committed by many another nation. I feel sure that the American people, big as they are, will sympathize with, and even support, Japan when they come to understand the fundamentals of the circumstances Japan is placed in, and fully appreciate the difficult problems, not the least of which is the problem of population, living space and food, that she actually faces and is obliged to solve in one way or another.

"As for the present misunderstandings between America and Japan, I prefer to think that they are only passing symptoms, certain to disappear before reason and sanity. Yet I am keenly alive to the evil possibilities of these misunderstandings, and I appeal to the American leaders in the world of thought and affairs for hearty cooperation with the leading men on this side of the Pacific for the restoration of the traditional friendship between the two nations. I, for one, look upon that friendship with a sense of reverence born of my close relationship with our national progress and development, in which American counsel and assistance have played no small part since the historic days of Commodore Perry and Townsend Harris."

PROHIBITION REFERENDUM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Please indulge me space for a few observations suggested by the comments of Harold P. Burgess of Columbia University on my communication recently printed by you proposing a referendum on prohibition.

Conditions justify me in the belief that prohibition, as we have it, does not represent the desire or the will of the majority of the American people. I am of the opinion that it was "put over" by a noisy and fanatical minority through political intimidation and coercion of the State legislators and the members of Congress; that they were able to do this through a compact and efficient organization and by persistent and plausible propaganda that met with no organized opposition.

While I agree with Mr. Burgess that the ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment was regular, I am still of the opinion, the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States to the contrary notwithstanding, that it was not a proper amendment, but was attempted legislation under the guise of a constitutional amendment; and, furthermore, depriving the States, as it does, of that part of their reserved sovereignty inherent in the exercise of their police powers, was not such an amendment as is contemplated by the amending clause of the Constitution, but was new and extraneous matter that could only be added to the Constitution by the unity of all the States in a constitutional convention called for that purpose.

It is perhaps well known that the Supreme Court did not give any reasons to sustain the decisions in the cases involving this amendment—the first time in the history of the court it has failed so to do in any important case. The brief of Mr. Root in one of these cases is unanswered, and remains unanswerable, which, perhaps, explains the silence of the court.

Up to the Civil War there existed two theories of our Government—one being that it was the creation of the States in their sovereign capacity, and the other that it was created by the people of the States. The former doctrine was shot to pieces on the battlefields of the Civil War and the latter is now the accepted doctrine, creating thereby not a Federal but a national Government. This being the fact, is it not the more consistent and logical to change the method of amending the Constitution to conform to this settled and accepted doctrine, so that in future all proposed amendments of that instrument shall be submitted for ratification not to the State Legislatures, but to the people of the several States? This would not only be in harmony with the now accepted theory of our Government, but in future would obviate any amendment, such as the Eighteenth, for example, being "put over" on the people by the coercion of their legislative representatives.

As the prohibition situation seemed hopeless and is working such incalculable injury to the morale of the people and the good order of the country, I suggested the referendum as worthy at least of trial, as offering a probable solution of the question.

SCHOOL HISTORIES.

A Teacher Condemns Complaints as Insincere.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The extent to which certain elements of our population carry their political and racial hatred of England is well illustrated by their feeble attempt to show the existence of history textbook propaganda favorable to the former mother country. As to their pretended solicitude for the fame of our Revolutionary heroes, that may be dismissed without serious consideration, for they are surely not so poorly informed as to suppose that the descendants of those Revolutionary Whigs, and of Revolutionary Tories as well, can ever be indifferent to the fame of those heroic defenders of English traditions and English liberty threatened by the usurpations of a German king and his party of friends drawn together by favoritism and graft.

The ordinary student, possessing even the most meagre equipment along historical lines, knows that the party division in England was the counterpart of party division in the colonies.

Whigs in England and Whigs in the colonies opposed the new colonial policy of George Grenville, inaugurated at the close of the French and Indian War. Technically, there was nothing illegal in acts of Parliament passed pursuant to that policy, for any act of Parliament may be considered legal. No one was more familiar with that fact than the Revolutionary organization in America. But they, also, knew that Grenville's policy was thoroughly unwise, that it was inimical to the spirit of the great constitutional landmarks in English history, Magna Charta, the Petition of Rights, the Bill of Rights and the Habeas Corpus act. The Liberal Party in England held the same views, and identified their own interests and the preservation of English liberty with the claims of the resisting colonists.

The American Revolution was an organized and successful revolt against George III. and a corrupt party in Parliament to subvert the most sacred and fundamental principles in English constitutional development since the time of Alfred the Great. In spirit it was a part of a continuation of the struggle between the barons and John, of the war between Parliament and Charles I. and of the glorious revolution of 1688.

It is the duty of the history textbook writer to chronicle the facts of history. The student of history is seeking truth. When either the writer or the student turns from his legitimate task to pander to the prejudices of political tricksters, he becomes an enemy of progress, a traitor to truth.

The Armenian Mandate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

William E. Gladstone, speaking at the presentation of a silver gilt chalice from the National Church of Armenia to his son, Rev. Stephen Gladstone, rector of Hawarden, on Dec. 29, 1894, nearly twenty-seven years ago, said: "And do not let me be told that one nation has no authority over another. Every nation, and, if need be, every human being has authority on behalf of humanity and justice." In the light of what has happened to Armenia and her people since then, and what is liable to happen at any moment to the remnant that remains, I ask if America has not shirked a great opportunity in not accepting the mandate of Armenia.

OLD ENGLISH GLASS GIFT TO MUSEUM

Collection of 193 Pieces, 1680 to 1810, From the Estate of Edward Holbrook.

Works of Legros, Lepere and Zorn Shown—Seminars to Be Held in Armor Department.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art announces the receipt of a gift of a valuable collection of old English glass from the estate of Edward Holbrook of 193 pieces. This is the work of the English glass makers at their best period, 1680 to 1810. The collection consists largely of wine glasses with various forms of baluster stems, showing the air bubble or "tear" device for ornamentation in the stems with the succeeding fashion of threads of opaque white or colored glass, after the Venetian manner, the later forms with the stems of cut glass. There are also a few examples of Dutch and German glass in the collection.

In the print department, where one interesting exhibition follows the other, there is shown in three successive rooms the work of three graphic artists who made their fame in the latter half of the nineteenth century. They are Legros, Lepere and Zorn and with a very few exceptions the exhibition is formed from the Museum's own collections and gives an idea of its value and extent in different individual lines.

There is a fine collection of woodcuts and etchings by Zorn, who, born in 1860, came into his own "with a rush and roar," says the Curator of Prints, William M. Ivins Jr., "and was famous at 30." Legros, born in 1839, began his work as a brutal realist under the influence of Courbet. He carried the traditions of France to England, where he taught in the Slade school and trained a generation of artists. There are many of the fine portraits by which he will probably be best known in the collection. There is an equal number of examples of Lepere, the famous French illustrator.

Work that is being done at the Museum showing the great interest that is taken by a certain circle of people in fine armor is a series of seminars, a program of thirty meetings which has been arranged to be held in the armor department this year. The subjects deal with collections from different countries, installation and care of armor, early literature, the work of artist armorers, Italian, English, French and German, and the development of prominent types of armor. The meetings are held Wednesdays at noon and will be open to auditors under certain conditions.

There has been a change in Japanese prints shown in Room H 11, where a collection of works of the two famous portrayers of Japanese women, Utamaro and Toyokuni, are being shown. There are among them several important triptychs.

TOLD TO CONCILIATE HAITI.

Caperton Testifies to Directions Given to American Forces in 1915.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Directions to "conciliate the Haitians to the fullest extent consistent with maintaining order and firm control of the situation" were given the American forces which landed in Haiti in 1915, according to the testimony of Rear Admiral Caperton, who commanded the American troops, given today before the Senate committee investigating the occupation of Haiti and the Dominican Republic by the United States.

These directions, Admiral Caperton asserted, were given by Rear Admiral Benson, then Chief of Naval Operations, who also requested that a proclamation be issued assuring the people of Haiti that "the United States has no object in view except to insure, establish and help maintain Haitian independence and the establishment of a stable and firm Government by the Haitian people."

Conditions in the island between the landing of troops early in July and the election of a President on Aug. 12 were detailed by the Admiral, particularly those efforts made to obtain the views of the various Presidential candidates with reference to their attitude toward the United States. Members of the committee asked whether Philippe S. Dartiguenave, the successful candidate, had been selected by the United States because of promises made by him.

Admiral Caperton replied by reading a message received by him Aug. 10 from the Secretary of the Navy, authorizing him to permit the Presidential election to proceed whenever conditions would warrant and stating that the United States looked with favor upon the election of Dartiguenave, because it was thought to "assure a political integrity."

Before the election Dartiguenave and his principal opponent for the Presidency were brought together, the Admiral said, to obtain indications as to their official attitude if elected. Dartiguenave expressed his adherence to American views, while his opponent would give no assurances that he would assist in maintaining order if defeated, the Admiral said.

DECORATES TEN TROOPERS.

Pennsylvania Governor Presents Citations for Bravery in Line of Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 12.—Ten State policemen were today presented with citations for exceptional bravery in the performance of duty by Governor Sproul, who opened the first annual tournament of the State troopers at Island Park before 6,000 persons. LAMONT TELLS HOW HE ESCAPED BOMB

Mexican Habit of Being Late Saved His Life in Wall Street, He Says.

TALK TO UNIVERSITY CLUB

On the Day of the Explosion Financier Missed an Appointment He Had for Exactly Noon.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 12.—At a luncheon at the University Club today, given by Robert H. Murray, official adviser of Mexico in Washington, to the party accompanying Thomas W. Lamont on the mission relative to the foreign debt, Mr. Lamont told for the first time the story of how he escaped death in the Wall Street explosion in September, 1920.

Mr. Lamont said he had an appointment for exactly 12 o'clock on the day of the explosion with Roberto Pesquiera, Mexico's agent in the United States.

"Appreciating the Mexican proclivity for lateness in keeping appointments," he said, "I was late in meeting Señor Pesquiera. Had I been on time I would have been in my private office when it was blown up. So perhaps I owe my life to Mexican habits."

Mr. Lamont made a statement concerning the work of the mission, in which he said:

"I am enjoying the trip very much. A visit to Mexico reveals the United States and the relics of an old civilization coupled together in new progress. I am pleased to see many Americans here who are thoroughly at home and using every effort to promote closer relations between the two countries. The interests of the world's creditors of the Mexican nation that I represent are identical with those of President Obregon and the Mexican Government. The interests of Mexico depend on a satisfactory adjustment of foreign obligations, just as for the holders of Mexican securities depends the just adjustment which will satisfy Mexico. Stability for Mexico, also for its interests, is fundamental."

Mr. Lamont did not say anything that could be construed as indicating the nature of any arrangements being made with Señor de la Huerta, Minister of Finance. Mr. Lamont will visit the famous ruins of Teotihuacan this week, returning to the United States at the end of next week.

WILL OPEN LANE FUND TO GIFTS FROM PUBLIC

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The committee, consisting of Secretary Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Adolph C. Miller, member of the Federal Reserve Board, constituted, following the death of Franklin K. Lane, former Secretary of the Interior, to raise a fund, the income of which should accrue to Mrs. Lane during her life, and on her death be used as a memorial for Mr. Lane in carrying on his work in Americanization, has met with such gratifying response in its appeals for contributions that it has decided to open the fund to public gifts.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lane in every section of the country, without respect to political affiliation, have voluntarily made contributions. The following letter was written to Secretary Hoover, Chairman of the committee, on Sept. 23, by Emery Mapes, a Minneapolis business man, whose sudden death was reported yesterday:

"I have just noticed in one of our local papers the fact that a fund is being raised for the benefit of the widow of Franklin K. Lane, and I take the pleasure of inclosing my check for $5,000 as a tribute to the memory of Mr. Lane, who, while not a personal friend, I esteemed very highly.

"I am somewhat surprised that he died without leaving any estate, as he had so many opportunities that most men would have taken advantage of.

"His widow certainly should be provided for, and I take great pleasure in being a small partner in placing her in comfortable circumstances."

"Mr. Lane's passionate interest in the work of Americanization," said Mr. Miller, who is Treasurer of the committee, today, "is shared by his widow, and it is her intention, as soon as she has completed the work of compiling and publishing a collection of her husband's letters and papers, to devote her life to carrying forward her husband's work in Americanization."

GIRL BABY FOUND IN CHURCH PEW

Tiny Waif's Cries Heard During Mass at St. Vincent de Paul's.

BABE BAPTIZED AT ONCE

Patrolman on Beat Made Godfather and Reserve Policemen Rock Her to Sleep.

Choir boys in the Church of St. Vincent de Paul, 123 West Twenty-third Street, were nearing the end of the Kyrie in yesterday morning's mass, when a plaintive wail from the recesses of the sanctuary injected into the music a high off-key note. Mrs. Agnes De Leir of 255 West Twenty-second Street, who was sitting in the rear of the church, investigated and found a baby girl far back in the corner of the last pew, cleanly dressed in a white slip with pink ribbons and crying lustily.

Katheryne Lynch, a nurse, and Mrs. De Lier took the infant to Father Simon Wigishoss, pastor of the church. Patrolman Thomas Kiernan of the West Twentieth Street Station, who was on duty near by, was notified and asked what should be done with the child.

"I think the dear should be baptized right away," spoke up a woman in the sympathetic group gathered about the squalling baby.

"Good idea," said Kiernan.

Father Wigishoss baptized the infant Marie, who cried and wriggled while Patrolman Kiernan and the nurse were made godfather and godmother.

The child was taken to the West Twentieth Street station, where Lieutenant Baxter conferred briefly with the nurse.

"The babe is hungry and Miss Lynch says she is going out to pick out the best there is for it," said Lieutenant Baxter to half a dozen reserve patrolmen. "Every one of us is going to carry the kid for a spell to keep it quiet."

So the bluecoats each walked around for twenty minutes with the baby, crooning lullabies, partly, they said, in the hope that it would go to sleep. It finally lapsed into slumber in the arms of its new and very proud godfather.

Miss Lynch accompanied Marie to Bellevue Hospital. It has been suggested that the West Twentieth Street station adopt Marie as the mascot of the force.

Business Is On the Mend!

No one knows this better than the manufacturers of office appliances, equipment and supplies.

Many men in many lines are tightening the loose bolts that will enable their organizations to plow ahead through the rising tide of increasing orders. When the wheels of progress begin to hum more swiftly, industry needs and secures the devices and supplies that shorten work and increase efficiency.

Are you certain you are ready for the improvement?
Are you as well prepared as your competitors?

Be on the safe side.

The manufacturers of office appliances are doing much to help you. Year in and year out they are laboring and studying to make your work and that of your subordinates easier and better.

Once a year they gather together in a one week's exhibit the newest and best of their various lines so you can see and compare them under ideal conditions. The very best available methods, appliances and equipment for economical and efficient administration of business are all on exhibition on one floor.

These exhibits are manned by experts—not to sell the products to visitors, but—to show how they fit into certain lines of work. Genuine service is the key note of the exposition and none of the exhibitors wants his appliances in an office where they can not be used to advantage.

In a few hours here you can get real money-saving information. Perhaps in the first ten minutes you will learn something worth thousands of dollars to you.

That has been the actual experience of others.

At least set aside one hour in this week to come and see what you can get out of it.

BATTEN

Can a Going Business be "dead to the world"?

You pass two kinds of people on the streets—ciphers and acquaintances.

One or two folks you recognize. The rest you have no dealings with. You couldn't call them by name. As far as you are concerned, they do not exist.

It is just the same with articles in the stores. Some few things you single out from the rest. You are familiar with their looks and names. You know their good qualities.

Innumerable other articles on counters and shelves have no interest for you. If they have an identity, you are not aware of it. They remain "unblest, unhonored, and unsung."

These unfamiliar articles may be good articles, but people don't know about them.

While a going business is not, strictly speaking, "dead to the world," the world is asleep so far as its existence is concerned.

The remedy is to "tell the world."

This forming of public opinion is called advertising.

ONCE a month, or more frequently, we issue a publication called Batten's Wedge. Each issue is devoted to a single editorial on some phase of business. If you are a business executive and would like to receive copies, write us.

"Down at the heel"

You can't afford to have this said of you

WITH a man, that phrase is a synonym for failure. With a woman, it means the slovenliness that most women cordially detest.

Yet the hard leather heel runs over in just a few weeks' wear. That's one of the two big reasons why O'Sullivan's Heels have become a national habit.

The other reason, of course, is that millions of Americans have learned that pounding away with hard leather heels on hard modern floors and pavements exhausts the nervous system.

Tough, live, springy, O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the shocks that tire you out, and outlast leather three to one. That famous O'Sullivan blend makes every step seem cushioned on air!

For twenty-three years O'Sullivan's have been the world's standard of rubber heel quality.

Insist on getting them!

WOULD CUT FREIGHT RATES

SHIPPING COMMITTEE ACTS

Proposes Scrapping of Wooden Vessels and Extension of Coastwise Laws to Insular Possessions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The principal business at today's meeting of the President's conference on unemployment was consideration of reports of committees on construction, industries and shipping. The Construction Committee's report included a severe criticism of some of the conditions in the building industry and provided for the selection, by Mr. Hoover, of a general committee to co-operate with local committees to bring about reforms and stimulate building.

The committee stated that a Senate committee had placed the total construction shortage in the country at between $10,000,000,000 and $30,000,000,000, and that a "return of confidence in values in construction will assure more employment than in any other area."

It was held that, considering all branches of construction industry, 2,000,000 could be employed if construction was resumed.

"There are three outstanding factors in the building and construction situation which have the greatest bearing on the resumption of construction activities," the report said. "They are financing, material costs and labor."

In every section of the country, the report added, owners have declined to start new projects on account of the financing charges, both the interest rate and the commissions and premiums paid for floating loans being discouragingly high.

High Financing Charges.

"Commissions and premiums varying between 10 and 20 per cent. have been charged in addition to from 7 to 8 per cent. interest," said the report. "For example, before the first work of construction was begun the owners of an apartment house were required to pay for the $1,250,000 invested, an interest rate of 7 per cent. and a bond premium of 15½ per cent. and a floating charge of 10 per cent., making a total financing charge of 18½ per cent.

"The financing charge of a subsequent loan of $250,000 for the same structure was $75,000. This is a charge of 30 per cent. It is doubtful whether the margins received by the architect, the contractor and by all the producers in the basic industries involved aggregated a sum equivalent to these financing charges."

The committee finds that, while many construction materials have been substantially reduced, others have not yet been reduced in keeping with the trend of wholesale prices of other commodities. In many instances also, retailers of construction materials have not followed the reduction of manufacturers and wholesalers in their re-sale prices. It is contended that these are important subjects to be taken up locally.

Concerning wages paid, the report says:

"This cannot be regulated by national action. The cost of living, rentals, and working conditions differ widely in various communities. Where fair wage adjustments have not been made, construction is held up. Such conditions should be dealt with fairly and frankly between employer and worker, and reasonable adjustments promptly made.

"Approaching this subject, we believe that the employer should not permit the wage of his workmen to go below that point at which it not only provides sufficient to take care of the necessities of life, but also enough to enable the family to educate the children properly, to provide reasonable comforts and conveniences, and to permit systematic savings, even though small. In the comparison of wages for building artisans with those of other industries, due allowance should be made for seasonal employment.

"The workman, on the other hand, should deliver maximum production, with proper interest in the welfare of the business out of which his wages are paid, and should eliminate restrictions and measures which tend to interfere with his production or with the production of others. Stoppage of work in jurisdictional controversies in the construction industry should be permanently abandoned as measures detrimental to the public welfare."

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, expressed the opinion that the recommendation that jurisdictional claims be abandoned could only be a "pious wish."

Jurisdictional claims involve the stand taken by various branches of artisans concerning work which should be allotted to them. John Donlin, President of the Building Trades Section of the Department of Labor, contended that these controversies were among the worst injuries to labor and the public welfare.

Mr. Hoover suggested that the words "stoppage of work," which were not in the report, should be inserted, as quoted above, and this was agreed to.

Urges Lower Freight Rates.

The committee's report condemned unfair practices in the building trade and also recommended a readjustment of freight rates downward, holding that during the war period freight rates on building materials had been increased more than on most of the other commodities.

"The construction industry," it was contended, "cannot effectively function under a freight rate fabric artificially distorted by the continuation of restrictive war measures" intended to discourage construction work during the war.

The report suggested also consideration of the practicability of encouraging during the Winter months, by rate reductions, the transportation of materials used in road and other construction work, thus utilizing transportation equipment which might otherwise remain idle.

The report concluded with the recommendation that Secretary Hoover appoint a committee selected from the various elements interested in construction, to be known as the Committee of Construction Development, which will be charged with the responsibility of preparing and making effective plans for—

"(a) Co-operation with the Governors and Mayors in the several States in carrying on community conferences on construction, to the end that local restrictions may be eliminated, abuses done away with, and proper local attention given to the efficient planning and development of construction work, as it is only through such community conferences that the local situation can be properly appraised.

"(b) The prompt removal of unnecessary or inequitable limitations and restrictions which have retarded real construction activity.

Would Junk Wooden Ships.

The Emergency Committee on Shipping recommended the junking of the wooden ships as the best way for the Government to get out with least loss.

The Committee on Permanent Measures for Shipping made these recommendations:

"(1) Decision on Jones Act—Prompt action on the enforcement or amendment of the Jones act is desirable, in order to extend aid to shipping and to relieve it from its present uncertainty.

"(2) Disposal of Shipping Board Ships—This committee affirms its belief that the expressed policy of the Federal Government to retire from the ownership and operation of ships should be made effective at the earliest practicable date.

"(3) A Marine Code and Unified Administration—A single organic marine law, adequately administered by one Federal department instead of by many, as at present, would facilitate close co-operation with shipping interests and would go far toward lifting present legislative and administrative burdens from shipping.

"(4) Coastwise Laws—It is the belief of this committee that the present coastwise shipping laws should be faithfully enforced, and that we can with advantage at this time extend them to include all of our insular possessions.

"(5) Aid in American Ownership of Ships—It is only logical that American ships be aided to the extent that they be given exclusive carriage of Federally-controlled products and every possible help and encouragement be extended to American ships carrying the mails."

The conference will hold its final general session tomorrow.

DON'T EXPECT RAIL STRIKE.

But Brotherhood Chiefs Are Still Discussing the Question.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Little likelihood of a decision to call a strike of railroad workers of the Big Four Brotherhoods was forecast tonight by L. E. Sheppard, President of the Order of Railway Conductors. After three days and nights of meetings, the executives and general chairmen of the conductors, engineers and firemen still were far from agreement as to their action.

W. G. Lee, head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the fourth body of the Big Four group, arrived today to await the action of the others.

"Our men have voted to strike, and I will give them my authorization the minute the other three say the word. It is up to them," Mr. Lee said.

He added, however, that he was not expecting strike action, and that he would not be surprised to see the conferences end without definite action being taken.

DOCTOR SAYS RADIUM PROLONGS HUMAN LIFE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Radium administered internally can prolong human life and cure many ailments, Dr. E. Stillman Bailey declared today at the fourth annual convention of the Central Society of Physical Therapeutists.

Dr. Bailey told of the renewed youth of the men working in the radium mines of Colorado. During the influenza epidemic, he said, these workers were immune. Ailmens such as rheumatism, gout and neuritis were unknown. He attributed the excellent state of health of these men to their drinking water charged with radium.

"The rays caught in sugar of milk and made up into tablets, taken internally," he said, "seem to work miracles. I have dispensed thousands of radium tablets in Chicago and their results, especially among old people, are nothing short of marvelous. A veritable fairyland of science stands revealed.

"One of the principal causes of old age is the hardening of the arteries, due to increased blood pressure. This the radium tablets prevent. Their effect on the human system is startling. Acute pains disappear as if by magic. The invalidism characteristic of old age vanishes.

"Jaded appetites become keen again. Red blood corpuscles have increased by 250,000 within forty-eight hours. Radium is a wonderful tonic and blood remedy. Its possibilities are still undreamed of."

Dr. Bailey exhibited photographs of plants whose growth, he said, had been stimulated by radium. One tomato vine had grown to the height of ten feet four inches, he said, by the introduction into the soil near the roots of four pieces of uranium ore.

FIND LOST PHYSICIAN IN CANADIAN WILDS

Indians Rescue Dr. Chambers of Toronto—Had No Food or Fire Since He Disappeared.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Oct. 12.—Dr. Graham Chambers, a Toronto physician, who was lost in the bush near Atikokan, a divisional point of the Canadian National Railways, since Sept. 29, was found alive but in a weakened condition at noon today near Deer Lake, about twenty-two miles northwest of Atikokan.

Dr. Chambers was found by two Indians who were members of a large searching party, including several of Dr. Chambers's former scholars. The party tonight is in camp at Deer Lake. They have made the doctor as comfortable as possible and will start from Atikokan tomorrow on the way to Fort Francis.

According to meagre information, Dr. Chambers had been without food or fire for practically all the thirteen days since he was lost. He and his nephew left Clearwater Lake for Eye Lake on a fishing trip. His nephew left Dr. Chambers in the bush and on returning found he had disappeared.

Deny Stinnes Is in German Lloyd.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—The management of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company informs The Associated Press that the recent reports of direct or indirect acquisition by Hugo Stinnes of large Lloyd shares are without foundation. This announcement was made after an interview between the Lloyd directorate and Herr Stinnes.

Preacher Is Fined $25 For Calling a Judge 'Wet'

BEDFORD CITY, Va., Oct. 12.—Holding that preachers are dealing too much in politics now instead of preaching the Gospel, Judge B. C. Scott of Richmond yesterday imposed a fine of $25 on the Rev. T. E. Boorde for alleged contemptuous remarks concerning Judge P. H. Dillard, who, it was alleged, was referred to by the minister as a "wet" jurist.

Judge Scott, who presided at the hearing of the case, held that citizens had a right to criticise court decisions and Judges that rendered them, but he said he did not think any man should be attacked when he is not present to defend himself.

At a recent meeting of a church association Mr. Boorde is alleged to have said in part: "Brave revenue officers risk their lives, right here in Bedford County, only to have evaders of the law, whom they have taken such efforts to catch, acquitted by a 'wet' Judge. I am speaking of Judge P. H. Dillard, and in case any of his friends are present or hear what I say today, my name is T. E. Boorde."

An appeal was noted in the case.

U. S. COURT GRANTS 8-CENT JERSEY FARE

JUDGE DAVIS DISSENTS

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 12.—Pending determination of the Public Service Railway Company's litigation for a 10-cent trolley fare, Federal Judges Woolley and Rellstab today granted the company permission to increase its rate from seven to eight cents, with an additional charge of one cent for a transfer. The order also grants a temporary injunction restraining the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners from enforcing its decision of last July, fixing the fare at seven cents, with two cents extra for a transfer.

Judge Davis filed a dissenting opinion, declaring: "If the court in this case is right, the Interstate Commerce Commission has confiscated the property of every railroad in the country—a most unlikely assumption."

The opinion by Judges Woolley and Rellstab holds that the Utility Board underestimated or excluded from its valuations approximately $20,000,000 of the company's properties, and as the rates fixed by the board provide no return on these excluded properties, they are confiscatory. The only question, the majority opinion says, is whether the rate fixed by the State body is confiscatory "because based on a valuation of the property less than its worth at the present time." The Judges hold that the rate is confiscatory and therefore in violation of the Federal Constitution.

The rate fixed by the Utility Board, Judge Davis points out, gives the company a return of $5,842,500, which, after paying all operating costs, is nearly 5¾ per cent. on the increased valuation fixed by the court itself. The Interstate Commerce Commission "composed of men of ability and experience and having at their command an advisory board of noted experts, allows the railroads a return of only 5½ per cent.," says Judge Davis.

"Assuming that the board did underestimate or wholly exclude the properties to the extent of $20,000,000 in view of the rate of return that the board's order permits, I should hesitate to say on a preliminary application, without the benefit of a full hearing, with many questions in doubt, that it was confiscatory," Judge Davis adds.

To grant the increase to 8 cents, Judge Davis figures the court has added $20,000,000 to the value of the property of the Public Service Corporation, although the Public Utility Board had already allowed $12,000,000 appreciation to go into the final valuation. The court's order will give the company additional earning of approximately $1,400,000 a year, which is 7 per cent. on $20,000,000 of property. Adding this latter sum to the valuation of $82,000,000 already allowed by the Utility Board, the court's action brings the valuation to $102,000,000.

The Utility Board placed the physical cost of the property at $70,000,000 and the figures as accepted by the court. The Utility Board, Judge Davis holds, "might have authoritatively said that it would be unfair to the public to base rates on an appreciated value to abnormal war prices, but it did not, and in its efforts to be fair allowed $12,000,000 appreciation to go into the final valuation for the purpose of fixing a rate of return."

SELECT MOTHER OF V. C. TO BRING WREATH HERE

Mrs. McCudden, Who Lost Three Sons, Son-in-Law and Two Nephews, to Go to Arlington.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Mrs. McCudden, mother of the late Major Byford McCudden, V. C., of the Royal Air Force, has been chosen to take to Arlington a national wreath for the grave of the Unknown American Warrior. This selection was made today under the auspices of the Pilgrim Fathers' Association from a list of eight mothers bereaved in the war. Over 600 of these mothers had expressed the wish to undertake the duty and the final choice was not easy.

Mrs. McCudden's husband, who was accidentally killed last year, had thirty years' army service. She had three sons killed in the war and also lost her son-in-law and two nephews on active service.

Mrs. McCudden will take with her a parchment roll bearing the names of sympathizers enclosed in a casket made of oak taken from H. M. S. Impregnable. Six feet high, the wreath will be in five sections and will consist of flowers representing England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland and the dominions. It will be preserved in a ton and a half of ice.

"I am very proud that I have been chosen," Mrs. McCudden said tonight, "for I know I shall go as the representative of every mother who mourns a fallen son. I have just come back from France, where I have been visiting the graves of two of my sons."

Mrs. McCudden added that she hoped her selection for the great honor of representing British mothers would not be criticized on the ground that she had officer sons.

"Each of my boys joined the forces as a bugler and rose from the ranks," she added.

WHITE'S PAPERS RETURNED.

Two Boxes Are Found at Entrance to Estate, but Robbers Keep Jewels.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 12.—Two leather boxes of valuable private papers, which were taken from Henry White's Lenox home on Monday night with $25,000 worth of jewels, were returned to him today.

The two boxes, tied separately with several of Mr. White's silk bow ties, were found this morning on a stone coping at the north entrance to Elm Court, Mrs. White's estate. The boxes had been opened with skeleton keys and the jewelry removed. All papers, including passports, bankbooks, blank checks, insurance papers and letters were intact. Mr. and Mrs. White say the boxes were not on the coping when they returned from a dinner party last night.

Local detectives say the burglars are still in Lenox and guards about the large estate have been doubled tonight.

SnyderSays M.C.'s PlayRaces,Hints at 'Bones' As Bill Barring Mails to Bet Odds Passes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Transmission through the mails of newspapers publishing betting odds on horse races, prize fights and "other contests of speed, strength or skill," would be prohibited under a bill passed today, without a roll call, by the House. Senate concurrence is needed before the measure can become a law.

As introduced by Representative Ramseyer, Republican, of Iowa, the bill was designed to tighten the postal laws to exclude fraudulent devices and lottery paraphernalia from the mails. Representative Walsh, Republican, of Massachusetts, offered an amendment, which was adopted by a vive voce vote, to extend the ban to newspapers and "dope sheets" which quote betting odds. Imprisonment of not more than five years or a fine of not more than $5,000 would be provided for publishers violating the law.

Launching into a discussion of the evils of gambling, Mr. Walsh declared that if the gambling spirit were not abated, "we will wake up some fine morning and find the United States in the same sort of a fix as Russia is in."

Washington, he declared, was "gambling mad," with betting going on "even within the confines of the Capitol grounds." Crowds congregated in front of Pennsylvania Avenue bulletin boards late in the afternoon, he added, to "check the winners."

Mr. Stevenson, Democrat, of South Carolina, suggested that it might be well to prohibit "bookies" from circulating daily among clerks in Government departments, soliciting bets, while Mr. Wingo, Democrat, of Arkansas, asked Mr. Walsh whether a favorite had "fallen down" in the last few days.

Mr. Snyder, Republican, of New York, declared that "practically every member of the House" had bet on the races.

"There may be some men here in the House," he added, "who have some bones in their pockets with spots on them."

About one hundred members of the House were on the floor when the Walsh amendment and the bill were approved.

WILSON DEMOCRACY FIGHTS GERMAN PACT

CAMPAIGN PROMISES CITED

Approaching Vote Brings Statement From Executive Committee Following Recent Meeting.

Hamilton Holt, President of the Woodrow Wilson Democracy, announced yesterday that the Executive Committee of the organization, at a meeting on Oct. 7, had "unanimously placed itself as being opposed to the ratification of a separate treaty of peace with Germany" and had directed that a copy of the following statement be forwarded to each member of the United States Senate:

"It is expected that the members of the Senate of the United States will, on Oct. 15, 1921, indicate by their votes whether the treaty of peace with Germany, negotiated by the President through the Secretary of State, should be ratified.

"In view of this fact the Woodrow Wilson Democracy deem it their duty to call to the attention of the United States Senate the following:

"On Oct. 15, 1920, there appeared in the public press throughout the United States, over the signatures of Charles E. Hughes, Herbert Hoover, Elihu Root, Henry L. Stimson, George W. Wickersham and twenty-six other representative and distinguished Republicans, the following:

"'The question accordingly is not between a League and no League, but is whether certain provisions in the proposed League agreement shall be accepted unchanged or shall be changed.

"'The conditions or Europe make it essential that the stabilizing effect of the treaty already made between the European powers shall not be lost by them and that the necessary changes be made by changing the terms of that treaty rather than beginning entirely anew.

"'The Republican Party is bound by every consideration of good faith to pursue such a course until the desired object is attained.

"'That course Mr. Harding is willing to follow.'

"The Democratic platform adopted at San Francisco July 2, 1920, contained the following:

"'We cannot make peace except in company with our allies. It would brand us with everlasting dishonor and bring ruin to us also if we undertook to make a separate peace.

"'We commend the Democrats in Congress for voting against resolutions for separate peace which would disgrace the nation.'

"At a meeting held Oct. 7, 1921, the Executive Committee of the Woodrow Wilson Democracy unanimously placed itself on record as being opposed to the ratification of a separate treaty of peace with Germany and directed the President of the Woodrow Wilson Democracy to forward to each of the members of the Senate of the United States a copy of this statement."

The Woodrow Wilson Democracy, formed last May, now has a membership extending into fourteen States, it was said. Plans are being made to cover the entire country. Its officers are: Mr. Holt, President; Mrs. Francis C. Barlow, Vice President; Charles C. Bauer, Secretary, and Schuyler N. Warren, Treasurer. The Executive Committee includes Schuyler N. Warren Jr., Chairman; Mrs. Francis C. Barlow, Charles C. Bauer, Charles E. Clarke, Mrs. Stokes Hallett, Hamilton Holt, George K. Hunton, John W. A. Kelley, James Duane Livingston, Miss C. R. Lowell, Mrs. James Erskine Neal and Ralph W. Westcott.

GIVE AGE AT POLLS, MRS. CURRAN URGES

Mother of Coalition Mayoralty Candidate Tells Women 'Brutal Truth' Will Protect Votes.

Mrs. John E. Curran, mother of the Coalition candidate for Mayor, who is an active member of the Republican Committee of One Hundred, urged women to tell the "brutal truth" about their ages at the polls, at a meeting in the apartment of Mrs. Horace E. Dickinson at the Hotel Buckingham yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Curran told of a case where one ageless Mary Smith was followed very soon at the same polling place by a second ageless Mary Smith, with the result that the vote of the latter was challenged. She said there was danger of confusion if women were not willing to identify themselves by their ages. In a discussion that followed later other members of the committee disagreed with the speaker.

"It may be very well for Mrs. Curran to tell her own age," said one woman, "but for many women not to do so is a matter of self-protection both in business and social life. Men know that a large number of women would refuse to go to the polls rather than tell their ages and have made it possible for women to avoid such a revelation."

John Kirkland Clark, nominee for District Attorney, and John H. Iselin, nominee for Judge of General Sessions, also spoke. The meeting was the first of an endless chain of home meetings organized by Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard, Chairman of the Republican Committee of One Hundred, to be continued up to election day.

Women Oppose Veteran Preference.

Mrs. Francis M. Bacon, Chairman of the New York and New Jersey Section of the Women's Department in the National Civic Federation, issued an appeal yesterday to all women voters to oppose the Constitutional amendment—known as Number One—which would give war veterans preference in appointment and promotion in the Civil Service of the State.

A BUSINESS MEN'S DRIVE

Piano Manufacturer Says He Intends to Organize Campaign in Every Borough.

Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, appealed yesterday to women in this city to support Major Henry H. Curran and Senator Charles C. Lockwood, Coalition candidates for Mayor and Controller, respectively. She pronounced the school and housing situation the dominant issues of the campaign.

"Mr. Curran, the candidate for Mayor, I know and can approve very highly," said Mrs. Robinson. "He is a man of character, experience and purpose, who believes in what my brother, Theodore Roosevelt, described as the call to service—the necessity that every one who lives in a community should do something to help it and to improve conditions under which others are living.

"Senator Lockwood is a typical representative New Yorker, a real American in the broadest patriotic sense. He has been an assiduous and intelligent worker in every good and worthy cause which appeals to women—in the Legislature, in civic circles—an advocate of good laws and an adversary of evil ones. He will make a splendid Controller."

Mrs. Robinson said the municipal campaign was to a great extent a woman's fight—"a battle for the things that count in the home, for the family and for those better and brighter things for which we are really struggling and hope to see secure for those who are to follow us."

Albert Behning, a piano manufacturer, announced at Coalition headquarters in the Murray Hill Hotel that in a few days he would organize a campaign of business men in every borough in support of the Coalition candidates.

Mr. Behning said that one reason why business men are opposed to Mayor Hylan was the laxity of his administration in law enforcement. This had led to an increase in unsolved murders and in losses from burglaries until, despite advancing rates, companies dealing in burglary insurance, as well as many of those insured as a result of the rate increase, had been forced out of business, he said.

Another cause, Mr. Behning found, was the increased tax rate.

The Lockwood campaign headquarters were opened yesterday in Brooklyn, at 202 Patchen Avenue; in Queens, at Jamaica Avenue and Harriman Street, and in the Bronx, at 161st Street and St. Ann's Avenue.

Thomas J. McCann has been appointed Chairman of the General Campaign Committee of Senator Lockwood, but U. S. Senator Calder will be the chief strategist of his fight.

Major Curran did not speak yesterday. He was celebrating the sixteenth anniversary of his wedding. Asked what he cared to say about Mayor Hylan's comment on his statment concerning the Transit Commission's report, he said:

"Ask the Mayor who wrote the statement for him. Ask him also how often he rides in the subway. He talks about a five-cent fare, but he hasn't got to pay any carfare nor has he got to hang on to a strap twice a day, wedged in amid a crowd packed to suffocation in a subway car, the way the rest of us do. I am in favor of a five-cent fare, but I am for decent service with it. That's where we differ."

NOMINATE PRISONERS AGAIN.

Workers' League Renews Petitions for Zitlow and Winitsky.

Officials of the Workers' League announced last night that they would file new petitions today with the Board of Elections naming Benjamin Gitlow and Harry Winitsky candidates for Mayor and President of the Board of Aldermen. They said that they would give the residence of the two candidates as New York City instead of "Sing Sing Prison, Ossining," as in the former petition, declared invalid by the board.

"We are going to establish that these men are residents of the city," said Edward Lindgren, Secretary of the League, "and that they are citizens. These new petitions will be filed by the Committee on Vacancies and the Board of Elections will be asked to decide at once as to whether the candidates named shall be placed on the ballots.

"If the board again rules against Gitlow and Winitsky, we shall resort to legal action."

Gitlow and Winitsky were convicted under the State Criminal Anarchy law. The Board of Elections has ruled that their conviction deprived them of citizenship.

GOLD CONFERENCE URGED IN LONDON

JOINT MEETING SUGGESTED

London Socialist Weekly Urges That Britain Pay Its Debt to America in Goods.

Copyright, 1921, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Daily Telegraph, supporting editorially Professor Cassel's arguments in favor of international measures for the stabilization of gold, says:

"There is a strong and indeed overwhelming case for prompt action, which we suggest should take the shape of a joint Anglo-American conference, with the object of creating what Dr. Cassel calls a centre of stability and of stabilizing the value of gold. It is the United States which can help most in this matter, and we would appeal therefore to her statesmen to abandon the policy of financial isolation which they have adopted more or less.

"Since the armistice America has taken up a strictly self-centred—we will not call it selfish—line of action with regard to all these most difficult monetary problems. She has drawn across the Atlantic all available stocks of gold that came within the influence of her irresistible magnets. Her Treasury vaults must resemble, on an infinitely larger scale, those of King Croesus, and the whole world is her debtor.

"And yet, though America is bursting with bullion, she is faced with a far bigger unemployment problem than we have in this country, and most of the gold in her vaults might as well be lying deep in some cave in mid-Atlantic for all the benefit that it is to her and to her industrial population.

"For the greatest creditor nation to be suffering most acutely from the world's monetary crisis is one of the supreme ironies of history. * * * That the United States can do more than any other country to stabilize the value of gold is not in dispute, nor is it in dispute that this country occupies the next best position, but hitherto American statesmanship has been steadfastly opposed to any policy which would seem to weaken America's position as the premier creditor nation and as the nation which holds the vastest stock of gold.

"Even today the suggestion of an all-round cancellation of debt meets with the same response which Mr. Chamberlain's offer met with in 1919—an offer that Great Britain should cancel the debts owing to her from the allied nations if the United States in turn would cancel a similar amount of Britain's debt to her, most of which debt, it is to be remembered, was incurred by Great Britain not for herself but for her allies, the United States preferring to have the name of Britain on the bond because she thought the security would be better. * * *

"If the two countries could work out a practicable scheme for stabilizing the value of gold, a great improvement would immediately take place, and any loss sustained by the United States would surely soon be counterbalanced by her revived trading activity.

"No problem is half so urgent. In a world where the nations are so closely interdependent upon one another for their industrial life the present shaking instability at its foundations with respect to money and gold threatens to bring the whole structure down with a crash. If the United States and the United Kingdom cannot save it, none else can."

Could Pay America in Goods.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Socialist weekly, The New Age, makes the following contribution to the discussion regarding the question of the British debt to the United States.

"Congress is reluctant to sanction even the funding of the allied debts; still less will it hear of any proposal for remitting them. What a mass of make-believe lies behind all these questions of international debts! Under our insane economic system no nation could afford to repay the full of its debt within any reasonable time limit. We may yet be found insisting on a low figure for Germany's reparation to us, and Germany pressing on us a far larger sum.

"At any rate, it is a pity that our Government does not hasten to call America's bluff in the matter of our debt. Our war experience proves that we could produce £1,000,000,000 worth of goods in eighteen months, in addition to providing for the ordinary needs of our people. We are tired of pointing out the absurdity of asking where the money is to come from. One might answer, where all the money always comes from.

"But, to treat the question more seriously, if we have, as it is proved we have, the necessary real credit, that is if we are technically able to deliver the goods, that real credit is potential money. Let our Government boldly offer to pay the whole debt in any kind of goods America may prefer within eighteen months. It would mean, of course, a great rise in prices unless these were regulated; but even so, it would employ the unemployed.

"As, however, it would also destroy America's industries, we should not have to make good our offer. Still, we should have knocked out of Washington's hands the big stick which it now holds over us."

BANDITS DRUG STAFF, ROB BANK IN MANITOBA

Captured by Citizens' Posse in a Haystack After Their Auto Breaks Down.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Oct. 12.—Five robbers who this afternoon drugged the manager and two women clerks of the Bank of Hochelaga, at Elie, Manitoba, and escaped with between $40,000 and $60,000 cash and securities, were captured about 5 o'clock after being surrounded in a haystack near Elie by a citizens' posse.

The robbers drugged A. Pherer, manager of the bank, and his two clerks, both young women. They will recover. The safe was rifled, the bandits getting out of town before an alarm was sounded.

About two miles and a half from Elie the bandits' car broke down and the men took to their heels, carrying their booty in two satchels. They were pursued by villagers.

After their capture the bandits, all of whom were youthful, confessed they were amateurs at bank robbery. They said they had read in the daily press that the banks of Manitoba were not well protected and decided to try their hand at some "easy money."

FOR 460 HOUSE MEMBERS.

Republican Caucus Votes 94 to 76, After Fight, to Support Seigel Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—House Republicans at a caucus tonight decided to support the Siegel bill to increase the size of the House from 435 to 460 members. It was said that 94 members agreed to vote for the bill while 76 indicated they would oppose it.

Vigorous opposition to the measure developed at the caucus, it is understood, several members of the Census Committee leading the fight to retain the present size of the House in opposition to the stand of Chairman Siegel and the majority of the Republican membership of the committee.

Russian Communists Expel Educated Members of Party

MOSCOW, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—The "cleansing of the Communist Party," as it is described here, continues throughout Russia. The local newspapers are filled with reports from the provinces announcing the expulsion of communists after investigation of their record by the party councils.

Nizhni-Novgrod has expelled 985 members from its council, chiefly men of the educated classes, on the following charges: Bribery, 148; breaking the party discipline, 146; drunkenness, 125; inclination toward the Menshevist Party, 140; for being religious, 87; for cowardice, 114, and for indifference to party, 225.

Figures received from Petrograd show that there now are 30,000 communists there, but the number who have been expelled is not given. There have been numerous expulsions from the party in Moscow.

According to the Izvestia, the official organ of the Russian Communist party, membership in that party shrunk from over 600,000 in May, 1920, to 200,000 in September, 1921.

LAWRENCE MURDER SUSPECT ARRESTED

Newark Detectives Say He Had Bloody Handkerchief Bearing Initial "L."

TAKEN TO SCENE OF CRIME

"Kill Me—I Wish I Were Dead!" Prisoner Is Quoted as Having Said There.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, N. J., Oct. 12.—Four Newark detectives yesterday arrested a man who said he was Frank Ruke, 30 years old and homeless, on suspicion that he knew something about the murder of eleven-year-old Janette Lawrence in Kluxen's Woods on last Thursday.

Captain Frank E. Brex, Lieutenant James Farrell and Detective Sergeants James Bell and Charles Chunell were riding in an automobile along Kings Road, between this place and Chatham, when they saw Ruke, who was acting suspiciously.

The four detectives were returning to Newark after testifying before the Morris County Grand Jury at Morristown, which is investigating the slaying. Ruke was reluctant in answering questions about his whereabouts last Thursday, and they detained him.

The detectives drove their car to the woods in which the girl's body was found, but when they attempted to lead Ruke to the spot, they said, he ran away, shouting: "Kill me. I wish I were dead." He was taken to the fallen tree beside which the body was found, but, according to the detectives, he screened his face with his hands and refused to look at the spot.

At the County Court House at Morristown the detectives and Prosecutor Mills attempted to obtain a statement of his movements on the day of the murder. His answers were inconerent.

The police said that when Ruke was searched a blood-stained handkerchief with the initial "L" was found in one of the pockets of his coat. Several persons who were in the vicinity of Kluxen's Woods immediately before and after the murder were summoned to look at Ruke, but they said they never had seen him before.

HEARS KING ALEXANDER BALKS ON SUCCESSOR

Vienna Reports He Insists on Choosing Him—Strong Faction Wants Prince George.

VIENNA, Oct .12 (Associated Press).—A serious situation has arisen in Serbia over the question of the succession to the throne in the event of King Alexander's death, according to information in well-informed quarters here. It is this that is causing Alexander's delay in assuming his kingly office and keeping him in Paris. It is understood that Alexander insists upon his right to name his successor, while a strong group, largely militaristic, has rallied around his brother, Prince George.

A graver problem is said to underlie the situation. Radical supporters of Prince George are even advancing his right to immediate accession to the throne, as the elder heir, and threaten serious consequences should Alexander return.

Another cause of King Alexander's delay in Paris is reported to be the discovery of many communist plots to assassinate him should he attempt to return, with the intention later of establishing a republic.

PARIS, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—The Jugoslav Legation reaffirmed today the status of King Alexander as the ruler of Jugoslavia, in succession to King Peter, and made formal denial of reports that Alexander had abdicated or would renounce the throne. The official statement says the King "does not think of abdicating in favor of his brother George."

Except for this brief statement from the legation, no explanation is offered for the curious sequence of facts connected with King Alexander's long delay in proceeding to Belgrade to take the crown. He was in Paris at the time of the death of King Peter and was expected, after recovering from an illness, to proceed to Belgrade for the ceremony of coronation. Premier Pachitch arrived here from Belgrade within the last few days with the apparent purpose of determining the status of the crown. There have been several conferences, but the only authoritative information thus far given is the legation's statement today that the King does not think of abdicating in favor of his brother.

MESSAGE TAX KEPT; CHEWING GUM CUT

Senate Agrees to Eliminate Impost on Parcel Post Packages.

AUTO TAXES STAY IN BILL

PROMPT PASSAGE PREDICTED

Penrose Asserts Sales Tax and Minority Amendments Will Get No Consideration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—During the intervals when chewing gum, the activities of the farmers' group, the composition of coca cola and other matters were not the subject of debate the Senate made some progress today with the tax revision bill, concluding the second reading of the measure at 5:30 o'clock.

By a vote of 32 to 26 the tax on telegraph, telephone, radio and cable messages was retained in the bill. The tax on parcel post packages was eliminated without a roll call. A tax of 3 per cent. on automobile trucks and wagons and their accessories and one of 5 per cent. on other automobiles and motorcycles was agreed to.

The proposed reduction of the tax on chewing gum aroused Senator Reed, who wanted to know if the reduction was to pay a debt to Mr. Wrigley of Chicago for his contributions to the "great moral victory" of November, 1920. He estimated that the reduction would save the chewing gum men about $1,000,000.

"If there is anything made and consumed by the human family," exclaimed Senator Reed, "that is utterly useless, it's chewing gum. A few moments ago you taxed all the telegrams and telephone messages and other means of transmission of messages $28,000,000, and now you are asking for a reduction on chewing gum. Who made this chewing gum bargain? I am serious. Who made it? We are entitled to know."

Senators Curtis, Watson and Smoot, members of the Finance Committee, denied that such an agreement as hinted by Senator Reed had been made. They said it was a nuisance tax, and for that reason a reduction had been thought advisable by some of the majority members. Mr. Curtis denied that the "farmers' bloc" had anything to do with the reduction.

Ashurst Defends Farmers' Group.

Senator Ashurst, one of the Democratic members of the "farmers' bloc," declared that the "bloc" was never in better working order. Its membership, he said, consisted of ten "brave and determined Republicans" and the same number of "brave and determined Democrats," who were banded together to help the farmer and intended to see to it that the farmer should get justice at the hands of this Congress.

"The tiller of the soil shall have justice. Just put that in your book," exclaimed Senator Ashurst, facing the Republicans. The "bloc," he continued, would demand and expected to get a farmer on the Federal Reserve Board, and it would have the farmer protected in the new tariff bill or know the reason why.

"The farmer," he said, "will be protected or there will be no tariff."

YANKEES DEFEATED BY THEIR MISPLAYS

Analysis Reveals That McGraw's 2 to 1 Victory Should Have Been a 1 to 0 Reverse.

Fleetness and Judgment Is Noted as an Important Factor in Their Attack.

The entire story of the Yankees' defeat revolves around fatal breaks in the infield play. Yesterday's game, incidentally, was the first in which infield errors contributed directly to the undoing of the American Leaguers. In the first four contests McNally, Peck, Ward and Pipp were as steady as a rock, and even the most crushing attack of the Giants could not break them down. But beginning with the fifth game the infield play of the Yankees has been on the down grade, and it culminated yesterday in a pair of misplays that paved the way for both the runs that were scored off the puzzling delivery of Carl Mays.

In each instance there were two out when the Giants pushed their run over the plate, and the only flaws that could be detected in Mays's pitching lie in the fact that Carl was not able to prevent the Giants from hitting after errors had put runners on the bases. In the fourth inning Young got aboard the base lines when Ward fumbled his hard grounder, although the scorers credited Ross with a hit. He stole second as Kelly fanned for the second out, and Mays then gave Irish Meusel a slow pitch through the heart of the plate. Irish met it squarely and lifted it cleanly over second base for the single that drove Young in with the tying run.

Again, in the seventh Rawlings got to first when Ward made a rank fumble of his grounder, and Mays gave Snyder one over the plate which Big Frank hammered almost to a straight centre for a two-bagger that scored Rawlings. These two hits—Meusel's in the fourth and Snyder's in the seventh—were worth a dozen base hits. They hurt Mays more than a flock of minor hits could have done, and they completed the damage that Carl's own team mates had begun.

Giants Efficient on Bases.

As was the case in the preceding game, the Giants yesterday made clean and efficient use of the stolen base. Both teams have now subsided from the wild fever that gripped them in the early contests. But the Giants are showing rare judgment in their base stealing and are using it as an integral part of their attack. The only instance of this yesterday came in the fourth inning, with Young on base and two down. As Kelly swung at the third strike Young darted for second and slid safely into the bag under Schang's rather high throw. Emil Meusel followed up this excellent bit of baseball by singling coldly to centre, and Young, having reached a scoring position, was able to canter over the plate on the hit, carrying with him the run that tied the score.

Although they possessed few opportunities, the Giants were inclined to be a bit more dashing in their base running than the Yankees. Burns's case in the fifth inning is a typical instance, although it failed. With two down, the quiet, business-like centrefielder slashed a hot double to centre field. When Miller, cutting across at an angle after the ball, knocked it to one side, Burns made a daring attempt to reach third. Miller, however, effected a quick recovery and threw to Baker in time to nip Burns by the narrowest of margins.

The Giants backed up their pitcher better than did the American Leaguers. In this connection one recalls the fine throw of Irish Meusel to stop Fewster at second when Ruth's substitute was attempting to stretch his single to left into a two-bagger. Bancroft made a good stop of Meusel's throw and had the ball on the runner like a flash. Rawlings's jumping capture of Mays's drive stopped the Yankee rally in the second, and the same player played his second base in faultless fashion.

Wally Pipp a Master at First.

Wally Pipp was a master of first base play. Some of his best plays reflected the unsteady quality of the Yankee infield, for he had to make brilliant one-hand stops of throws that were wide or high. In the eighth, for instance, Pipp had to go high in the air to nail Peck's lofty throw on Bancroft's grounder. But Wally's greatest contribution followed a low heave by McNally in the second. The latter grabbed Meusel's grounder and then threw wild to the outside of the bag. The toss was also very low and Pipp had to bend over, put his glove in the very path of the runner and make a backhanded catch almost under the flashing spikes of Meusel's shoe.

Against the puzzling pitching of Mays the Giants drove only eight balls past the infield. Five of these were clean hits, the other three easy flies for the outfielders. Bob Meusel got one, Miller two, and Chick Fewster, patrolling Ruth's territory, had not a fly to his credit. Seven of the Giants expired on strikes, and the other outs were all handled in the confines of the infield.

Douglas was not far behind Mays in his ability to keep the ball out of the outfield. All of the eight hits off him reached the outer garden, but aside from these the Giant outfielders had only four flies to handle. Douglas fanned only three, and by far the majority of his outs came on infield chances, none of them very hard at that. Shuffling Phil walked only one man—Miller in the eighth—but Mays got by without a pass.

An analysis of the box score shows that only thirty batters faced Mays in the eight actual innings that he pitched. Of the seven on bases two scored, showing the true economy of effort which the Giants used. On the other hand, Douglas pitched to thirty-five batters in nine innings. Twenty-seven were retired, one scored and seven were left on the bases. This shows that Phil was more often in a hole but had better success in getting out, thanks partly to his own skill and partly to air-tight support behind him.

Yankees Better in Attack.

On cleanness of attack the Yankees had the better of it. No more compact and close-jointed work than theirs in the second could be possible. Pipp, the opening batter, doubled to left. Huggins, of course, ordered a sacrifice as this juncture to send the runner to third where either a single or a sacrifice fly could score him. McNally took advantage of the Giants' infield playing in close to cut a clean single between Rawlings and Kelly. Had the same sort of attack prevailed against Douglas in the seventh, when Mays grounded out with runners on second and third, Douglas would have been beaten.

Phil's success in getting past this menace was the turning point of the game for the stoop-shouldered twirler. That was his worst inning except the second, when a run was scored. He allowed only one hit in the eighth and ninth and ended the game by fielding Schang's grounder for the final out, just as he did in Sunday's victory over Mays.

The work of Huggins's underhand twirler was superior to that on Sunday, when his sweeping curves held the Giants at bay until the eighth inning. He started off badly yesterday, and every ball hit in the first inning was a hard drive. Burns drove clear to the bleachers before Meusel caught his fly. Bancroft jammed a hard double to left field. Frisch shot a fly to deep centre, long enough for Bancroft to trot to third. And then Young lined a hot drive that nearly took Mays's arm off before he broke it down and got the batter at first.

But thereafter the Giants swung under or over Mays's puzzling "submarine" ball and constantly topped it to the infield. They were saved from defeat because they made two hits—a single and a double—when hits were worth a million dollars. These were the straws that broke the camel's back.

M'GRAW FORECASTS LAST VICTORY TODAY

"If Giants Are Not World's Champions by Sundown, I'll Be Disappointed, He Says.

"If the Giants are not the world's champion by sundown tomorrow I will be greatly disappointed." John McGraw was speaking. He was standing in his office in the club house just after his culb had nosed out the Yankees in the seventh game of the series yesterday. McGraw's face is generally a mask. In defeat or in victory it seldom reveals his real inner feelings. But yesterday it fairly radiated the joy he felt.

"One of the things that please me most about the work of the Giants in the series thus far is the fact that in each of the four games we have won we have had to come from behind to clinch the victory. It proves as nothing else could the fine fighting spirit of the Giants. It shows that my players are never beaten until the last man has been retired. Douglas, in spite of a heavy cold, pitched the fine game I expected him to. He has been right in this series and when he is right he is one of the best pitchers in baseball. I think the Yankees will agree with me in this statement. He had a little difficulty in the first three innings this afternoon, but thereafter he held the Yanks to three hits and only in the seventh did they threaten to score.

"Just which of my pitchers I will work in the eighth game tomorrow I do not know now. I have quite an assortment to select from. Jess Barnes is just champing on the bit. He is very anxious to get another crack at the Yankees and has asked me to let him pitch tomorrow's game. I also have Arthur Nehf, Pat Shea, Fred Toney and Slim Sallee. That's quite an array isn't it. On the other hand, I naturally figure that Huggins must come back with Waite Hoyt and I think that we can take Hoyt's measure. I will not definitely decide which of my pitchers I will use until I see how they warm up before the game. I want to get a real line on just which of them appears to be right. That man will draw the assignment, with the others held in reserve to meet any emergency that may arise.

"The players are all on their toes. They proved that this afternoon. They were awake to all opportunities, and that is the way to win ball games. No player can afford to take a nap during a world's series. He has to keep his eyes open and play smart baseball. That's what the Giants have played in the last two games. That's the reason I believe we will be the world's champions about 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon."

$804,781 SETS NEW MARK FOR RECEIPTS

Returns for Seven Games Are $82,367 Higher Than for Eight Games in 1919 Record.

A new mark for world's series receipts was reached yesterday, when the gate receipts for the seventh game of the 1921 struggle sent the total for the current series up to $804,781. This amount is $82,367 in excess of the previous record, established in 1919, when eight games between the Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago White Sox drew a total of $722,414. The series between the Cleveland Indians and the Brooklyn Robins last year drew $564,800, which ranked as the second highest for any series up to this year. No other set of games in the past touched the half-million mark.

The growth of the world's series is reflected in a comparison of the figures of the current series and the games between the Giants and Mackmen in 1905, when the first series was played under the supervision of the old National Commission. That series is still recalled vividly by many fans who have been witnessing this year's games between Giants and Yankees. Five games in 1905 drew 91,723 fans and a gate of $68,455, as against 244,566 fans and $804,781 this year for seven games. The total to date is almost twelve times the gate money for the 1905 series.

A new attendance record for world's series will be reached today. So far 244,566 fans have paid to see Giants and Yankees perform, and this is only 7,344 below the record figure of 1912, when eight games between the Red Sox and Mackmen attracted 251,901 fans. The Cincinnati-Chicago series of 1919 drew 236,928 fans for eight games, and this mark is almost 8,000 below the figure reached in seven games between Giants and Yanks.

The only record for attendance or receipts not broken or in danger is that of attendance at a single game. The greatest world's series crowd was 42,600 for the Red Sox-Robins game at Braves Field, Boston, on Oct. 12, 1916.

Sallee Ordered From Fence.

In the fifth inning of the seventh game Umpire Rigler, poised at second base, whirled suddenly and saw Slim Sallee sitting upon the turf and leaning against the fence in centre field. On a bench near-by were Pat Shea and Mike Gonzales. Rigler halted proceedings and ordered the Giants' distant twirler away from the fence.

HUGGINS, SORRY FOR MAYS, HAS NO ALIBI

Misplays a Part of Baseball, Says Manager—Puts Hopes for Today in Hoyt.

"In all my years in baseball I don't think I ever felt so sorry for a pitcher who lost a ball game as I felt for Carl Mays this afternoon," said Miller Huggins last night, when asked about the setback which his team received in yesterday's game with the Giants at the Polo Grounds. "It was a wonderful performance by Mays, one of the greatest games he ever pitched, and you cannot give him too much credit for his work. With so much depending on the game and two fine performances behind him, he gave an exhibition that ought to stand up with the best in world's series history. He had everything, showed fine judgment, was always courageous but unfortunate as regards victory.

"Still, I have no complaints to make on the other side of the story—the misplays. They are part of baseball and will be as long as the game is played. There never was and never will be a perfect player, and the errors have to be taken with the great plays. All form a part. My team played hard all the way, never gave up when the breaks went against it, and we have no excuses nor regrets—except that we could not win.

"At the same time, I do not want to appear as minimizing the work of Douglas. He has shown us a lot of fine pitching in this series and showed us plenty today. In saying that Mays should have won I would not wish to appear to be reflecting on Douglas's work. One was brilliant, the other more so.

"I am coming back with Hoyt for the eighth game and I believe he will win. He has shown fine form in his two starts and I believe he can repeat. My players realize that they have to win this one to stay in the series and they have always been able to rise to the greatest emergencies. Today was the first time since the series opened that we have had fewer victories than the Giants, but the spirit and the confidence of the club are just as high as in the past. The players believe they have reached the end of the bad breaks and that they are going to win.

"With McNally gone, I am fortunate to have such a player as Baker available, and he will finish the series at third base. Against a left-hander he will bat in McNally's place so as not to bring two left-hand hitters together. Against a right-hand pitcher I probably will shift the batting order, moving Baker higher up.

"Our task is more difficult than it was, but my team likes hard work."

Huggins Gives Up All Hope That 'Babe' May Return—Torn Shoulder Disables Teammate.

Neither Babe Ruth nor Mike McNally will be available for service with the Yankees during the remainder of the world's series. Even after announcement had been made that Babe could not play again hope was held out by some Yankee enthusiasts that the home run king might be able to play in today's game, after a rest of two days, or might play tomorrow if a ninth game is necessary.

Manager Miller Huggins said last evening that he had given up all hope of having Ruth in the game. Babe's injury is improving rapidly, but the physicians in charge of the case have declared emphatically that he cannot play again.

McNally, who is suffering from torn ligaments of the right shoulder as the result of a wrench in sliding to second base in the second inning of yesterday's game, will be unable to use the shoulder for several days.

BILL LANGE PRAISES HOYT.

Oldtime Slugger Sees Drift From High to Low Inside Curves.

Looking chipper enough to get out on the field and do quite a little playing himself, Bill Lange, who was one of the Babe Ruths of baseball when he was playing with the old Chicago Nationals under "Cap" Anson, has been one of the most interested spectators at the games between the Giants and the Yankees. George Kelly, the Giants' first baseman, is a nephew of his and, naturally, Bill has been pulling hard for the McGraw men to come through.

Asked what he considered the greatest change in baseball since his playing days, Bill replied: "I think it is in the pitching. In my day the pitchers tried to keep the ball high and on the inside on the theory that the batters would hit them in the air. Now they seem to prefer to keep them low, breaking them around the batters' knees. It has been his ability to accomplish this that I think has been the greatest factor in the success of Jess Barnes."

"That boy Hoyt is one of the greatest pitchers I have ever seen," added Lange. "He has a world of stuff and knows how to use it. And he has a good head. He has a brilliant future or I miss my guess."

COBB FINDS BREAKS ALL AGAINST YANKS

"Getting to Be Plumb Ridiculous," He Says of Setbacks Huggins Has Suffered.

GREAT STRATEGY MISSING

Mays's Balls Shrouded in Their Own Smoke—Douglas Splits Plate Like an Infinitive.

By IRVIN S. COBB.

One of the most heinous characteristics of the amateur after-dinner speaker is that something is always happening to remind him of a story. Before he braced up and reformed, your correspondent was occassionally addicted to the vice of after-dinner burbling; so probably it is but natural that at this moment he should be reminded of a story. And is. To wit, as follows:

Once upon a time there was a man who accepted all that befell as manifestations of the workings of an incurable Providence. If good luck came to him he gratefully returned thanks for blessings and mercies vouchsafed. If bad luck came he bowed his head in humble and unquestioning acceptance of this evidence of the need of chastisement from on high. For a while things went well with him, but in his later years misfortune marked him for her very own. Stroke after stroke descended upon his patient head. His wife ran away with the hired man. He missed them both, too, for he had grown used to the wife and he had sore need of the hired man, it being harvesting season.

His daughter eloped with a guitar picker. His son went to State's prison as the result of the mysterious disappearance of a neighbor's horse. His life's savings were swept away when the bank failed. Cholera killed his hogs; glanders claimed his horses, and his last milch cow choked on a turnip. His house burned down, and the neighborhood usurer foreclosed the mortgage on his farm, and in his old age he landed at the county poor house. Yet, uncomplainingly, in his simple, humble, homely way, he accepted each of these multiplying visitations as parts of the scheme of a Divine plan. Not for him to cavil and lament. For him, strong in faith, it was to bear his burdens and falter not.

"Gittin' to Be Plum Ridiculous."

One lovely Spring afternoon, by request of the overseer, he was plowing a field belonging to the institution where now he abided, penniless and lorn. Without warning came a bolt from the blue. It struck him as he made a turn in the furrow. There was a flashing of unearthly fires, a crash like the crack of doom, and a smell like ham frying. Our hero opened his eyes. The lightning had dealt and stalking their tracks; the plowshare had been melted into a chunk of pot metal, and he, stripped of his garments, singed, scared, hairless and beardless, had been branded on the small of the back with an utter stranger, inside of which he tossed headlong through a brush fence.

He struggled to his knees in the old and customary attitude of prayer, lifted his still smoking countenance, closed his eyes and opened his mouth to voice his resignation over his crowning affliction in his sorrow's diadem. And then for the first time the worm turned.

"Oh Lord," he said, "this is gittin' to be plum ridiculous!"

Involuntarily, I thought of this story when I thought of Mr. Miller Huggins at the conclusion of today's game, seventh of the world's series. Picture, if you please, the situation as it applies to this small, earnest gentleman. Twice his team has been in the lead, once by a margin of two games, and once by a margin of one. I have not the vital statistics at hand, but if memory serves me aright his team in every game that it lost was in the early stages of that game well off in front. He has seen his chief batting star invalided from an infected arm and an injured leg and a few other ailments of one sort and another. He has seen his pitching staff, never too dependable, wabble and swerve. He has backed batting when batting was called for. But until last night he had not been in second place. Twice his club had been tied with the Giants, but never had it trailed behind.

Huggins's Bright Prospects Fade.

He went into yesterday's contest with bright prospects. As the contest warmed those prospects grew yet brighter. Mays, his pitching ace, was steady and reliable, pitching the sort of ball which would, by all human calculations, win anybody's ball game. As usual, his outfit got the bulge of a precious run on the enemy. And then—and then his third baseman, who had been doing the superhuman in the field made errors—errors excusable but frightfully costly. And then, the Giants not once but twice, at the fag end of an inning with two men out made a tally. And when the sun went down the Tribe of the Huggites, now rated second in the standing and odds-against in the betting, were facing the wind-up with but one reliable horse in the stable, namely young Mr. Hoyt. And even if Hoyt should make it three straight wins over the Giants in three times up, who is there left upon whom Huggins can call for succor in the decisive ninth game on Friday?

It's getting to be plumb ridiculous! We've had batting rallies in this worlds' series and we've had exhibitions of pitching genius sandwiched in between. Yesterday was a day made for the pitchers. There was the aforesaid Mays twisting them out of his right hand hip pocket and serving them up, corkscrewy and shrouded in the smoke of his delivery. Then there was Slew-Foot Phil Douglas, the most malarial-looking product that ever emerged from the low grounds of Tennessee, looming in mid-diamond like one-quarter of Barnum's Elephant Quadrille, torpid of movement and lumbering of gait, yet splitting the plate as though it had been an infinitive.

Pitching Improves as Batting Fails Off.

Yet in the opening stages there were signs and portents to justify the belief that this would be one of those old-fashioned pound parties. It appeared probable that at least one and perhaps both of the opposing twirlers would speedily be larruped into a cup custard.

But the pitching improved as the batting fell off. Frisch, the Fordham Flash, failed to flash at the bat. Long George Kelly reclaimed the raspberries which on the day before he temporarily had surrendered. A master clouter in the past tense is a sad spectacle in a world's series. It's fine to be a home runner; it's a terrific fall when one becomes merely a home run. When it came to winnowing the ambient autumnal air a horse's tail in fly time had nothing absolutely on George. Neither one of the Meusel brothers came through with a long-distance smack. Burns hit smartly and Baker, too, to cite conspicuous examples, but neither side could produce a sustained period of heavy smashing.

The pitchers, both of them, had the honors. It was the irony of fate that Ward, who once yesterday went up so high in the air to catch a high fly—and caught it—that he hung athwart the skyline with his feet dangling, should a little later commit the fumble which opened the way for the Giants' victory.

Marvelous Strategy Missing.

These accounts of the world's series games would not be complete without a paragraph devoted to the magnificent generalship shown by the rival managers, Messrs. McGraw and Huggins. This is it!

As a matter of fact, the displays of marvelous strategy, the darting strokes of tactical genius, the marvelous witwork; in short, all the superman stuff which beforehand had been promised on behalf of the commanders-in-chief has not been forthcoming. Or, at any rate, so far as the layman has been able to observe, it has not materialized. In so far as we in the audience have been able to tell, practically all the smart plays, all the unexpected coups have been born in the minds of the men on the field under the urge of necessity and upon the spur of the moment, and by them put into execution without prompting from the bench or from the coaching lines. This is not meant as an implication that the managers lack in the ability to think quickly, but that the players were able to do the requisite thinking for themselves. Anyhow, such are the conclusions that have been reached by this spectator, watching from the press box.

This week-long grind has begun to tell on the enthusiasm of the crowd. Yesterday's cheering, whether for Yanks or Giants, seemed lacking in steam. Baseball, as has been stated before, certainly keeps you out in the open air. But then, with equal truth the same thing may be said for the life of a sea gull.

And who in thunder wants to be a sea gull?

Judge Landis Flips a Coin and McGraw Wins—Sidelights on Yesterday's Game.

Immediately after the game Judge Landis, High Commissioner of Baseball; Ban Johnson, President of the American League; Colonel Jacob Ruppert, President of the Yankees; John A. Heydler, President of the National League, and Charles Stoneham, President of the Giants, met in the club offices just above the Eighth Avenue entrances to Brush Stadium and there the coin was flipped to decide which of the two teams would be "at home" if a ninth game were necessary to decide the series. Judge Landis tossed the coin and the Giants won.

If the Yankees win today, which would make necessary the playing of a ninth game tomorrow, the Giants will be the hosts. They will wear their white uniforms and occupy the dugout to the right of home plate. The Yankees, as the visiting club, will wear their gray traveling uniforms and will occupy the dugout to the left of home plate. The office staff of the Giants will also be in charge of the sale of the tickets.

It was announced that if there were a ninth game all of the tickets, both reserved and unreserved, would be placed on sale at the Polo Grounds at 9:30 on the morning of the day of the game. The same prices will obtain. No tickets will be sold at the downtown office of the New York National League Club.

One of the real tense moments of the series was in the Yankees' half of the seventh inning, when, with two out, Frank Baker singled to centre and romped all the way to third on Schang's one-base blow to the same terrain. Schang galloped to second on a wild pitch that Snyder managed to block. The score was tied at the time and bedlam was like a cemetery in comparison with the tetonic joy of hope that stirred the Yankee rooters in the stands. Mays was at bat. He had a chance to win his own game, but he bounced to Rawlings and expired at first.

Young was officially credited with a single in the fourth inning when Ward fumbled his grounder. To the majority of those in the stands it appeared to be very liberal scoring so far as Young's batting average was concerned. Had Ward handled the ball cleanly Young would have been out at first and the Giants would have been unable to make the run that tied the score.

Wally Pipp contributed two of the prettiest fielding plays of the game. Both were scintillating one-hand catches at first base that turned wild throws into put-outs. After McNally had injured his arm when sliding into second base in the second inning, Emil Meusel hit a sharp grounder to him in the Giants' half of the same round. This injury caused McNally to throw low and to the left of first. Pipp spun around and made a back-hand one-hand pick-up with his gloved hand for the out. In the eighth, when Bancroft rolled to Peck, the Yankee shortstop unforked a heave that was fired over Pipp's head, but Wally jumped and speared it with his gloved hand, also for the out.

As the Yankees took the field and the Giants were going to bat in the second inning Mike McNally tried several practice throws to first base to test his injured arm. He got the ball across the diamond, but it was evident that it cost him great effort and was a very painful operation.

Chick Fewster was guilty of an error in judgment in the third inning when he attempted to stretch his single to left into a double. The play was immediately in front of him and there seemed little excuse for his trying to reach the midway. However, it took a fine throw by Irish Meusel to cut him down.

The players of both teams were inclined to believe that the opposing pitcher was using some foreign substance on the ball in violation of the pitching rules. Frank Snyder interposed an objection to Mays's flinging in the fifth, but was overruled by Quigley after the umpire had examined the ball. Elmer Miller objected to Douglas's work in the eighth, but again Umpire Quigley ruled against the batter. From the stand it looked as if the only thing either pitcher had on the ball was a fast breaking hook.

Fewster is thinking seriously of using part of his world's series spoils to purchase a pair of glasses for Umpire Quigley. Chick told him so after Quigley had called that strike on him in the eighth canto.

15,000 TURNED BACK FROM POLO GROUNDS

38,000 Rapt Fans Cheer Both Teams in Weather That Is Chilly and Threatening.

SEATS FILLED, MANY STAND

500 at Bleacher Gates an Hour Before They Open—Handful Waits Through Rain.

When the imperturbable Phil Douglas scooped from the grass Wallie Schang's dribbling bounder and shot the ball to Long George Kelly for the final out of the seventh game of the world's series yesterday, Phil was not under a cloud, but all of the gazing fans were. They were under several clouds. For from all quarters of the heavens there had been gathering above the Polo Grounds for half an hour banks of glowering vapors that threatened rain.

However, few, if any, of the 38,000 fans realized that there eve nwas such a thing as sky, or clouds, or an impending deluge. The battle on the diamond was of a nature to absorb entirely the thoughts of every onlooker.

Police Inspector Cahalane had taken cognizance of the double holiday and provided for not only a Columbus Day throng, but a YYom Kippur addition to the multitude by having on hand additional patrolmen besides the hundreds who have had the Polo Grounds assignment day after day. The policemen were called on to act merely in the capacity of guides, as there has been no instance of serious disorder since the series began.

Inspector Cahalane reported as early as 1 o'clock that his men had already had to turn thousands away from the ... as the game began he estimated that at least 15,000 persons had been ... away, the sale of tickets having ceased some time previously. At shortly after 12 o'clock the bleacher gates were closed, and the upper stand was sold out more than an hour before the game got under way.

There was a marked difference in attitude between the throng that watched yesterday's tussle and the multitude perched on the sloping sides of the Brush amphitheatre on Tuesday—or, for that matter, any of the preceding days. Three innings of more or less polite indifference to what was occurring along the battle line closed the struggle in the sixth game, and interest had lagged for longer or shorter periods in each of the earlier contests. Not ever there has been a ball game, however, in which every pitched ball was eagerly observed, it was the seventh collision of the world's series of 1921.

Sympathies Evenly Divided.

Once again it became evident that the sympathies of the spectators were by no means mortgaged—or that the mortgage, if it existed, was lifted as readily as in the old-style melodrama. Every effective move, offensive or defensive, of either of the contending teams had its counterpart in Ruth's and McNally's slam whhich gave the Yankees the lead in the second inning was acclaimed with the same outburst that greeted Emil Meusel's timely thrust that tied the score in the fourth. In each case it was apparent that at least nine-tenths of those present were supremely happy. A fortunate crowd!

Those of little faith as to their ability to obtain a seat, having discovered that they had deliberately squandered on the preceding afternoon an opportunity of gaining, merely by stepping up to the ticket window, choice locations in the upper stand, gambled with destiny yesterday and the result was a full house. It was a pat hand, in fact, for the previous loiterers charged the portals with such promptitude and determination that the entire premises, save for the reserved portions, were filled before the draw. Field glasses and opera glasses were in evidence to help discover a vacant seat in either grandstand or bleachers, and once more, as on Friday, straggling standees lined the rear of the stands and of the bleachers.

Nevertheless, few in that capacity throng had felt it necessary to invest the entire morning, any appreciable part of it, in the rather tedious recreation of gazing upon a wholly untenanted field. There were about 500 persons in line at the bleacher gates at 9 o'clock, an hour before the appointed time for opening the portals, and the number had nearly doubled at 10, when the ticket sellers mounted their stools and cleared for action. A handful of the crowd had been waiting there since before the prolonged growling of the thunder preluded a mild downpour early in the morning, and this courageous contingent included two women.

Weather Causes Adverse Comment.

At 1 o'clock, with the beginning of the struggle still an hour in the offing, the greater part of the onlookers were already at their posts. This was true even of those who held coupons for their seats and had no reason to join in any rush for choice positions. They wanted to watch the practice and also to giggle over the follies of Nick Altrock and Al Schacht.

The weather aroused much unfavorable comment among the befurred and overcoated throng. With collars drawn up against the wind that searched the premises, the gathering discoursed indignantly of weather that didn't know its own mind and that acted like a lightning change artist in a variety show.

It wasn't that it was so frightfully cold. The Polo Grounds was no Valley Forge or Yukon Pass yesterday, but it was chilly enough to attract the attention of fans from such distant points as Baltimore and Cincinnati. Some of these visitors were overheard to remark that a city where one couldn't tell whether to don the tenuous B. V. D. or the oppressive wool ones was certainly oversupplied with weather.

The spectators brought with them to the scene a renewed interest in the game. With the series deadlocked at three games each, the seventh battle assumed an importance greater than that of any preceding one.

And so it was that the seventh affray of the world's serie's of 1921 abounded in the spirit and atmosphere traditionally associated with the Autumn baseball classic to an extent hitherto unapproached.

Yankee Hopes Rest on Hoyt; Nehf Slated for the Giants

On the pitching skill and courage of Waite Hoyt, who has twice carried the Yankees to victory over the Giants, rests the hope of the American Leaguers that Miller Huggins's band will again tie up the series this afternoon when the eighth game is played at the Polo Grounds. Hoyt and Art Nehf, who hooked up in the second and fifth games of the set, are slated to take the mound this afternoon, though neither has had the usual rest since his last effort. Earl Smith, who caught Nehf in the other games, will be behind the bat for the Giants. With Mike McNally out of the game for the remainder of the series, Frank Baker will be at third base for the Yankees, and it is possible that Manager Huggins may shift his batting order because of Baker's return to the line-up. Huggins had not decided positively on this point last night. The batting order:

BARNSTORMING TOUR ENDS.

Young of Detroit Says Fans Prefer to Watch Series Scoreboards.

R. Stuart ("Pep") Young of the Detroit Tigers checked in at the Polo Grounds and reported that he had seldom seen greater interest manifested in a world's series throughout the country than there was in the current contest between the Giants and the Yankees. He had been on a barnstorming tour with other major league players, but they had to call off the trip.

"The fans in the different cities we visited preferred to watch the progress of the Yankee and Giants' games on scoreboards than to come out and see an actual game," said Young. "In Scranton at least 5,000 persons congregated in front of the scoreboard, while less than 2,000 came out to see us play."

Ebbets Claims Next Year's Pennant.

Charles H. Ebbets, President of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, has made the unqualified statement that the Robins will win the National League pennant next year. Charles evidently figures there's nothing like getting an early start. Clark Griffith et al. are still to be heard from.

JOCKEY PORETTO IS KILLED AT OPENING

FEATURE TO BIT OF WHITE

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—The opening of the Autumn meeting at Churchill Downs was marred this afternoon by a fatal accident which cost the life of Jockey Frank Poretto, an apprentice rider. The boy was thrown when the horse he was riding, Tamper, in the second race, stumbled on the heels of another horse in a jam at the turn into the home stretch. It appeared that he was kicked by his own horse, or by one passing, as he struck the ground, for he sustained a fracture of the skull from which he died without regaining consciousness. Poretto was 20 years old and came from New Orleans. He was under contract to Mose Goldblatt and was considered a very promising rider.

The race in which the accident occurred was a seven-furlong dash for two-year-olds and had eight starters. Tamper was running in fifth position as the horses reached the turn for home. At that point there was considerable crowding and suddenly Tamper was seen to go down and the boy disappeared among the flying hoofs. Poretto did not move after striking the ground and when an ambulance reached him he was rushed to the track hospital. A Catholic priest was called and administered the last rites to the boy. Poretto died in a few moments after reaching the hospital. The body will be shipped to the home of his parents in New Orleans.

The accident rather dampened the enthusiasm for what was otherwise an auspicious opening at the picturesque course. There were two features on the card for decision, and both resulted in good contests. The Falls City Handicap, at a mile and a furlong, was won by E. R. Bradley's three-year-old filly Bit of White, which was fortunate enough to escape interference which hampered some of the others, and held the lead all the way to win by two lengths from Rangoon. Ginger was third. There was considerable rough riding in the race, and at the close of the day the stewards announced that Jockeys Lawrence Like and Mac Garner had been suspended for their disregard for the rules in this respect. Both are well-known riders, perhaps the two best now appearing in Kentucky.

The tough riding occurred at the first turn, where Bit of White crossed over in front of the field to take the lead. Rangoon knocked Firebrand back, and Marjorie Hynes also suffered from the crowding. Bit of White got clear sailing and was able to hold the others safe for the balance of the journey.

The Columbus Day Handicap, at six furlongs, went to Miss Jemima in a stirring finish when she won by a neck from Brookholt. Ace High was third. Miss Jemima was last turn of the start, but saved ground all the way, and, turning into the stretch, moved up and caught the leaders. She made a game finish and outstayed Brookholt. Distinction, the favorite, showed high speed, but was knocked back at the turn into the stretch and had no chance in the final furlong.

ORIOLES AT HOME TODAY.

Resume Series With Colonels for Minor League Supremacy.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—The struggle for the minor league baseball supremacy will be resumed here tomorrow afternoon on even terms between the Baltimore Orioles, three times champions of the International League, and the Louisville Colonels, 1921 pennant winners of the American Association. Each side has won two of the four games played at Louisville. Clear and cool weather is indicated and in view of the heavy advance sale of seats, a big attendance is expected.

Yutsi Takes Cesarewitch; Charleville Finishes Second

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—The Cesarewitch Stakes of £1,000, with extras, was won here today by Mrs. Burnley's Yutsi. Mrs. Fred Hardy's Charleville was second and Lord Derby's Harrier third. Seventeen horses ran. The race was over a course of two and one-quarter miles. The winner is a four-year-old bay colt by Santoi out of She. The Cesarewitch is considered one of the hardest tests for thoroughbreds on the flat.

GREY WORTHY WINS CASTLETON PURSE

Adds Another Victory to Long String in Feature Race on Lexington Track.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 12.—Grey Worthy, owned by Sanford Small of Boston, added another victory to his already long string at the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association track here this afternoon, when he defeated Periscope, Peter Coley and Sister Bertha in straight heats, capturing the Castleton, for a $2,000 purse, feature of the program.

Grey Worthy was hard pushed in the stretch in the first heat, after Cox, who handled the reins on the gray gelding, had eased him up slightly, but the winner managed to stall off the belated rush of Periscope and went under the wire with a slight lead over the mare. In the second heat, Peter Coley, which had finished fourth in the first heat, furnished most of the action, forcing Grey Worthy to trot the mile in 2:03½, the best time of the afternoon. Periscope was placed second in the summaries, while third place went to Peter Coley.

The 2:13 pace, the fourth race on the program, resulted in a bitter four-heat struggle, in which Queen Abbe, after finishing second in the first two heats, came back and captured the third and fourth heats. The first heat went to Tony Mac, while Abbe Dale got the decision in the second.

The other events on the program, the Tennessee for three-year-old pacers and the 2:08 trot, went to Pelmar and Poter Daw, making it a double on the meeting for the latter. Both won their races in straight heats.

RANCOCAS STABLE IN DOUBLE VICTORY

October and Columbus Day Handicaps to Mad Hatter and Thunderclap at Jamaica.

The Rancocas Stable and the Rancocas trainer, Sam C. Hildreth, yesterday finally conquered the hoodoo that had pursued them for some time and the famous white and green colors were brought home in front for a double victory in the two features of the day at Jamaica before a large holiday crowd that showed its pleasure at the double triumph. Mad Hatter had little difficulty in capturing the October Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth from his two rivals, Donnacona and Sedgefield, while Thunderclap almost as easily won the Columbus Day Highweight Handicap at six furlongs from Dimmesdale and Ten Lec among others in a small field.

These two events contributed to a good day of racing and were witnessed by one of the largest crowds of the meeting. The stands were comfortably filled despite the cold wind that swept the course and made heavy coats a source of comfort.

It is some time since the Rancocas Stable scored a double. A few months ago such an occurrence was no novelty for them, but in recent weeks their horses have been off form and few purses have come their way. It seemed as if ill luck had set in with a vengeance, so Sam Hildreth had reason to feel pleased when the streak was broken.

Mad Hatter, however, added little to his prestige by his victory for he had practically no opposition. He outclassed the two horses that went to the post with him, and, but for some of his poor showings recently, would have been a prohibitive favorite. As it was he was quoted at 3 to 5, and many of his old friends failed to back him because of a doubt as to his condition.

The only strong contender had been scratched when Audacious was reported as an absentee. Audacious had been assigned an impost of 134 pounds for the race, including a penalty of five pounds, and Sandy McNaughton decided to let him spend the afternoon in his stall. This disappointed some of the crowd for they had wanted to see these rivals meet again, with Audacious conceding weight to Mad Hatter.

The Rancocas racer left little doubt about the outcome. He went to the front at the break, gained the early position at the first turn, and was rated along in front so that he had plenty to spare in the stretch run. Donnacona followed him about two lengths back all through the back stretch, where he disposed of Sedgefield, but he could not gain on the leader when Fator made his run at the last turn, and Mad Hatter came home an easy winner by two and a half lengths. Donnacona was next best, and was three lengths in front of Sedgefield at the end.

Thunderclap faced much stronger opposition, but won just as easily as his stablemate, and, in doing so proved that he was a better sprinter than the Foreign Stable's Ten Lec. When these two met a few days ago Elected II. beat both of them, but there was no such surprise to yesterday's finish.

Thunderclap broke a little slowly, but at once rushed up to the leaders and closely followed the pace set by Dimmesdale. Ten Lec had gone to the front at the start, but Dimmesdale soon wrested the lead from her and she dropped back to third place. At the turn into the stretch Ten Lec made a determined run and got into second position, only to falter by the time she was headed for home.

In the meantime, Thunderclap moved up with a rush turning into the stretch and took all the running out of Dimmesdale in a few more strides. He then drew away to win by three lengths, while Dimmesdale saved second from Ten Lec by three lengths. War Pennant, which was out for the first time in many months, could not keep up with the others and was never a contender. Dream of the Valley propped at the barrier and was left so far back that he made no effort to follow the others and came home pulled up.

Mrs. T. O. Webber's two-year-old filly Avispa scored her second successive victory in the opening dash of six furlongs for two-year-olds and made a show of her company. A well-played favorite, she had all the speed, and opened up a big gap in the first half mile. She finished eight lengths in front of Dolly Varden, which was always best of the others, while Execution got third place in the field of nine starters.

Half a dozen platers went to the post for the second race at a mile and a sixteenth and the two that had been made equal favorites finished first and last. Tan II closed in on the pacemaker in the stretch and won by nearly two lengths from La Kross, with Lord Herbert third. Nolawn, which had been well supported, stole a lead of five lengths going through the back stretch but folded up like an opera hat in the stretch and staggered home at the end of the procession.

Good Horses Assured for Empire City Fall Meeting

That there will be plenty of horses for the meeting at Empire City, which begins next Monday, is indicated by the demands for stalls now being made by horsemen. Practically all of the big stables now racing on the New York tracks will remain until the end of the Yonkers meeting. Those who are planning later campaigns in Maryland will ship just after the close at Empire City for the meeting that begins at Pimlico in November.

H.P. WHITNEY SCORES TWICE AT LAUREL

Special to The New York Times.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 12.—A double triumph was scored for the colors of H. P. Whitney at Laurel Park this afternoon when his two-year-old filly, Calamity Jane, captured the $5,000 National Stakes for juveniles at six furlongs and Damask won the Doughoregan Handicap at a mile and a furlong. It was the first double for the Whitney colors at Laurel, though the stable has been racing extensively.

Calamity Jane proved herself a filly of much merit, for she took the measure of Relay and Trevelyan, among others, with great ease. She broke quickly, rushed into a long lead and was being eased up at the end to win by three lengths from Relay. Trevelyan was three lengths further back for third place. The field brought out some of the best juvenile racing here. The winner was made the favorite at about 9 to 10 in the mutuel betting.

Damask proved the best of the field of handicap performers over the mile and a furlong route, but had no easy task in winning. He slipped through on the rail at the first turn and gaining the lead raced Blazes into submission and was able to withstand a determined challenge by Gnome in the stretch.

TILDEN VICTOR BY SPECTACULAR RALLY

Overcomes Lead of 5-4 and 40-30 to Defeat Richards on Harrison Courts.

William T. Tilden 2d, the national tennis champion, had a narrow escape from defeat yesterday afternoon at the Green Meadow Club, Harrison, N. Y., in an exhibition match with Vincent Richards in the series which the United States Lawn Tennis Association is conducting for the benefit of the American Committee for Devastated France. The two stars had broken even in the first two sets, and the junior champion was leading in the rubber with the games standing at 5—4 and the points at 40—30.

The most brilliant rally of the afternoon ensued and Richards seemed to have the match point won when he shot a swift volley to Tilden's backhand. The champion made one of those marvelous half-volley recoveries for which he is famous, and angled the ball so beautifully that Richards, not expecting any sort of return, was unable to touch. Tilden then ran out the set without the loss of another game. The scores were 2—6, 6—3, 7—5.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, the women's national champion, and the hard-hitting Miss Eleanor Goss, former national women's champion in doubles, played one set of singles, and then cut their match short when it started to rain. Mrs. Mallory won the set at 6—4. The champion was not getting her first service ball in court frequently, and Miss Goss hammered the second service with great speed to the corners and frequently manoeuvred the champion out of range. Miss Goss won the first two games, Mrs. Mallory the next two and they split even in the two succeeding onas. Then Mrs. Mallory found her speed in driving and ran out the set in decisive fashion. It was exceedingly fast tennis.

In the mixed doubles Tilden and Mrs. Mallory defeated Richards and Miss Goss by scores of 4—6, 6—0, 6—4, coming from behind in the third set to accomplish the feat. With Miss Goss serving, she and her partner were leading at 4—3 and 40-love. The two national champions then won five straight points for the game and ran out the set in the next two.

There was a gallery of more than 1,500 persons in attendance. The umpires were Julian S. Myrick, President of the National Association, and William A. Campbell. A feature of the afternoon was the auctioning of the racquets and balls used by the players. Tilden was the auctioneer. His racquet sold for $60, Mrs. Mallory's for $50, Miss Goss's for $40 and Richards's for $35. One of the balls fetched $20 for France's benefit and ten others were sold for $10 apiece.

The next meeting of the players in the same series will take place at the Hartford (Conn.) Golf and Country Club on Saturday.

GIANTS WIN 7TH, 2-1; ERRORS BEAT MAYS

reach first base. The official scorers declared it a hit, exercising that discretion which is advised on plays of a doubtful nature, but it seemed that they were leaning over backward in the effort to stand up straight.

Of that roller along the green carpet was the first run of the Giants' bred, as steal as George Kelly fanned for the second out was followed by a single by Irish Meusel, who swung into a low ball and arched a lazily floating hit to short centre field, where Miller could not reach it. Meusel's hit sent the run over and put the Giants on even terms with their American League rivals.

In the seventh inning, with two out and the bases empty, Ward again failed on an easy chance, this time from Rawlings's bat. The scorers voted an error this time very promptly and thereby made it unanimous. Frank Snyder, taking full advantage of the opening, slammed the first ball pitched to him and it traveled to left centre for an ordinary double which should have landed Rawlings on third if properly handled. Miller cuffed the ball around just long enough to give Rawlings the opening for the final dash, and he made it, bringing in the run that settled the game.

Mays's Face Mirrors Disgust.

Out in the centre of the diamond stood Carl Mays, his face a perfect mirror of the disgust he felt over the failure that seemed destined to mark one of his greatest efforts on the mound. For the third time in the series Mays and Phil Douglas had been called upon to oppose each other. Mays had triumphed, 3 to 0, in the opening game of the series and Douglas had gained the honors, 4 to 2, in the fourth contest of the set. Hoping they were back again to fight it out, neither able to enjoy the rest which usually is afforded pitchers between efforts on the mound, but seemingly neither was seriously affected by lack of sufficient rest. From a pitching standpoint, the game will rank among the greatest in the long history of world's series play.

As pitching is measured, Mays excelled, but unfortunately for the blond master of the submarine ball, and for the Yankees as well, the better pitching does not always win. Mays allowed fewer hits, did not issue a pass as against one walk and a wild pitch by his rival, and struck out seven Giants, as against three for Douglas. These advantages were nullified, however, when the defense sagged on two occasions.

Douglas, on the other hand, drew perfect support from his mates, so the Yankees found no opening through which they might rush to triumph. The American Leaguers manufactured a run in the second inning without any assistance from their rivals, but one run was not sufficient to offset the mistakes which the Yankees made afield.

Douglas, in Peril, Tames Sluggers.

Douglas tamed the heavy hitters of the Yankees far more effectively than had been the rule in this series. In the early innings, Shufflin' Phil was not the puzzle to the Yankee hitters that he had been ear

MISS COLLETT WINS FROM CECIL LEITCH

Nineteen-Year-Old Girl Defeats Famous British Golfer in Berthellyn Cup, 1 Up.

MRS. W. A. GAVIN VICTOR

Metropolitan Champion Eliminates Miss Edith Leitch, Breaking Course Record With 81.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 12.—The sensation of the first round of match play for the Berthellyn Cup at the Huntingdon Valley Country Club today was the defeat of Miss Cecil Leitch, British, French and Canadian golf champion, by Miss Glenna Collett, 19-year-old champion of Connecticut and winner of the qualifying round in the recent national championship, Miss Collett winning by 1 up.

The defeat of the British girl here today occasioned even greater surprise than did her recent elimination from the national women's championship tournament at the Hollywood Golf Club a week ago at the hands of Mrs. F. C. Letts Jr. of Chicago, for it was the first time that she had been put out in the first round of a championship tournament since she first attracted attention as a star in 1913.

The little Providence girl, who is regarded by many as a coming champion and a golfer of even more promise than Miss Alexa Stirling, played brilliant golf, outdriving her famous opponent and also outplaying her with the irons. Miss Collett, in practically her first season of competitive golf, in addition to winning the Connecticut State title, was the winner of the Boston district championship and tied with Mrs. Latham Hall, the Englishwoman, for the medal in the national championship, winning in the play-off.

Mrs. Gavin Breaks Record.

The only other surprise was the defeat of Miss Harriett Curtis, former national champion, by Miss Maria de Kosenko of the Country Club, one of the best of the younger Philadelphia players.

Mrs. W. A. Gavin of New York, the metropolitan women's champion, defeated Miss Edith Leitch, the British champion's sister, by 3 and 1. The Belleclaire star's card was the best made in the tournament thus far, an 81, which set a new woman's record for the course.

Miss Leitch played the first hole perfectly in par figures and won when Miss Collett overran the green and was short on her run-up shot.

Miss Leitch lost the second, driving into a trap, and playing her third into the creek, while Miss Collett was nicely home in two. The next two holes were halved in par and the fifth went to Miss Leitch with two beautiful shots as the features, Miss Collett driving into a gully in the road.

Miss Collett evened it up on the sixth when Miss Leitch took three putts on the green, two within eighteen inches. Both had long drives on the seventh. Miss Collett was on the edge of the green on her second, while Miss Leitch laid her second dead. Miss Collett just missed holing out on her third and the hole went to Miss Leitch with a bird three. Against the wind, Miss Leitch drove the eighth green while Miss Collett pulled her ball into the bank of the green.

All Square at Turn.

She laid her approach within four feet of the pin, but the hole went to Miss Leitch with a par three. On the ninth, Miss Leitch skied her tee shot into the brook and lifted out, while Miss Collett hit a perfect drive. Miss Leitch lost the hole by putting her third into a trap and her fourth into the brook and she conceded the hole after a fine second by her opponent. They were all square at the turn.

Miss Leitch skied another tee shot on the tenth, while Miss Collett hit another long one. On their third shots, Miss Leitch was in a trap and Miss Collett was on the bank above the green. Both were on in four, but Miss Collett ran down a fine approach close to the hole and won it. Miss Leitch evened matters on the eleventh. She drove into a trap near the green, while Miss Collett found the brook. After Miss Leitch had shot her second into another bunker, Miss Collett picked out for a loss and both were on in three. Miss Leitch dropped a long putt for the win. Miss Leitch then proceeded to take the next two holes in perfect style.

Two down and four to play, Miss Collett played the rest of the holes in beautiful style, winning the punch bowl fourteenth in par figures and squaring the match on the fifteenth after one of the longest tee shots of the day. The long sixteenth was halved in one over par against a stiff wind. On the seventeenth Miss Collett hit straight down the centre, while Miss Leitch pulled over into the rough.

Match Is Dormie.

Miss Collett played a perfect iron to the green and Miss Leitch landed above the green to the right. Her chip over-ran the hole and Miss Collett laid her third dead. When Miss Leitch missed her fourth the hole went to Miss Collett, making her dormie. The end came on the eighteenth, Miss Collett pulling into the rough, while Miss Leitch was straight down the centre and nicely home in two. Miss Collett was short of the green on her second, but chipped within four feet of the cup, and this putt gave her a half and the match.

The cards:

Out—
Miss Collett	5	5	5	5	6	4	4	3	5—42
Miss Leitch	4	0	5	5	4	5	3	3	0—
In—
Miss Collett	5	5	7	6	3	4	6	4	4—44—86
Miss Leitch	6	4	6	4	4	5	6	5	4—44

Mrs. Gavin led Miss Edith Leitch by three holes at the turn, and although Miss Leitch cut this to one on the thirteenth, the metropolitan champion was dormie two at the sixteenth, the match ending on the next hole.

The cards:

Out—
Mrs. Gavin	4	5	5	5	5	4	4	3	5—40
Miss Leitch	5	6	5	5	5	4	5	4	4—43
In—
Mrs. Gavin	5	5	6	5	3	4	7	4
Miss Leitch	5	3	6	4	4	5	6	5

Miss Helen Meehan gave Miss Caverly a hard match and Mrs. Alex Smith carried Mrs. Vanderbeck to the sixteenth green. Miss Katharine Hutchinson put up a fine match against Mrs. Letts, the margin being 3 and 1.

The Misses Cecil and Edith Leitch, the noted British players, defeated D. C. Corkran of Baltimore, former national semifinalist, and George W. Elkins Jr., 3 up and 2 to play in a four ball best ball match. The men allowed their opponents four bisques, three being used to win a hole and one to halve.

HOLY CROSS IS WINNER.

Worcester Eleven Defeats Springfield College, 12 to 0.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 12.—Holy Cross defeated Springfield College, 12 to 0, on Pratt Field today in a game featured by the work of Bruissard, who took Gagnon's place at left halfback for the Worcester team. All the scoring was done in the second and third periods. Holy Cross's touchdown was made by Riopel. Following a kick by Civiletto of Springfield on his own team's 20-yard line, Holy Cross took the ball over on line bucks and short end runs.

Shortly afterward, Civiletto attempted a forward pass on the fourth down, it failed. After two attempts by Holy Cross to run the ball, Bruissard kicked a perfect field goal. In the third period, Civiletto's attempt to punt from behind his own goal line resulted in a safety for Holy Cross.

Head Coach Jim Corderry of the varsity eights is rapidly completing the organization of the varsity squad on the Housatonic River above Derby. His brother George said today that the freshman material is abundant, but inexperienced. Bert Lee, the English coach who will have charge of the class eights this year, has just arrived.

BRITISH PAIR WINS FROM BOSTON STARS

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 12.—George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, the two leading British golfers, showed that they had not lost any of their golfing prowess when today at the Myopia Hunt Club, Hamilton, they defeated Francis Ouimet, former open and amateur champion, and Jesse P. Guilford, the present amateur title holder, in a thirty-six-hole match by 2 up.

The amateurs and the professionals halved the first eight holes. At the short ninth Ouimet got a birdie 2, putting his side 1 up. The match was squared at the tenth, where Duncan had a birdie 3. Duncan and Mitchell took the lead at the twelfth, which Mitchell won with a 4. Duncan won the thirteenth, being the only player to reach home in two, scoring a 4.

Guilford cut down the lead by winning the fourteenth with a 4, Mitchell being trapped and Duncan bunkered. The next three holes were halved, Ouimet missing a 2 at the sixteenth by inches, rimming the cup. Going to the eighteenth, Mitchell and Duncan put their second shots into the trap. Ouimet pitched to within fifteen feet of the cup on his second. Mitchell made a nice recovery, was conceded a 4, and Ouimet holed his fifteen-footer for a birdie, squaring the match.

The morning cards:

Ouimet and Guilford	4	5	3	4	4	4	4	5	2—35
Duncan and Mitchell	4	5	3	4	4	4	4	5	3—36

Americans Take Lead.

Mitchell won the nineteenth hole with a 3, playing his second five feet from the flag and holing the putt. Guilford squared the match at the twenty-first by going down in one putt for a 3. Duncan put his side in the lead at the twenty-third by taking a 4, Ouimet and Guilford scoring 5s. The two amateurs got a win at the next with a 4. Mitchell missed a short putt at the twenty-fifth and the Americans went into the lead. Mitchell ran down a long putt at the next for a win in 4, squaring the match. Ouimet sank a six-foot putt for the second birdie 2 at the twenty-seventh, and he and his partner started on their last nine wth a lead of 1 up.

Duncan laid his third shot dead to the twenty-eighth, winning with a 4. Guilford evened the match at the thirtieth by sinking a fifteen-foot putt.

The two holes were halved and Mitchell took the thirty-third with a 4 by getting a ten-foot putt. The thirty-fourth was halved in three. Only Duncan and Ouimet reached the thirty-fifth green after playing two. The former was fifteen feet from the hole, and his approach putt was played perfectly. He won the hole with a 4, Ouimet missing his twenty-five-foot putt.

Mitchell Holes Long Putt.

The home hole looked like a win for the Woodland combination after their second shots, but Mitchell spoiled their chances by winning the hole to square the match. He and Guilford were on the green in two, the Englishman thirty feet from the cup and Guilford thirty-five feet. Guilford's approach putt was close enough for an easy 4, but Mitchell took a chance by hitting his ball firmly, and it rolled straight in the cup for a birdie.

The afternoon cards:

FISHERMEN'S RACE PUT OFF.

Gloucester Schooner Trials Postponed to Today Because of Fog.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—The fishermen's race, blotted out by fog today, will be sailed tomorrow with rivalry the keener because of the postponement.

After the five schooner entries for the American fishing fleet championship had lolled about the starting buoy for an hour this morning in vapors and light airs the race was called off for the day and the boats poked back to port through the fog.

It rained for an hour, but then cleared, and sailing weather prevailed. First Marty Welch with the Elsie, then the Elsie G. Silva and the Ralph Brown slipped their moorings and stood out to sea to get action and another test trial. Captain Welch brought the Elsie back early, without a brush, but the other two vessels came together for a brisk racing run to Thatcher's Island and a beat back. The Elsie G. Silva outfooted her rival measurably. As a result this knockabout schooner, the only one of her type in the race and the last to enter, was mentioned tonight in the Mariners' and Seamen's club rooms with the Elsie and the Arthur James as a possible winner.

The Elsie, however, continues the favorite. She is considered by those supporting her as the logical successor of the Esperanto, winner at Halifax last year of the international championship trophy, which tomorrow's victor will defend.

Her friends say she is in line because she carries the Esperanto's Captain and many of his crew. She rescued the men of the Esperanto when their vessel went down off Sable Island, and before that time defeated the cup winner in brushes on the Banks. Her admirers assert that she will win the race, as they estimate her speed as being at least twenty minutes faster over the forty-mile course.

Captain Welch said he expected to win with the Elsie, but admitted that if the wind was light the Arthur James, sailed by John Matheson, his mate last Fall, was to be feared. The weather sharps tonight predicted a good blow tomorrow, with the wind probably from the west.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 12.—C. S. Otis of New York managed to attain his second victory of the three-cushion billiard championship tournament this afternoon, when he defeated Tiff Denton of Kansas City, 50 to 42, in forty-five innings. The winner had a high run of 7, while that of Denton was 4. The New Yorker dispayed much better form than in his previous six games, but was hard pushed by the Western champion.

The score was tied at 36 all in the thirtieth inning and the lead alternated twice until Otis made a 4 in the thirty-eighth inning, then a 3 in the forty-fourth, and the required tally in the next inning. Denton was unfortunate in the latter part of the game when his ball kissed his opponent's just about as he was to score, this happening four times in the last five innings.

In the other afternoon game, Hugh Heal of Toledo defeated Bob Cannefax of St. Louis, 50 to 40, in seventy-two innings.

In the first of the evening matches Pierre Maupome defeated C. S. Otis by a score of 50 to 31 in sixty-eight innings. The winner's best run was five, while that of Otis was three.

John Layton, the present champion, defeated Charles McCourt by a score of 50 to 48 in the most exciting game of the week. The match went into the seventieth inning, with Layton having a high run of seven and McCourt five.

SMITH KNOCKS OUT PASTIME A. C. BOXER

K. of C. Star Defeats Curry in Half a Round in Amateur Tourney at Garden.

Martin Smith, lightweight boxer of the Congress Own Council, Knights of Columbus, added the name of Phillip Curry, Pastime A. C., to his list of victims last night in the amateur boxing tournament of the Metropolitan A. A. U., at Madison Square Garden. The lads clashed in the first preliminary bout of the 138-pound class and, in little more than half a round, Smith was returned the victor by a knockout. The K. of C. boxer required but a few sharp powerful blows to put the quietus on his rival. Curry boxed cautiously and aggressively for a minute of the opening round, but in a sharp exchange of blows near Smith's corner, Curry was send toppling to the floor from a right to the jaw. Soon afterward Smith again poked an opening for a right, and again crashed his rival down. This time the referee stopped the contest and waved Smith to his corner the victor. The battle lasted exactly 1 minute 58 seconds.

Three favorites in the 118-pound class came through with flying colors. The boxers were Paul Lo Porto, Lane Boys' Club; Wilbur Cohan, St. Christopher Club, and Louis Guglielmini, Pastime A. C. The victories of all three boxers were scored in one round each. Lo Porto disposed of Anthony Lewis in one round; Cohan stopped Anthony De Rieno in one round, and Guglielmini, drawing a bye for the preliminary round, stopped John Richardi in one round of the initial second trial bout of the tournament.

Bernard Feeney, St. Jerome's Catholic Club middleweight, who was runner-up for the national title last April, encountered unexpected opposition from Charles Kuay, Montauk A. C., in a preliminary bout in the middleweight class. Feeney gained the judges' decision at the end of three rounds, but was forced to his limit by Kuay through the entire bout. Two knockouts were recorded in the other middleweight contests. S. Monkewicz, Belmont A. C., disposed of Charles Meisel, St. Bartholomew's A. C., in two rounds and Nicholas Whalen hammered William Young, St. Christopher Club, into submission, in two rounds.

HOREMANS BEATS YAMADA.

Belgian Cue Star Runs 300 in One Inning at Rational Academy.

Playing some of the best billiards ever seen here, Edouard Horemans, the Belgian cue wizard, last night brought his 1,800 point 18.2 balk line exhibition billiard match with Moji Yamada, the Japanese star, to a sensational close by running out 300 points in the evening game at the Rational Recreation Billiard Academy, Brooklyn, in one inning.

In the afternoon match, Yamada ran a total of 449 points while Horemans was accumulating his 300 points. Yamada had a high run of 159 and an average of 56⅔, while Horemans had a high run of 162 and an average of 37½.

Taking the table at the outset of the final block in the evening, Horemans, by a series of remarkable massé shots and showing wonderful control over the ivories, never stopped until he had finished his total.

The final result of the match was: Horemans, 1,800; Yamada, 1,197. The high runs of the series were made by both players yesterday, Yamada's 159 in the afternoon being his greatest cluster, and Horemans 300 last night being his greatest point-getting achievement. Horemans had a grand average of 40 40-44 during the series, and Yamada, 27 36-43.

NED GOURDIN WINS PENTATHLON TITLE

MARGIN A NARROW ONE

Winning Low Total Is 12 Points, With Erbal and Lichtman Following Closely Behind.

To his intercollegiate and national A. A. U. broad jumping championships, Ned Gourdin, Harvard's wonderful colored athlete, yesterday added the national Amateur Athletic Union pentathlon championship title. The world's broad jump record-holder annexed this title over a field of six rivals for the honor in the annual test, conducted at Travers Island under the auspices of the New York A. C.

The slim margin of one point gave Gourdin the victory. The Crimson star finished the competition with the winning low total of 12 points. Right at his heels was Joseph Erbal, local unattached athlete, with 13 points. Another point in the rear came Bernie Lichtman, Pastime A. C. fireman athlete, who coralled 14 points.

William Torporcer, Morningside A. C. athlete, finished fourth with 20 points. Ralph Vickstrom, Swedish-American A. C., was fifth with 25, and Frank J. Daley, St. Mary's A. A., Stamford, Conn., was sixth and last with 28 points. Patrick J. O'Connor, Pastime A. C. Celt, was the seventh in the field of title contenders, but he withdrew before completing the 1,500-meter run, which closed the test, and, therefore, failed to qualify in the point distribution.

Aided by Trick of Fate.

His remarkable ability as a broad jumper and a sprinter, and his adeptness in throwing the javelin, pulled Gourdin through the struggle triumphant. He was pressed hard by both Erbal and Lichtman right up to the finish of the concluding event, the 1,500-meter run. And in this event a trick of fate, carried on the wings of the stiff southwest wind which blew over the athletic battlefield, came to the advantage of the Crimson phenom when the outlook was darkest for Gourdin.

The three foremost contenders entered the 1,500-meter run closely bunched in points. Gourdin, through victories in his specialties, the broad jump, 200-meter dash and javelin throw, and third position in the discus, was leading with 6 points. Erbal, a strong, sturdy youngster, had 10, and Lichtman, veteran of many all-around struggles, had 13. Notoriously weak in the distance race, Gourdin was confronted with the prospect of losing the title by a point, tying for the championship with Erbal, or winning by a point.

It was with these foreboding possibilities facing him that Gourdin took the track for the final event. Then fate stepped in and practically insured Gourdin against loss of the title. Pat O'Connor retired on the second lap of the chase, leaving a field of six. And in a stirring closing furlong test of endurance Erbal cracked—went to pieces in the face of an impetuous home-stretch drive on the finish line by Lichtman and Ralph Vickstrom. Up to the head of the stretch Erbal fought with all the strength at his command, but his reserve power failed in the straightaway drive and he staggered over the finish line third, eleven yards back of Lichtman, winner of the run, and about eight yards back of Vickstrom, who finished second. The title was safe for Gourdin.

Almost Falls in Jump.

Gourdin almost encountered a surprise which would have amounted to a calamity with the very start of the pentathlon test. In the opening event, the broad jump, at which he holds the world's record of 25 feet 3 inches, the Crimson athlete came dangerously near being forced out of the competition through fouls, caused in large measure by the force of the wind at the back of the contending jumpers. Twice Gourdin fouled by infinitesimal margins, but on his third trial the athlete provided against the possibility of another foul by taking off twenty-one inches back of the take-off board. Gourdin won with a leap of 21 feet 1 inch, which was 9½ inches better than the leap of Erbal. Subsequently Gourdin cleared 24 feet 4 inches in an unofficial jump.

In the javelin throw Gourdin led Erbal, his nearest rival, by 21 feet 6 inches with a toss of 169 feet 9¾ inches, with the wind. Gourdin easily excelled in the 200-meter sprint, which he captured in 23 1-5 seconds, 2 1-5 seconds faster than the time of Lichtman and Torporcer, who tied for second. The discus throw went to Erbal with 105 feet 2 inches. Gourdin placed third after Lichtman with 101 feet 6 inches.

A special three-mile race for novice runners at a distance, one of a series arranged by the New York A. C. for the purpose of developing distance running timber, resulted in a triumph for Bill Kelly, Knights of St. Anthony star, who vanished ten rivals. It was Kelly's second victory at this distance in the Mercury Foot series.

The competitors in the pentathlon were:

Ray Again Fails in Effort To Set World's Mile Record

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—Jole Ray of the Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago, failed again today in his attempt to lower the world's one-mile record. He ran the distance, paced by four men, in 4 minutes 35 2-5 seconds against a stiff wind, which impeded him in the back stretch. The run was staged as a feature of the 109th field day of the University of Toronto. The record is 4:12 3-5, held by Norman Tabor.

LASKER MUST TAKE ONE GAME TO WIN

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—At the close of the eleventh, and final, round of the Western Chess Association's championship tournament at the City Club of Cleveland this evening, Edward Lasker of Chicago had still two adjourned games in hand, on the outcome of which depended the question whether or not he is to retain his title.

Lasker defeated Norris of Hoopeston, Ill., in the tenth round, but met with stout resistance on the part of J. T. Geckner of Winchester, Ky. This game was adjourned in an ending in which Lasker had five pawns against a knight and three pawns. In his adjourned game with Hahlbohm of Chicago Lasker has the inferior position. In order to pass the total of Factor of Chicago, who finished with 9—2, Lasker must win one of his adjourned games.

Hahlbohm, 9—2, may attain Factor's score. Whitaker of Washington, 6½—2½, also has two unfinished games on is hands and neither is favorable to him. Stolzenberg of Detroit, 6½—3½, will be among the five prize winners.

Today's summaries:

Lasker 1, Norris 0; Factor 1, Shapiro 0; Czaikowski ½, Stearns ½; Hahlbohm 1, Czaikowski 0; Moorman 1, Hoffman 0; Norris 0, Factor 1; Hahlbohm 1, Norris 0.

The standing follows:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Factor	10	2	Moorman	4	7
Lasker	8½	½	Shapiro	3½	6½
Hahlbohm	8	2	Hoffman	3½	7½
Whitaker	6½	2½	Czaikowski	2½	2½

POSTPONES BIKE RACE.

Promoter Wellman Unable to Stage 24-Hour Event on Oct. 23-24.

The 24-hour bicycle race which was scheduled for the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Oct. 23 and 24, has been postponed. Promoter Bill Wellman yesterday announced the postponement, attributing the change in his plans to the lack of time in which to construct a suitable saucer-shaped track. No definite substitute date has been determined.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

Andy Chaney, west side featherweight, will launch his Winter campaign this evening at the Jamaica Sporting Club. The former Baltimore boxer is scheduled for a twelve-round bout with Jackie Norman of Brooklyn, as the feature attraction of the Jamaica club's weekly card. In another twelve-round contest, Young Hoffman and Mickey McMinn will clash. Young Brady of Syracuse and Lew McFarland of San Francisco will be opponents in a ten-round encounter.

Johnny (Knockout) Eggers, veteran west side featherweight, and Terry Martin, colored featherweight, will clash in the principal twelve-round bout tonight at the 102d Medical Corps Armory. The contest will mark the first appearance of Eggers in a local ring bout in several years. Jimmy Ambrose, another west side veteran, is slated to engage Kid Specks, colored boxer of Harlem, in another twelve-round bout.

Kid Williams, former bantamweight champion, and Mickey Brown, east side boxer, will clash this evening in the stellar twelve-round battle at the Broadway Exhibition Association, Brooklyn. The bout will witness the first ring appearance of Williams in Brooklyn in several years.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—A disturbance of considerable intensity was central over Maine Wednesday night, moving rapidly northeastward. It has been attended by general rains within the last twenty-four hours in the lake region, the Upper Ohio Valley and in the Atlantic States north of Virginia. Pressure was high Wednesday between the Appalachian Mountains and the Plains States, and lower over the Canadian Northwest, and generally west of the Rockies.

The temperature was considerably lower Wednesday in the Eastern States and the Gulf States, except the Florida Peninsula. There was a reaction to somewhat higher temperature in the Upper Mississippi Valley, Plains States and the north Rocky Mountain region.

BRITAIN FINDS TRADE WITH US DIFFICULT

EMPIRE EXHIBITION URGED

Prince of Wales Speaks for It as a Move to Help Give Relief to the Unemployed.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (Associated Press). —"Great Britain must trade with the whole world, but if foreign nations cannot, or do not choose to trade with us on a sufficient scale, it is time to make a long march forward on the pathway of imperial development," declared Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies, in an address at the Mansion House today where a meeting was held in furtherance of the project of a British Empire exhibition in 1923.

The Prince of Wales also spoke at the meeting and urged that in order to provide employment for the needy, work on the exhibition be begun immediately.

Mr. Churchill declared that the fact that Great Britain had to purchase four-fifths of its food and a similar proportion of raw materials abroad showed the vital necessity of extending the Empire's trade.

"If things go as they are now," declared Mr. Churchill, "it will become increasingly difficult for us to purchase what is needed from the United States or elsewhere."

"The bulk of our American securities," he said, "were sold to the United States to pay for the equipment of the armies with which we and our allies defended the liberties of the whole world from German aggression, and instead of a credit we have an enormous debt of nearly £1,000,000,000 contracted on behalf of our allies. Therefore we not only lost the advantage we drew from our transatlantic investments, but we have a heavy annual liability to meet.

"In addition we have to pay the United States by our products, or by the services of our mercantile marine for cotton and food and other essentials. If things go on as they are now going on it will become increasingly difficult for us to buy what we need from the United States, while the general impoverishment of different parts of Europe and Asia will gradually diminish our opportunities for selling. This is an outlook that makes it more necessary for us to develop our empire trade as well as our world trade.

Great Britain, he continued, has never been bankrupt. "She will always find," he said, "a pathway open for the safety and glory of the British race. There is at this moment open to us, not only in the East, but in the West, and in all quarters of the globe, a splendid prospect in unlimited potentialities for a worldwide Empire."

He said he was not advocating trade within the empire to the exclusion of trade outside, as that would be impossible. In conclusion, he said he believed the trade depression had passed its worst point.

Emigration and overseas settlement within the empire are said to be one of the proposals being considered by the Government for the relief of unemployment. This probably would involve Government grants to assist the emigrants. It was said in authoritative quarters here today.

Consultations with the dominion Governments, however, would be necessary before it could be known how the plan would work out, it was explained.

Another suggestion is for a new system of unemployment insurance under which a fund would be provided by equal contributions of, say, two pence weekly from employers, employes and the State, but this project would apply only to insured persons. It is expected the Government will have formulated some plan by the end of the week and will meet labor representatives for a discussion of it.

Alteration and extension of an export credit scheme is reported as almost certain to be included in the Government's final proposals. Financial proposals will probably be placed before the House of Commons, relating to grants to local authorities in connection with loans for public improvements and other measures for relief.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Prince of Wales made a speech at a meeting at Mansion House today favoring the project for holding a British Empire exhibition in 1923 at Wembley, a northwestern suburb of London, to aid unemployment.

The idea was originated by Lord Strathcona in 1913 with the object of bringing together an exhibition of the resources of all parts of the empire and it is estimated that the necessary buildings and a sport stadium connected with them would cost £1,500,000 and could not be started without a guarantee fund of £1,000,000. It was to get this guarantee that the Prince made his appeal.

"I want it guaranteed now," he said. "I cannot believe that if we asked for £1,000,000 in cash for such a fine national purpose we would ask in vain; but I am not asking for cash. I am asking only for guarantees on which the banks are prepared to lend the money, which can be spent now in constructional work."

Then the Prince referred to his own optimism in the future and said:

"But I hope there is no optimist in this room who fails to recognize the difficulty of being cheerful when you are out of work and hungry and see those who are nearest and dearest to you also hungry, so I want to make a practical suggestion. Here on the one hand you have thousands of able-bodied men who, in the darkest hour of trial, offered their all for their country, and here on the other hand you have an enterprise which I hope I have proved is one solely in the interests of the empire's future. Why delay with the work?"

The Prince referred to his departure for India in two weeks' time and said: "I cannot be entirely happy in leaving these shores when I realize the bleak outlook in so many homes for the Winter. Nothing would set me on my way rejoicing more than the knowledge that you would tackle this problem of guarantees forthwith, and that before I leave England I might know that at all events there were a few thousand happier homes due to your efforts."

100,000,000 Guilders

Interest payable March and September

Redeemable by annual drawings at par

Sinking fund cannot be increased until 1926

The Dutch East Indies are the main colonial possession of Holland and comprise the Islands of Java, Sumatra, Celebes, the larger part of Borneo, the Molucca Islands, including most of New Guinea, the Timor Archipelago and a number of smaller islands, with a total area of over 683,000 square miles. The population is officially estimated at over 50,000,000, or nearly eight times as large as that of the mother country.

The islands are chiefly known for their agricultural products, such as coffee, tea, cocoa, sugar, tobacco, rubber, rice, indigo, maize and spices, although coal, petroleum and tin are also produced in very large quantities.

For the year 1919, the last official figures available, the total exports had a value of 2,167,470,518 guilders, while for the same period imports amounted to only 793,233,225 guilders, showing a favorable trade balance of 1,374,237,293 guilders. Great Britain alone imported from Java during 1920 merchandise to the value of £28,760,004, while during the same period her exports to Java were only £18,412,559.

The Dutch East Indies are admirably equipped with over 3,000 miles of government-owned railways, which annually carry over 134,000,000 passengers. The Government also owns the telegraph and telephone systems, together with mines, plantations and other income-producing property.

As a result of the depreciation in Dutch exchange, these bonds can be purchased at a price which, when exchange returns to normal, will show a profit to the present purchaser of about 17%, or a yield to average maturity of about 9¼% on the investment.

Report by Examiners From Five States Finds Lockwood Strictures Not Upheld.

NEW YORK MAN DISSENTS

Ratio of Realty Loans to Risk Business in This State Said to Be Nearly Even.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 12.—A report was filed here today which absolves the Prudential Insurance Company of America of the charge, made in a communication from the Lockwood committee to the New York State Superintendent of Insurance, that, "although upwards of 22 per cent. of the policy holders of the company are in New York State, it invests only a small fraction of its vast funds in mortgages secured by real estate in this State." The same attitude is taken toward the criticism that the company's "investments in other States, compared with its premium receipts from those States, are vastly out of proportion to the business it does in this (New York) State."

The report was addressed to William E. Tuttle Jr., New Jersey Commissioner of Banking and Insurance, who was asked by the company to make the investigation, and to Jesse S. Phillips, Superintendent of Insurance, New York State; Thomas S. McMurray, Indiana Insurance Commissioner; Clarence W. Hobbs, Commissioner of Insurance for Massachusetts, and Robert E. Daly, Missouri.

The report was signed by James Froggatt, New Jersey; Nelsen B. Hadley, New York; Robert Daly, Missouri; Arthur B. Lincs, Massachusetts, and C. O. Van Horn, Indiana, examiners in their respective States.

In an appended paragraph Mr. Hadley said he could not join in the report in so far as it related to comparisons between the Prudential and other insurance companies.

"The Prudential Insurance Company is the company under examination," he said. "It has a right to a hearing on any portion or all of the report before it is filed in the State of New York. Under the law the report of examination of a company cannot be filed until there has been a hearing. The other companies mentioned in this report have no standing in this examination; they cannot meet any charges or secure any hearing regarding matters referred to in this report.

"Comparison by insurance departments between companies is, in my opinion, under practically all circumstances inimical to the best interests of the business and the policy holders. It proves nothing regarding the Prudential Insurance Company with respect to any facts brought out in this report that the same facts exist in other companies. Each company must stand alone upon its own foundation, and if its actions are bad or commendable it must be determined with reference to that company alone. It is no justification that the same facts exist regarding some other company. I do not question the accuracy of data submitted, but I dissent to that portion of the report which makes any comparisons or shows any facts in other life insurance companies."

The report, after various comparisons, shows that New York heads the list of States with 20.90 per cent. of the company's business, compared with 19.45 per cent. of the company's mortgage loans.

Pennsylvania is second on the list with 16.41 per cent. of the company's business, compared with less than 1 per cent. of the company's mortgage loans.

New Jersey is third, with 9.39 per cent. of the company's business, compared with 7.27 per cent. of the company's mortgage loans.

The entire New England States, with 7.22 per cent. of the company's business, have none of the company's mortgage loans.

Insurance in force on Dec. 31, 1920, was shown to be $1,065,341,015 in New York State, $836,612,005 in Pennsylvania and $478,634,704 in New Jersey.

Continuing, the report said:

"In order to compare the amount of mortgage loan investments of the Prudential Insurance Company with that of New York State companies of similar size figures were secured from the annual statements filed with insurance departments for 1920 of the Equitable, Mutual Life, Metropolitan and New York Life Companies.

"These figures show that the Prudential has 29.64 per cent. of its total ledger assets invested in mortgages, whereas the four New York companies, combined as one, have 23.83 per cent. Furthermore, these figures show that only one New York company (Metropolitan) has a larger percentage of the assets invested in mortgage loans than the Prudential Insurance Company.

"Figures show that the Prudential's mortgage loans in New York State are 5.77 per cent. of its ledger assets, 19.45 per cent. of its total mortgage loans and 42.56 per cent. of its city mortgage loans.

"New York State mortgage loans of the Prudential Insurance Company are all of the city property class, and when compared with the total city mortgage loans of the Prudential show 42.56 per cent. Invested in New York State, including mortgages, are 14.33 per cent. of its ledger assets. The other investments comprise loans on policies made to New York policy holders, cash in New York banks, investments in bonds covering New York property and investments in Government bonds, New York being charged with its share of the latter."

Commenting on the relationship between the Prudential Insurance Company and the Fidelity Trust Company, the report refers to investigations made by the Armstrong committee of New York in 1905 and the New Jersey Hillery committee of 1906. After reviewing deposits of the Prudential with the Fidelity since 1903, the report says:

"The details of the Prudential deposits with the Fidelity, as previously set forth and as exhibited in the Armstrong committee report, show that at the end of April, 1904, the balance was $4,621,432.32, and at the end of May, 1904, it was only $1,457,317.47.

"This reduction was caused by the fact that in 1904 the Insurance Commissioner of Massachusetts objected to the extent of the Prudential Insurance Company's total interest in the Fidelity Trust Company. To meet this objection the Prudential Insurance Company entered into agreement with the Insurance Commission of Massachusetts whereby it was agreed that it would not have a risk in any one financial institution, either by deposit, ownership of capital stock or loan with capital stock as collateral security, more than 50 per cent. of the surplus of the Prudential Insurance Company, said surplus to be computed by the Massachusetts Commissioner. This agreement was signed on May 9, 1904.

"Examination of the records of the Prudential Insurance Company shows that since the signing of this agreement and to Dec. 31, 1920, its provisions have been strictly followed."

On Dec. 31, 1920, the report says, the public service securities held by the Prudential amounted to $17,395,174.85, consisting wholly of bonds. The market value of these bonds at Dec. 31, 1920, was $13,493,865, or $3,901,309.85 less than the holding value.

The Lockwood committee questioned the mutualization of the Prudential as directed by a New Jersey statute of 1913. On the question of mutualization the report says:

"The mutualization law provided for the purchase by the policyholders of the entire rights of the stockholders in the capital and surplus and in the right to elect Directors. The company has purchased 37,794.75 shares of stock of the total issue of 40,000 shares. These shares now stand in the name of the trustee for the policyholders. Dividends amounting to $2,005,892.15 have been paid on these shares. Dividends paid to the trustee are returned to the company for the benefit of the policyholders."

UNTERMYER'S COMMENT.

He Infers Report on Prudential Is "Inspired Whitewash."

Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel to the Lockwood committee, when informed of the report of examiners which absolved the Prudential Life Insurance Company from that committee's charges, made the following statement:

"I would prefer to see the report, rather than the Prudential Life version of it given to the newspapers. I infer, however, that it is an inspired whitewash, as I predicted it would be. It will be interesting to know what the report itself will have to say about the transactions between the Prudential Life, the Fidelity Trust Company and the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, and how these transactions will be explained away.

"As the Lockwood committee will shortly resume its hearings, Mr. Dryden will have another opportunity of explaining these many-sided transactions in the open light of day. His 15,000,000 policy holders are still wondering why he refused to answer questions concerning the uses to which their money was put, on the ground that he had been advised by his counsel not to answer the questions. And on that ground alone Mr. Dryden will get another opportunity to answer those questions after I have read the report I may have something to say."

Commerce Commission Sets Aside Schedule Proposed Last June.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. — Railroad freight rates proposed by the Southeastern roads last June to apply between points on the South Atlantic Coast and the Mississippi River were set aside by the Interstate Commerce Commission today and new schedules ordered filed before Nov. 28.

The commission ordered the new rates to be drawn on a basis of $2 for first class freight from Virginia and Carolina points to Memphis and grouped destinations; from the coast cities to Winona, Miss., and grouped destinations, at $2.10, and from the coast to New Orleans and Vicksburg at $2.18. Related rates were ordered changed to conform, and the commission said the roads should preserve a differential favoring the Southern ports in traffic to the Mississippi Valley of 14 cents under Baltimore, 25 cents under Philadelphia and New York and 33 cents under Boston.

REPORT IRON VALLEY FOUND

Huge Deposit 64.36 Pure Said to Be on Lake Athabasca Shore.

EDMONTON, Alberta, Oct. 12.—A whole valley of almost pure iron on the shores of Lake Athabasca, with deep water up to the claims, has been discovered in the north by Norman C. Butterfield and his son, E. A. Butterfield, residents of the Edmonton district, according to details of the discovery as reported in The Edmonton Bulletin.

Analysis of the claim is said to show that it is 64.36 per cent. pure iron and that a great mass in the shape of loose blocks is lying on the surface of the ground close to the lake ready for shipping without any mining operations being necessary.

The Butterfields also report finding a vast deposit of coking coal in the Brazeau country.

POSTAL SAVINGS REDUCED.

Total of $151,150,000 Oct. 1 Affected by Unemployment.

Total deposits in the United States Postal Savings Banks on Oct. 1 were approximately $151,150,000. A small decrease occurred during September, directly attributed to continued unemployment and reduction of wages together with seasonal changes in occupation.

The number of new accounts being opened and the amount being deposited are averaging higher than customary, the decreases in deposits being occasioned by heavier withdrawals.

Asks Lower Lackawanna Ferry Rates.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Increased charges on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad ferries between Hoboken and New York City, which went into effect Oct. 1, were attacked today before the Interstate Commerce Commission in a complaint filed by the City of Hoboken, which asked that the increases be suspended and that hearings be held either in New York or Hoboken.

MONTREAL, Oct. 12.—Directors of the Canadian Car & Foundry Co., Ltd., issued a statement today saying they had "suspended for the present the paying of the September dividend on the preferred stock." The annual dividend is 7 per cent.

A MEXICAN LOAN?

Today we read: "It is considered not beyond the range of possibilities that some sort of refunding arrangement might be made that the outstanding bonds in default with their accrued interest might be funded into a new loan of long duration."

We consider that
The United States of Mexico
(direct external debt)
6% Treasury Gold Loan Series "A"
Due July 1, 1923, offer an attractive speculation.
To date the accumulated unpaid interest amounts to about 43½%
Approximate Price $420 per $1000 Bond
(£200)

The above bonds are comparatively as well secured as the 5% gold loan due 1945. The latter bonds are selling for 20 points above the amount of accumulated unpaid interest thereon.

Circular on request.

A. B. Murray & Co.

We do not recommend any of the Mexican securities as an investment, but, in our opinion, the 6% loan offers speculative possibilities.

HEAVY TAXES CLOSE PUEBLA INDUSTRIES

IDLE PROTEST IN STREETS

"Strangle Law" Will Result In "Dead City," 7,000 Business Men Tell Mexican Governor.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 12, (Associated Press.)—A situation fraught with alarming possibilities was described in dispatches received here today from Puebla, where the imposition by State authorities of alleged excessive taxes has caused the closing of many industrial plants, the complete paralysis of transportation facilities and the closing of a number of stores. Many hotels have been forced to turn out patrons, the dispatches said.

Street demonstrations are being held daily, according to the advices, and thousands of unemployed are walking the streets shouting protests. Articles of necessity are being sold at exorbitant prices and the city probably will be without meat tomorrow, it was said. Food from outside the city is scarce, because of a strike of wagoners.

A committee representing 7,000 business men called on Governor Sanchez today, the dispatches asserted, and protested against the enforcement of what they termed a "strangle law" which, they said, if rigorously applied, would result in making "Puebla, the second city of Mexico, a dead city."

The Chamber of Commerce is reported to have advised the Governor that if the law were not modified within twenty-four hours every store in the city would be closed. Governor Sanchez, however, did not indicate whether he would suggest that the State Legislature amend the law. An appeal also was made to President Obregon, but his only statement has been that he could not interfere with strictly State affairs.

Governor Sanchez is quoted as saying that the need for the increased taxes arose from a debt of 22,000,000 pesos, which the State must pay immediately.

Exciting almost as much local interest as the Puebla situation is the action of the Vera Cruz authorities in placing an embargo on the properties of El Aguila, a British concern, for alleged non-payment of taxes, payment of which, the company asserts, is contrary to its original contract with the State. Although the Supreme Court has made no decision relative to the numerous amparo proceedings recently brought by the company, a District Judge of Vera Cruz has issued instructions which, it is believed here, will prevent the embargo from becoming effective and temporarily halt the action of the State authorities.

The embargo action has increased local editorial attacks on Vera Cruz officials. Excelsior today published an editorial under the caption, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalyse," which is a bitter attack on radicalism as, the newspaper says, exemplified in the State Governments of Yucatan, Puebla, Vera Cruz and Michoacan.

CHILE FLOATS LOAN OF $9,500,000 HERE

Five-Year 8 Per Cent. Gold Bonds to Be Offered by Bankers to Public Today.

An issue of $9,500,000 five-year 8 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds of the Republic of Chile has been purchased by Blair & Co., Inc., and the Chase Securities Corporation. A public offering will be made today by a group headed by these bankers, with whom will be associated White, Weld & Co., Halsey Stuart & Co., the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank and the First Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago.

A feature of the issue is the large sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds at prices ranging from 104 to 101. The schedule provides for the retirement of 25 per cent. of the total issue during the second year at not exceeding 104 and interest, 25 per cent. of the total issue during the third year at not exceeding 103 and interest, 25 per cent. during the fourth year at not exceeding 102 and interest and 25 per cent. during the last year at not exceeding 101 and interest.

The bankers have this to say about the loan: "The Chilean Government has an enviable record among the nations of the world for the prompt and continuous payment of its obligations. The first external loan was a 6 per cent. issue placed in London nearly 100 years ago. Chile has been a favored field for investment by United States capital. Among the large American corporations interested in Chile are the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Chile Copper Company. Recent calculations indicate that the investments in Chile by United States capital exceed the investment of such capital in all other South American companies."

Dutch East Indies Offering.

Morton Lachenbruch & Co. are offering a new issue of 100,000,000 guilders 6½ per cent. forty-year sinking fund bonds of the Government of the Dutch East Indies, more fully described in a circular giving statistics on the area, population, products, imports, exports and other circumstances of the Dutch East Indies.

Reviving Opportunities In Japan's Trade

Improved financial conditions in Japan and a marked reduction of stocks in practically all lines of goods foreshadow a resumption of buying by that country. This means fresh opportunities in Japan for American manufacturers.

Maintaining our own branches at Tokio and Yokohama, we are exceptionally qualified to assist manufacturers in establishing contact with Japanese markets and to place at their service the special channels of information on trade conditions to which we have access. We will also be glad to cooperate by financing shipments, making collections and performing other banking functions.

STATEN ISLAND DEFICIT.

City Probably Lost $26,300 Operating Midland Railway Last Year.

Information gathered by the Transit Commission concerning the city's operation of the Staten Island Midland Railway Company indicates a deficit of $26,300 for the year ended June 30 last. Figures made public recently by Grover Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, in charge of the operation, and based on the high tide of traffic during the Summer showed a profit. Detailed facts on the city's operation of the property have not yet been assembled.

During hearings before the Transit Commission concerning the various traction properties, testimony will be sought concerning the Midland, as well as all other properties which the Commission may decide to take into the proposed consolidation. When the Midland was privately operated part of the operating costs consisted of taxes aggregating more than $16,000 a year, which it was said would have to be added to any loss incurred by public operation.

Statisticians of the Commission have figures showing that the average fare now being paid by passengers on the traction lines is 6 cents due to the elimination of transfers. It was also said that if interest on the deficits were added, the fare would approximate 7 cents.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—A motion to set aside the sale of The Detroit Times to William R. Hearst interests several days ago was filed Wednesday in the Federal Court on behalf of Earl C. Rayner of Illinois, a creditor.

He maintained the sale price, $101,000 in addition to the assumption of liabilities of more than $200,000 was "grossly inadequate." As a fair price, he contends, would be $639,200.

To the Salesmen of New York:
A Personal Letter from a Salesman, not a Sales Manager.

Universities and business colleges are now offering their Winter salesmanship courses to you. Many of you will take advantage of them and pay good hard dollars for the instruction you receive.

Practically every executive and future executive today realizes the necessity of higher training to fit him for the competition amongst men who aspire to SUCCESS.

I am a salesman with Kendall Products Corporation. With many of my fellow-salesmen, who have been with this corporation for months, I am making good commissions assisting in raising the necessary capital to carry out this corporation's extensive merchandising plans.

We have before us definite, concrete assurance of executive positions in the merchandising of our revolutionary products as soon as we have secured the financial means to enable us to get our advertising from a local to a national basis.

Right now we are receiving, absolutely without cost, a complete intensive training course, which is being given to our salesmen by many able instructors.

To the man who is ambitious and can really appreciate a good opportunity for a permanent connection, come into our clubrooms today,

URQUHART REJECTS RED TRADE TERMS

Big British Company Reports It Impossible to Deal With Soviet Government.

THREE-WEEK PARLEY FAILS

Concessionaires in Russia Can Do Nothing While Communists Control, Chairman Says.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—The Board of Directors of the Russia Asiatic Consolidated, Limited, announced today that the Chairman of the company, Leslie Urquhart, after five months' negotiations has failed to reach an agreement with the Moscow Government for the return of the company's property and working capital in the form of a concession.

Accompanying the announcement was a copy of a letter, which Mr. Urquhart had sent to Leonid Krassin, Soviet Minister of Trade and Commerce, explaining the impossibility of any dealings with the Soviet authorities and informing him that the company preferred to remain claimants against Russia for damages caused by the Soviet through unlawful appropriation of properties and working capital.

In his report Mr. Urquhart says he was continuously engaged for three weeks at Moscow with a technical and economic commission appointed by the Soviet and that the draft of a concession agreement was prepared, but one of the clauses was impossible to agree on, as it was a stipulation by the Soviet that a contract must be made with the Professional Workmen's Union.

"All kinds of controls and provisions are made whereby liberty of action and the decision of a concessionaire are restricted by the professional unions," continues Mr. Urquhart. "As a result there can be no finality to an agreement with a workman, even after the terms of his contract are absolutely fulfilled. The All-Russian Council of Professional Unions, supported by the Cheka, is simply a political instrument for forcing on Russian workers the extreme principles of international communism through the Government's mechanism.

"Instead of permitting a worker and employer to come together to settle their differences amicably, as in the past, the contract with the All-Russian Council is intended to keep the employers and workers apart and, by placing the workers' interests in the hands of the extremist members of the Communist Party, who are at the head of the organization, perpetuate the present stranglehold not only on industry and enterprise, but on the whole working and proletarian population of Russia."

Mr. Urquhart declares that so long as the Communist Party controls the Soviet Government, the Third Internationale, the Cheka and the Professional Unions, any agreement with the Soviet may be rendered inoperative.

SOVIET NOW CHARGES FOR PASSPORT VISES

Costs 15 Gold Rubles to Enter Russia, 150,000 Soviet Rubles to Leave.

MOSCOW, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—Anticipating a large number of visitors from foreign countries, Russia has discontinued free visés of passports, and as a revenue measure the entry passport, visé by Soviet representatives abroad will cost fifteen gold rubles. The fee for exit from or passing through Russian territory is 150,000 Soviet rubles, except in the cases of diplomats, war prisoners or refugees. Russians making their exit or entry into the country must pay a total of 400,000 rubles.

American citizens may not enter the country unless they bring their passports. The authorities explain that the Soviet Government cannot recognize the slip of paper given Americans by the consular officials as a receipt for their passports as identification of the person presenting it.

German Heads the Soviet Bank.

RIGA, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—Nicolai N. Kuttler, former Minister of the Interior of the old imperial Cabinet, together with a number of widely known Russian financiers, including M. Kruschoff, has been appointed a Director of the Advisory Committee of the New Russian State Bank which, according to the Rosta News Agency, the Soviet news disseminator, expects to enter the general home and international banking field.

Herr Scheinemann, who signed the Russo-German trade agreement on behalf of Russia some time ago, has been appointed President of the bank.

Before the Georgian Republic became Soviet, Herr Scheinemann was the Soviet representative in Georgia.

Honest Differences of Opinion

TAX returns filed for previous years are daily being reviewed by the Revenue Department. In many cases the opinion is held that additional assessments be levied—and frequently it is so ordered.

But an honest difference of opinion may be held by the taxpayer. And that opinion, based on sound facts, is oftimes accepted by the department, if properly presented.

Certified Public Accountants with specialized tax departments are perhaps best equipped for such service.

The famous Crombies of Scotland made the woolens—the softest, most luxurious overcoatings you ever saw. Hart Schaffner & Marx made the coats, as only Hart Schaffner & Marx and a few of the best custom tailors know how. And, we made these wonderful Hart Schaffner & Marx Crombie overcoats only $77.50 as part of our campaign for lower prices.

Our Overcoat prices for this season are decidedly easier. You can buy a fine Hart Schaffner & Marx Overcoat this Fall for as little as $35. Many other good values at $45, and a wonderful assortment of exceptionally choice ones at $50

WE suggest an early choice as this is a really unusual opportunity to secure a reliable car at a remarkably small price.

Note: We are not used car dealers; these cars have been taken in trade for new cars of which we are the Metropolitan Distributors.
